Landslide Win for Bennett

Popular Vote Close to 1966

Premier Bennett smashed what had been billed as the strongest New Democratic Party and Liberal threats of his 17-year administration Wednesday.

Social Credit was returned to five more years of power with an overwhelming majority.

"I need every vote" Bennett said in his last platform appearance and British Columbians rallied to his plea so eagerly the government party surged to almost 47 per cent of the popular vote for its best performance ever.

The dimensions of the victory will be measured on the floor of the 55-seat legislature when, for the second time, Socreds will have to sit on the left as well as the right of Speaker William Murray to accommodate their numbers.

'Socred Cup Runneth Over'

"Our cup runneth over," Bennett said in Kelowna as the returns showed his administration had won its seventh consecutive mandate and he personally had been returned for the 10th time in Okanagan South with a 50 per cent higher majority than 1966 of almost 9,500 votes.

"The people of British Columbia have stopped socialism dead in its tracks," said the premier.

The outcome exceeded his own private prediction of 34 Socred seats and "this shows you the great sweep . . . this one is sweeter than them all," Bennett said.

Throughout the campaign, press and party reports suggested enough Socred backbenchers and cabinet ministers were in serious trouble to raise the possibility of a change in government.

Bennett, warning that the NDP would try to duplicate its Manitoba win here, repeatedly hammered the theme that the electorate had to choose between "socialism or Social Credit . . . Bennett or chaos . . . strike pay with Berger or take-home pay with Bennett."

Cabinet Returned Easily

The electorate responded by returning all cabinet ministers and government MLAs, most with wider margins, while dismissing freshman Liberal Allan Cox in Oak Bay, Berger and running mate Dr. Ray Parkinson in Vancouver-Burrard, Norman Levi in Vancouver South, veteran NDP whip Leo Nimsick in Kootenay, William King in Revelstoke-Slocan and caucus chairman David Stupich in Nanaimo.

The Socred victors included onetime Socred whip and 14-year MLA Bert Price along with Harold Merilees who won Vancouver-Burrard, Harry Broadhurst in Kootenay, Burton Campbell in Revelstoke-Slocan, Mrs. Agnes Kripps in Vancouver-South and Mayor Frank Ney in Nanaimo.

Minister Without Portfolio Phil Gaglardi, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and Speaker Murray easily withstood efforts to unseat them despite predictions they would lose.

Wednesday's results in two seats still might be reversed by recounts.

Nimsick was only 49 votes behind Broadhurst in the Kootenay upset and Dennis Cocke of the NDP barely held New Westminster with a 17-vote lead over Socred John Edmondson.

An estimated 500 ballots in New Westminster are still to be counted, Returning Officer William Love said today.

"I'm expecting at least that many to be mailed in to this riding from returning officers across the province," he said. "These votes could well affect the outcome of such a close race."

Love said the mailed ballots would not be opened for at least 12 days.

Premier Bennett said he will make no announcements about cabinet posts for some time and added that the next election probably will be called "in four of five years" instead of the three-year intervals he has favored.

No Abuse of Power

KELOWNA—Premier Bennett this morning said his most powerful mandate from the people will be exercised with humility and responsibility.

"After winning this election, we're not boasting.

"We'll be more humble," he told The Times in a telephone interview.

In quiet and measured tones Bennett indicated he will strive for statesmanship as the product of the overwhelming Social Credit victory.

He said the conclusiveness of the opposition parties' defeat eliminates the need for rough-and-tumble political battle and increases the need for responsibility.

"Things will be decided on their merits," Bennett said.

"We don't want to abuse power, because we believe in democracy.

"We've had a tremendous number of critics in the different parties and in the press and that's why we've had to hit back hard at times," he said.

The premier said the government's challenge now will be to conduct itself so that even critics have no justification for "accusing us of arrogance."

Doctor Performs Political Transplant

Oak Bay had a stunning change of heart Wednesday.

The successful transplant was performed by Social Crediter Dr. G. Scott Wallace, after Premier Bennett had earlier delivered the "kiss of death" to Liberal Allan Cox.

Bennett predicted Monday that the Liberals would retain only one seat in the next legislature—Oak Bay.

But Wallace took Oak Bay by 4,000 votes and a solid Socred bloc of five MLAs will represent the Greater Victoria area in the next legislature.

TIDAL WAVE

The tidal wave of Socred voters that swept the lower Island left former New Democratic Party leader Robert Strachan clinging by his fingertips to the lone non-government seat, in Cowichan-Malahat.

Oak Bay was the first seat in the province to be decided and proved a deadly accurate indicator of how the evening would go.

A Liberal fortress since 1952 Oak Bay had given Cox a 3,200-vote majority in a by-election in July, 1968.

In Victoria cabinet ministers W. N. Chant and Waldo Skillings again proved an unbeatable combination with their closest pursuers, NDP candidates Peter Bunn and Phillip Fawcett trailing by almost 7,000 votes.

Deputy-Speaker Herb Bruch won Esquimalt handily with a 2,600-vote lead and John Tisdalle came through again in Saanich and the Islands, dashing NDP hopes with a 2,800-vote margin.

The results in Cowichan-Malahat were almost as surprising as the Oak Bay count.

In what was considered an impregnable NDP fortress Strachan scraped past Dr. Charles Ennals by only 253 votes.

Bill 33 Invoked

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister Les Peterson today invoked British Columbia's controversial Bill 33 for the first time by ordering compulsory mediation in the strike of 550 oil workers.

The order followed an announcement by the Teamsters union that its members would support the oilworkers by refusing to drive machines and trucks using what it called "hot" fuel in an attempt to bring an end to the three-month strike.

Lesage Quits

QUEBEC (CP) — Jean Lesage, leader of the Quebec Liberal party since 1958, announced his resignation today.

'I CAN'T CONTINUE WITHOUT A SEAT'

Berger Ponders Fate

The fate of Tom Berger as leader of the New Democratic Party will remain undecided for several days.

Berger, defeated in his own Vancouver-Burrard riding said today:

"It's obvious that I can't continue as leader without a seat in the legislature.

"At the same time it wouldn't be right to ask an MLA to step down to make a seat available."

Berger said he will talk over his future plans with the party caucus, its officers and membership in the next few days.

"Everybody wants me to stay on but I think that's a kind of emotional reaction you can expect. . . ."

A better idea of people's wishes would be known "when everyone has had a chance to think about it for a few days," said the 36-year-old lawyer.

'STILL OUR LEADER'

Former NDP Leader Robert Strachan said Wednesday night that Berger "is still our leader" and that a house leader could be chosen in his absence from the legislature.

He declined to speculate on who the House leader might be until a meeting of elected MLAs — promised by Berger Wednesday — is held.

Strachan said Wednesday night he hoped Berger would stay on.

Dave Barrett, Coquitlam MLA who was narrowly beaten by Berger in the party leadership race earlier this year, declined comment on his own leadership ambitions at this time.

He said the fact that Berger sought advice from the party on the question makes a party meeting on the subject necessary.

BARRETT
. . . next leader?

Berger said the party could take some satisfaction in having been able to persuade one-third of the voters "that a rational approach to politics is what is needed."

SILVER LINING

"Maybe I am looking pretty hard to find a silver lining," he added.

"But I wouldn't change anything. Nothing could ever persuade me to run Bennett's kind of campaign. I believe in appealing to reason."

Berger said the NDP vote share was maintained in spite of "the millions Bennett poured into the campaign" and "the wave of hysteria it generated."

If the NDP had really run its best campaign ever and lost ground, could it ever hope to form a government in B.C.?

"Sure. I think it can and it will."

Asked whether the NDP campaign policy of concentrating on ridings it hoped to win and taking for granted those it held had contributed to his own defeat, Berger said:

FIRST CLASS CAMPAIGN

"The question is really irrelevant,—if you're leader you campaign all over the province. If there's a wave of hysteria, you lose your seat."

He said his supporters in Burrard ran "a first class campaign" and that the party actually increased its vote totals there.

He said he didn't feel the strong union support which helped him win the leadership hurt the party at the polls.

"I don't think that entered into it. In fact, our canvassers didn't get any feedback on that issue."

Berger said the popular vote figures, showing a loss of Liberal support and a gain for the Socreds, suggests that Bennett's campaign strategy

'I'll Carry On The Fight'

Liberal Leader Pat McGeer said today he has emerged from Wednesday's election in complete command of the Liberal Party and determined to carry on the fight for change in British Columbia politics.

McGeer, whose party dropped one of six seats it held in the last legislature and a share of its 1966 popular vote, said no question has been raised about his continuing as leader of the Liberals.

A meeting of the five Liberal MLAs will be held but no date has been set, McGeer said.

"I think the people of B.C. were not in a mood for change and naturally I'm disappointed because I think change is long overdue," he said.

NEW POLITICS

"Our message was listened to with interest but it wasn't accepted."

He said he would continue to fight to bring the message of "the new politics" to B.C.

McGeer, re-elected in his Vancouver-Point Grey riding, said Premier Bennett's campaign prediction of McGeer's defeat was typical of Bennett.

"The premier has been consistently wrong in everything he has said about me and this is no exception. He calls for my resignation regularly and no doubt will continue to do so."

McGeer said the Liberal Party's popular vote went down in the cities but rose in the interior, giving casue for hope.

"I wouldn't have changed any of it, not a minute of it," he told supporters Wednesday night, promising that the Liberals would continue to support good legislation while demanding reform and a higher standard of government.

Socred Win Leaves Ma Feeling Low

Hard-hitting Margaret 'Ma' Murray, 83-year-old editor of the weekly Lillooet newspaper, left Victoria today "bloody crushed, and lower than a snake's belly" over provincial election results.

Predicting that "the evil day is just around the corner for B.C. residents," Mrs. Murray laid much of the blame for the Socred landslide on women.

"I'm bitterly disappointed in the women of B.C. Normally, they have a keener instinct and are less selfish than men—but this time they too fell for Bennett's campaign of fear.

"The trouble with the B.C. people is that they've become too selfish and too worried about losing the good things of life.

"This means that Bennett is in for another five years—that makes 22 in all. That's too long for any man—even a saint."

Mrs. Murray added that hers was the only weekly paper to "consistently ride herd on Bennett since he took over the B.C. Hydro.

"When he confiscated it—got away with it without any restitution, he lost most of his usefulness."

'WENT BACK TO DARK AGES'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Surveying the setback handed the New Democratic Party, provincial president John Laxton said the NDP "had a glimpse of the renaissance, but we went back to the dark ages."

A personal loser in the election along with NDP leader Tom Berger, Laxton added:

"I can only say I'm bloody surprised—especially about Tom Berger losing."

'WANTED SHOT AT FLAGSHIP'

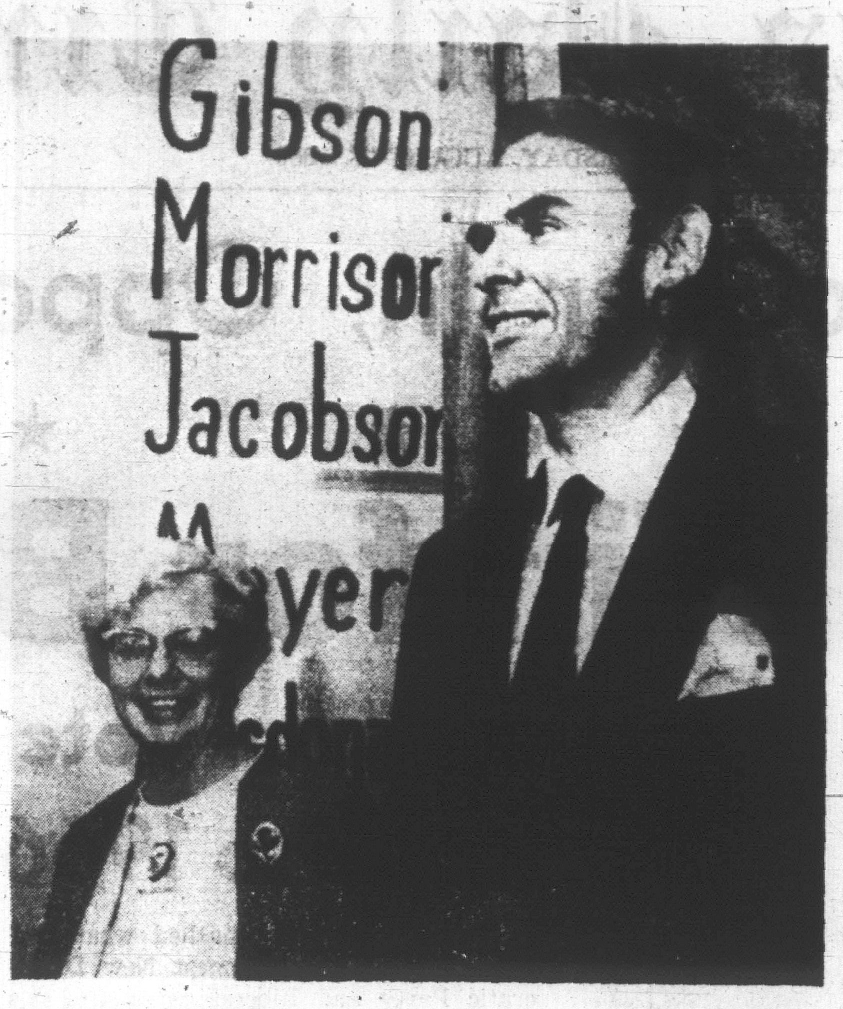
VANCOUVER (CP) — Harold Merilees, Social Credit victor along with Bert Price over incumbents NDP leader Tom Berger and Ray Parkinson in the dual Vancouver Burrard riding, said he hadn't even thought of running until late in the campaign.

"I wasn't going to run but when the premier asked me I asked him for one job," he said.

"I wanted a shot at the enemy's flagship—I wanted to set the NDP back five years, and I think we did."

Thorny Shot

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP)—A forests and parks board official reported Wednesday Alex Laferriere went racoon hunting a week ago, and took a shot at what he thought was a raccon in a tree top. What came down was a porcupine. It landed on Laferriere's head, sending him to hospital.



PERSONAL VICTORY in Vancouver-Point Grey gives Liberal leader Pat McGeer something to cheer about with unidentified party worker, but totals in other ridings dampened spirits at Liberal headquarters as evening wore on. (CP Wirephoto.)

How the Prominents Fared In Wednesday's SC Sweep

How prominent candidates fared in Wednesday's British Columbia election:

Dave Barrett, 39, runner-up to Tom Berger in the BC. NDP leadership race earlier this year, re-elected in Coquitlam for his fourth term.

Ken Kiernan, 53, recreation and conservation minister, re-elected in Chilliwack for his seventh term.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, 55, re-elected in Fort George for his sixth term.

Pat Jordan, 38-year-old minister withouth porfolio, re-elected to her second term in Okanagan North.

Education Minister Donald Brothers, who entered the legislature in a byelection in 1958, re-elected in Rossland-Trail.

Pat McGeer, 42-year-old Liberal leader, re-elected in the dual riding of Vancouver-Point Grey for his third full term after entering the legislature in a byelection in 1962.

Dan Campbell, 43, minister of welfare and municipal affairs, re-elected in Comox to his fifth term.

Attorney-General Les Peterson and Minister without Portfolio Grace McCarthy re-elected in the dual riding of Vancouver-Little Mountain.

Public Works Minister William Chant, at 74 Canada's oldest practising provincial politician, re-elected in Victoria along with Trade and Commerce Minister Waldo Skillings.

Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford, 48, re-elected to his seventh term in Omineca.

Phil Gaglardi, 56, who quit as highways minister 27 months ago but remained as minister without portfolio, re-elected in Kamloops for his seventh term.

Wesley Black, 59, highways minister, relected in Nelson-Creston for his seventh term.

William Murray, 52, Speaker of the legislature, re-elected in Prince Rupert for his fifth term.

John de Wolf, 38, B.C. Conservative leader and his party's only candidate, defeated in Vancouver-Point Grey.

Robert Strachan, 55, former NDP leader, relected for his seventh term in Cowichan-Malahat.

Mines Minister Frank Richter, 59, re-elected in Boundary-Similkameen for his sixth term.

Frank Calder, 54, first native Indian elected to a legislature, re-elected for the NDP in Atlin.

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, 49, re-elected for his third term in the dual riding of Vancouver South.

Tom Berger, 36, chosen as NDP leader earlier this year, defeated in the dual riding of Vancouver-Burrard as Social Credit gained both seats from the NDP.

Isabel Dawson, 52, minister without portfolio, re-elected for her second term in Mackenzie.

. . . LANDSLIDE VICTORY FOR SC

"We wanted to meet this threat of socialism head-on, once and for all," said Bennett.

"We settled it for British Columbia Wednesday, and I believe for all Canada, so it's not as important now to have elections every three years.

"It is more likely to be four or five years next time."

Minister Without Portfolio Grace McCarthy also portrayed the election result as a final repudiation of NDP hopes to form a government.

SIGNS OBLITERATED

"We in this province have told socialism 'we don't want you in British Columbia now or ever'," Mrs. McCarthy declared.

The election result obliterated the 1968 signs on which the NDP had based its most-highly organized effort to win power.

In the four byelections last summer which Premier Bennett dubbed a "little general election" the Liberals held their two seats handsomely while the NDP hung onto Revelstoke-Slocan after a Socred drive to wipe out the memory of their upset win in Vancouver-South.

Of the four opposition winners last year, only David Brousson (L — North Vancouver - Coquitlam) was returned Wednesday.

Premier Bennett said Dr. G. Scott Wallace's victory in Oak Bay was "particularly sweet" because strenuous efforts in the past 17 years had failed to capture it for the government.

He gave credit to Dr. Wallace and pointed out that Social Credit now had won eight of Vancouver Island's nine seats to indicate the government's steadily-growing popularity.

"In 1952 no Vancouver Island seats went to Social Credit," he said.

PREVIOUS HIGH

The 1969 results matched the 39 seats won by Social Credit in 1956 when they swamped a 32-seat house and had to place some of their own members on the same side of the floor as the 10 CCF, two Liberals and Labor MLA Tom Uphill.

In that election, Social Credit registered its previous high of 45.8 per cent of the popular vote.

Gloom and confusion were evident everywhere in the NDP camp as the late Wednesday count showed the party was able only to gain a half per cent from the 1966 result in rising to a 34 per cent popular vote despite its all-out effort.

GAGLARDI'S TOUGHEST

The Liberals dropped to 19 per cent from 20 last time.

Both opposition party heads had to swallow predictions of major gains for their parties in their first campaigns as leaders.

The overpowering response of the electorate to Bennett's appeal was demonstrated graphically in Kamloops where he made a personal appearance to ask for re-election of former highways minister Phil Gaglardi.

Gaglardi, who said he was in the toughest fight of his political career, stormed to the head of the Kamloops poll early and increased his 2,516-vote majority of 1966 long before all ballots were counted.

Similarly, Health Minister Loffmark came booming back with a bigger majority than his 3,192 margin in Vancouver-South and easily helped carry newcomer Mrs. Kripps to a Scored gain, wiping out Levi's byelection win for the NDP last year.

MAJORITIES REDUCED

Only a few of the Socred campaigners saw their previous majorities reduced, notably:

Minister Without Portfolio Mrs. Isabel Dawson who slipped from a margin of 1,359 to barely more than 200 in Mackenzie;

Education Minister Donald Brothers in Rossland-Trail whose margin was cut from 3,147 to 1,112;

And Speaker Murray in Prince Rupert who held on with less than 300 compared with 834 in 1966.

But other ministers who have been under sustained attack for Socred policies, such as Resources Minister Williston in Fort George and Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan in Chilliwack widened large margins by substantial increases.

Socred backbenchers who were reported in difficulties most frequently — partly through internal squabbles — had no trouble in persuading voters to re-elect them.

Ernie Lecours increased his majority in Richmond from 372 last time to 1,463 and Robert Wenman in nearby Delta did the same by boosting his 1,690 margin to 4,156.

Willis Jefcoat, whose Shuswap seat was universally expected to go to the opposition, stayed Social Credit with only a 327 drop in 1966 majority of 1,400.

PHIL'S VICTORY 'ANSWERS LIES'

GAGLARDI
. . . people won'

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Phil Gaglardi said Wednesday night his re-election to the British Columbia legislature was the answer to "the innuendos, the lies and the rumors" he claimed had been spread about him.

Gaglardi, who resigned as highways minister to become a minister-without-portfolio after opposition charges that he had mis-used a government plane and had been involved in land deals with his sons, said his re-election was a victory for the people.

"I am not the winner," he said. "The people are the winners."

Gaglardi, promised a full cabinet post again by Premier W. A. C. Bennett, told supporters here that all of the money used to finance his campaign came from local sources, "most of it from working people."

. . . BERGER, BARRETT

"to scare hell out of the Liberals" worked well.

"There were a lot of frightened people in the province . . . I can't think of anything we could have done differently," he said Wednesday night.

He told his bitter but resilient supporters than that his personal defeat "doesn't matter very much . . . but we have to consider the leadership."

Berger won the Vancouver-Burrard seat by 2,300 votes in 1966 along with Dr. Ray Parkinson, NDP health critic who was also defeated in Wednesday's election.

Berger had represented the Burrard area as a federal MP from 1962 to 1963, when he was defeated.

He appeared tired and resigned to his party's fate as returns poured into the NDP headquarters in New Westminster.

Among the ways the party could pick a leader are these: create an opening in the legislature and get Berger re-elected; pick a new leader from and by the legislative caucus; or hold a new leadership convention.

Barrett, easily re-elected in Coquitlam, struck a fighting note today.

He said he would continue his own personal fight "against sham, hypocrisy and doubletalk where and as it presents itself."

Israel Pleads Cause Of Jews in Arab Lands

From AP-Reuters

Israel's parliament called on all nations of the world today to help save the Jews of Iraq, Syria and Egypt "before it is too late." It also demanded an urgent United Nations investigation into the plight of Jews in Arab lands.

The Knesset was called out of summer recess for a special session to discuss the execution Monday of 15 alleged Iraqi spies, including two Jews. Nine other Jews were executed in Baghdad earlier this year.

The parliament unanimously approved a call to "all states and parliaments who upheld human rights, as well as to religious heads in the world, to take action without delay to save the Jews."

"Israel will not cease its efforts to save Jews in Arab lands."

Prime Minister Golda Meir accused the UN Human Rights Commission of "making a mockery of elementary rules of fairness" by failing to investigate the situation of Jews in Arab countries while conducting an investigation of alleged Israeli atrocities in occupied lands.

ENCOURAGES ARABS

She said the commission's investigation of Arab allegations of Israeli atrocities "in fact encouraged Iraqi rulers to go ahead with their policy of mock trials and hangings."

The 71-year-old prime minister then appealed to the United Nations and other world bodies to take "urgent action to save the Jewish communities in Arab countries, who are kept there as hostages and are virtually in prison." The only way to save them, she added, is to let them leave their countries of residence "before it is too late."

PREDICTS WAR

The 3,000 Jews in Iraq "are helplessly exposed to the blind hatred of the Arab states toward Israel," Mrs. Meir charged, Unable to defeat Israel in battle, "they oppress the weak, including women and children."

In Beirut, Lebanon, King Hussein of Jordan said in a newspaper interview war with Israel is inevitable "and the possibility exists of an explosion at any time."

Hussein's comments, printed by the paper Al Jarida, reflected his hardening line in the Middle East conflict.

"We are now prepared to take these blows and deal with them soundly," he said, adding that if the West refused to supply him with arms, he would turn elsewhere—an obvious reference to Moscow.

Hussein charged certain big powers had encouraged Israel to reject the Security Council resolution of November, 1967, which lays down the guidelines of a settlement.

"We are taking all this into consideration and are, in fact, reconsidering our stand," he declared, referring to Jordan's relations with the West.

Israel said its commandos struck deep in the Nile Valley Wednesday night for the fourth time in 10 months.

Money Not Wasted

TRAIL (CP) — Dell Valair, Independent candidate supported by University of British Columbia students' councillors came fourth in this South Okanagan riding but said the $3,000 spent by UBC students was not wasted.

He said he entered the campaign solely to highlight the problems in B.C.'s post-secondary education system.

Education Minister Donald Brothers' election majority by a margin only one third of what he got in 1966 showed that he could not "adequately answer people's questions on education," Valair said.

New Deal on Voting Rights Rumored for North Ireland

BELFAST (AP) — A leader of Northern Ireland's government was reported today to have promised wide-ranging civil rights legislation Wednesday night, including equal voting rights for Roman Catholics in local elections.

Development Minister Roy Bradford was understood to have given this pledge at a dinner to which visiting British Home Secretary James Callaghan invited a dozen persons representing all sides of the religious warfare which has bloodied the province.

A "one-man, one-vote" law for local elections has been one of the chief goals of the pro-Catholic civil rights movement whose campaign so inflamed Protestant militants. Because voting in local elections is based on property taxes and most property is owned by Protestants, the Catholics claim they are not represented on the local councils which hand out many jobs and decide who gets public housing.

CROWDS CHEER

Callaghan is the British government minister responsible for internal affairs in the United Kingdom, which includes Northern Ireland. He began a three-day fact-finding visit Wednesday.

Crowds of Protestants and Catholics cheered him as he toured areas of Belfast where there was arson, looting and street fighting the week before last.

Callaghan visited more riot-torn areas today. He also was to meet with Rev. Ian Paisley, the firebrand who leads the most militant Protestant faction.

"Perhaps Mr. Paisley will have something to say to me," Callaghan said. "I will certainly have something to say to Mr. Paisley."

One of Callaghan's first actions was to order a team of British doctors, scientists and technicians into Londonderry's Catholic Bogside district to investigate the effects of the CS tear gas that the police used here during the riots. There have been reports that many of those exposed to the gas two weeks ago, including number of children, are still suffering from diarrhea, vomiting and abdominal pains.

A home office spokesman said: "Reports show there could be some lasting effects which the gas was not supposed to have."

NO DICTATOR

Callaghan emphasized that he did not intend to dictate solutions to Northern Ireland's government or its people. But during lengthy talks with Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark and his cabinet, Callaghan was believed to have urged formation of a committee with strong legal powers to guard against discrimination along religious and other lines.

Ulster's Parliament, recalled from vacation Wednesday to discuss the riots which left eight persons dead, announced an impartial inquiry committee with legal powers to summon witnesses. It will be headed by a British judge, Sir Leslie Scarman, assisted by two Belfast businessmen, both qualified lawyers, one a Catholic the other a Protestant.

The parliamentary session was marred by a boycott by all but one of the 13 opposition members. They stayed away on the grounds the governing Unionists had lost control of the situation.

Lt.-Gen. Sir Ian Freeland, commander of the 6,000 British troops now responsible for Ulster's security, assured the controversial B-Special police they would not be disarmed or disbanded.

Gen. Freeland told the Specials their arms will be stored in central armories only for security reasons and will be issued when required for specific duties.

Texas Businessman Advances Floating Air, Sea Port Plan

NEW YORK (Reuters) — A Texas businessman plans to start building a combined floating international airport and shipping port in the Atlantic next year.

The space-age project — 30 miles off the New York waterfront—will have 14 runways, docking space for 480 ships, warehouses, office blocks and a hotel.

Its designer, Kenneth Bratcher, 49, told a news conference Wednesday night construction of the estimated $530,000,000 project will start March 31.

The ocean terminal built on a six-square mile floating table of steel and concrete inside a breakwater forming a protective lake against high seas, could begin limited operations in two years, he said. It will be completed within another three years.

A two-mile long and 300-foot wide runway would accommodate planes up to the size of Boeing 747 jumbo jets, while dock facilities could handle the largest tankers afloat, he added.

A 20-minute Hovercraft service is envisaged to take passengers to New York and other nearby metropolitan areas.

Bratcher, chairman of World-Wide Safety Corp., said the ocean complex would solve the problem of inadequate airport space, reduce city noise and pollution, and increase safety and efficiency.

The corporation already has raised several million dollars from overseas investors. "Finance will be the least of our problems," he said.

The U.S. Federal Aviation Administration has not officially backed the scheme but if had not raised any objections.

"The complex will be in international waters so that approval from U.S. agencies will not be necessary," Bratcher declared.

Uvic Course Spotlights Japanese

University of Victoria evening division this fall will include a series of lectures on the social structure, arts and language of Japan.

A brochure with details on course offerings for the fall and winter is now available from building M on the campus.

The lectures on Japan, intended mainly for people who plan to attend Expo 70 in Osaka next year, were arranged by Dr. Henry Warkentyne, who taught in Japan before joining the Uvic lingusitics department two years ago.

Lectures in evening division classes will begin in the second half of September. Registration must be completed a week before the start of classes.

Other courses range from silversmithing to real estate appraisal.

Evening division also offers great books discussions, the university film socity and the annual Monday evening lectures of the University Extension Association.

New titles include Faith Unlimited, a series where religious leaders will discuss their viewpoints, and Human Relations and Family Dynamics, a workshop on family counselling.

There are continuing courses in accounting, administrative management, psychiatric nursing, sales management, spoken French, computer science, statistics, effective reading and contemporary dance.

AREA SCHOOLS TO OPEN ON SCHEDULE

All Greater Victoria schools will open as planned Tuesday, even though additions and renovations to some of them are yet to be completed.

It had earlier been reported Gordon Head junior secondary and Willows elementary would open later than usual because projects there were delayed by a shortage of skilled labor and delay in arrival of structural steel.

District superintendent Jake Longmore said Wednesday the Willows kindergarten may not open until the end of September.

REGINA (CP) — D. G. Steuart, provincial treasurer and deputy premier of Saskatchewan's Liberal government today said he was pleased to see that "socialism was rejected so decisively in British Columbia."

Comparing Social Credit's return to power with Ed Schreyer's June 25 upset win over Walter Weir's Conservative forces in Manitoba, he said in an interview:

"This proves that what happened in Manitoba was probably a localized situation that did not have the national significance that some people had immediately written into it."

Highest Margin

NANAIMO (CP) — Mayor Frank Ney won this Vancouver Island seat with the highest majority achieved by any candidate in the riding in years. He finished up with some 400 votes over the NDP's Dave Stupich, who held the seat after the 1966 election by only 45 votes. Previous margins of 21 and 32 ballots kept Social Credit out of the area.

Necklace Stolen

PARIS (Reuters)—A diamond necklace valued at $360,000 was stolen from Cartiers, one of the smartest jewelers in Paris, police said today. It was taken from the store in the fashionable Rue de la Paix Tuesday by two English-speaking men and a pretty blonde, police said.

'My Cup Runneth Over . . . For Next 5 Years'

By PETER KIERNAN
The Canadian Press

KELOWNA — Premier Bennett got a new mandate from the people of British Columbia Wednesday and promptly sequestered himself in his home here.

The premier said he wanted to spend some time with his wife May, whom he described as a "political widow" throughout his campaign.

He did give one indication of change.

"The people have said they don't want elections every three years," said the 68-year-old premier. "So the next time they'll wait a little longer."

In response to congratulations from a party worker who told him he would not have to face another election for five years, said:

"Yes, and this time it will probably be another five years before there is another election."

He has averaged one election every three years since 1952 when he first formed his Social Credit government.

He said his stay in Kelowna would not be a holiday because, "there are always decisions to be made, whether I'm in Victoria or Kelowna."

The premier waited until little more than an hour after the polls closed at 8 before making his triumphant entrance at party headquarters here, where he announced: "My cup runneth over."

"This is even better than I anticipated," he said as the returns chalked up seat after seat for the Social Crediters.

When it was announced that controversial Minister-Without-Portfolio Phil Gaglardi had retained his Kamloops constituency in the face of hard-fought NDP and Liberal campaigns, Bennett raised his arm and cheered.

"I never had any doubts he would be returned."

During the campaign the premier disclosed he had a new cabinet portfolio planned for the former highways minister who resigned the highways portfolio after opposition criticism about land transactions and use of a government aircraft.

Bennett said when he called the election that the issue would be free-enterprise versus socialism, and in his election announcement cited the "challenge of socialism."

"They (the NDP) made a little impression in Manitoba. There, they caught the people sleeping and they tried to bring their troops in here but the people of British Columbia stopped socialism in its tracks."

At no time during the campaign, he said, did he have any fear of losing the election.

After all, he told a reporter, "would I call an election with two years left to run if I didn't think we would win?"

Later at a family gathering at his home here, he said he would take the opportunity to remain and "unwind a bit" from his campaign.

"You don't think you're getting wound up," he said. "But you can't help it."

Voter Afraid Of Losing What He Had

By DON MacLACHLAN

VANCOUVER (CP) — A political scientist who campaigned for the New Democrats says his professional view is that British Columbia's working class and Liberals were roused by Social Credit's anti-NDP campaign.

A preliminary glance at poll-by-poll results, he says, indicates Social Credit had much success — and the NDP its worst beating — in areas of "those with their foot on the first rung of the ladder of affluence."

Social Credit's long and vitriolic campaign against the "Marxian socialists" and the "wrecking crew," as Premier Bennett tabbed the NDP, undoubtedly took effect as he gained an increased majority.

And if the political scientist's assessment is accurate, then the campaign hit home with exactly the people Social Credit wanted it to — Liberals, Conservatives and uncommitted or infrequent voters.

●

Said Dr. Walter Young of University of British Columbia:

"They got the wind up. They didn't vote for Social Credit but against the NDP. In a sense, they were selfish; they were scared of losing what they had gained and were trying to preserve it."

The NDP lost six seats to Social Credit, including that of NDP Leader Tom Berger. The Liberals lost one — the so-called "safe" seat of Oak Bay, Liberal federally and Liberal for years provincially.

The Bennett campaign was aimed at one target: Convince voters that the choice was Social Credit or socialsim and a vote for a Liberal could mean the NDP slipping in through the back door.

There was nothing new to this tack on the part of Social Credit. It had been used for 17 years — and even before this election was called Social Crediters were setting up the NDP as a bogeyman.

●

A senior federal Liberal said two weeks before the vote that Liberals were having "real difficulty" trying to counteract the approach.

Despite Liberal Leader Pat McGeer's expressed optimism, the federal man doubted the Liberals could overcome the Bennett argument.

Wednesday, the Liberal share of the popular vote dropped to 19 per cent from 20. Social Credit's share rose by one per cent to 47. The NDP rose to 34 per cent from 33.5.

Bennett did have something to give the old anti-campaign campaign some immediacy: The formation of an NDP government in Manitoba several weeks back by Premier Ed Schreyer — who made a campaign visit to B.C.

"You'll get the same thing," said Social Crediters, going on to tell voters of the "ruin" that Manitoba faced under the NDP and the "mess" the former CCF government created in Saskatchewan.

●

Bennett — with effect — also turned against the NDP a one-day bus stoppage caused two weeks ago in Vancouver and Victoria by striking oil workers' pickets. The stoppage disrupted commuter travel.

To some extent, the NDP was forced onto the defensive by the Bennett campaign, replying to his attacks and trying to assure voters the NDP would not stall B.C.'s growing economy.

"It's a damn nuisance," said one NDP worker during the campaign. "Every day you've got to say 'No, we're not like that' and we've had to spend too much time responding to him."

That, too, was among the hopes of Social Credit leaders.

Dr. Young said that with public opinion polls forbidden during an election in B.C., there was no way to predict how the working-class vote would go.

●

But when these voters went to the ballot boxes, he said, they voted against the NDP — rather than for Social Credit — because Social Credit "just scared hell out of them."

"They are people who perceive themselves as moving up in life and fear they have something to lose. The result of their votes was a triumph of selfishness."

In the end, Social Credit won 39 seats, the NDP lost six and holds 11, the Liberals dropped one to hold five.

Social Crediters called it both a victory for Social Credit and a victory for free enterprise. Whatever they call it, it was the crushing defeat they sought for the New Democrats.

WHO GAINED WHAT

Summary of party gains:

Social Credit, 7.

From NDP—Kootenay, Nanaimo, Revelstoke-Slocan, Vancouver - Burrard (2), Vancouver South (1).

From Liberal—Oak Bay.

Unchanged—48.

Total—55.

STROM PRAISES WIN

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta Premier Harry Strom has congratulated Premier Bennett on his sweeping election win.

Strom, who also heads a Social Credit administration, said:

"It is an indication that Bennett has been carrying out the programs and giving the people of B.C. the kind of government they want.

"And I'm sure it must be very gratifying to him after the number of years he's served the people, that they're still solidly behind him."

A SHRUG AND BIG SMILES. NDP leader Tom Berger, with wife Beverley, offers only a shrug with defeat in Vancouver Burrard. While he consoles his workers, there's laughter in the Social Credit headquarters of former footballer Herb Capozzi, left, winner in Vancouver - Centre, and Attorney General Les Peterson, returned in Vancouver - Little Mountain.

CHOICE IMPORTS to Canada are, from the left, Mrs. Helleni Lea Junttila, from Finland, and Mrs. Edith Maglio and Mrs. Ingrid Hildegard McColl, both from Germany. They were among 39 new Canadians from 14 countries who took the oath of allegiance in Victoria's new Citizenship Court, 816 Government Street, Wednesday. (Halkett photo.)

New Citizens 'Courageous'

Canada has benefitted greatly because "people of so many races and cultures have had the courage and enterprise to adopt this land of ours," Judge Norman Orreck told 39 Victorians who became Canadian citizens Wednesday.

The newcomers "bring with them arts and cultures and fine traditions that will enrich life in Canada."

Orreck said the new Canadians could not vote in Wednesday's provincial election because they were not on the voters' list.

"But it will be your duty and privilege to vote in all future elections. This is your country now — yours to improve and yours to uphold through your choice of the best leaders and administrators."

The new Canadians, with countries of origin in brackets, are:

Jao Jose Argau (Portugal), Ioannis Aggelou (Greece), Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Jean Bombezin (France), Kenneth N. Beattie (United States), Mrs. Marie-Jose Buyens (Belgium).

Bendt Folmer Caspersen (Denmark), Jozsef Imra Czako (Hungary), Mr. and Mrs. Jose De Lima (Portugal), Charles De Witt (Indonesia), Mrs. Charles De Witt (Netherlands), Mr. and Mrs. Enrich Julius Driesen (Germany), Mrs. Leonore Joanna Fichtner (Germany), Mrs. Margarete Hagen (Germany).

How Have-Nots Can Have Amid Welfare's Red Tape

By SUSAN RILEY

A man can own a home, have money in the bank and still be entitled to social welfare.

He can own a car too, as long as it isn't worth more than $1,000.

And, as long as he is not earning any more than $30 a month and is "unemployable" he is eligible for welfare.

The facts about social assistance—how to get it and who can get it—are outlined in simple language in a recently-published booklet compiled by the Victoria Community Action Group.

DETAILED CHART

The booklet, designed to guide people through the tangle of beaureaucratic red tape, also outlines the benefits that are available.

For example, every child in a family on welfare is entitled to $35 a year for clothes, another $15 for school supplies, and another $15 for recreation expenses.

A detailed chart shows the amount of assistance a family can receive, depending on size of the family and number of parents.

A single parent with nine children and no job is eligible for $397 a month. A two-parent family with eight children would receive $389.

The booklet also explains deviations from welfare rules.

In many cases, including family break-up, medical emergencies or rent allowances, extra money can be obtained if the family appeals to the individual social worker.

Throughout the booklet, which is being distributed free to community groups in the city, social workers are depicted as compassionate, reasonable people.

The booklet was compiled by Mrs. Susan Talbot and a group of community "advocates" over a two-month period.

The Community Action Group is a number of nonprofessionals who act as liaison between the welfare recipient and the social worker.

Concert Band Performs Sunday

Edgar Hemingway and his 30-piece concert band will perform in Beacon Hill Park at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

The program will feature music from Broadway's Fiddler on the Roof, Oliver and the Sound of Music.

This is the second-last in a series of summer park concerts co-sponsored by the city of Victoria, local musicians and representatives of the recording industry.

Offices, Stores Closed Monday

Federal, provincial and municipal government offices and major department stores will be closed Monday, Labor Day.

However the provincial museum will be open from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Showers and isolated thunderstorms were forecast for inland areas of B.C. today as an upper level system drifts eastward toward Alberta. Coastal districts were mainly sunny, however, as a ridge of high pressure continues to build over the coast. This ridge will produce a clearing trend in the interior of the province tonight and sunny warmer weather there on Friday. A Pacific disturbance will spread rain across the northern mainland Friday afternoon but the south coast will be mostly sunny.

DOMINION PUBLIC WEATHER OFFICE 9 A.M. FORECASTS

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

The famous physician-scientist, Dr. William F. Petersen, discovered through years of research and study that when storms and cold fronts (and other weather changes) come down on a community, the body tissues of its inhabitants possble may not get as much oxygen as when the weather is on an even keel.

When there is a lack of oxygen our body tissues, unwholesome and disagreeable changes in our bodies may occur: our mental and physical responses and our body rhythm may be affected. Dr. Petersen made tests on people to learn how stressful weather affected them.

He discovered that more potentially psychotic persons become psychotic, more pregnant women nearing their term began to have earlier labor pains, more people became sick and more sick people died.

Goods Gets New Chance

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders announced Wednesday that they're going to give place kicker Bill Goods a five-day trial.

Goods was available after failing a Western Football Conference test with Edmonton Eskimos, who obtained him from Saskatchewan Roughriders.

He can handle linebacking and fullback chores, but probably will get a chance to show Stampeders his place kicking ability.

Missed converts by Larry Robinson were costly Monday night, when Hamilton Tiger-Cats edged Calgary, 27-26, in a Canadian Football League interlocking game.

Esks Release Canadian Vet

EDMONTON (CP) — Howie Schumm, 29-year-old Canadian veteran who has played both as a linebacker and a defence back, was released Tuesday by Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference.

A veteran of 11 seasons, Schumm was released to make room on the roster for Larry Kerrychuck, a rookie quarterback and defence back who was put on the 30-day injured list at the start of the season.

Schumm, chosen by his teammates as the player "who contributed the most with the least recognition," at the end of last season, is willing to play for another club.

Comox Takes Fourth Spot

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — A team from the Royal 22nd Regiment stationed at Soest, Germany, won the Canadian Armed Forces softball championship with a 6-2 won-lost record.

Four teams tied for second with 5-3 records, but judges awarded placings on the runs-for-against system.

CFB Cold Lake, Alta., was placed second, Bagotville, Que., third, Comox, B.C., fourth and Rockcliffe Ont. fifth.

Comox whipped Rockcliffe, 8-1, in a last-round game.

Expos to Recall Five Mounties

MONTREAL (UPI) — Montreal Expos' general manager Jim Fanning has announced that the Expos will recall five players from Vancouver Mounties, their Pacific Coast League farm club, on Sept. 1.

The players — pitchers Carl Morton and Carroll Sembera, infielders Garry Jesdadt and Angel Hermoso, and outfielder Jim Fairy — are to join the Expos in San Francisco for a series against the Giants.

Under major league rules, clubs are allowed to add players to their rosters after Sept. 1.

South Island Belt of Parks Under Study

A master plan to provide a $3 million 26,000-acre greenbelt from Port Renfrew to North Saanich is under study by a regional district board committee.

The massive park concept was presented to the full board Wednesday afternoon by A. H. "Tony" Roberts, director of the Capital Region Planning Board.

With 23,300 acres already in public ownership, Roberts urged acquisition of a further 2,700 acres to provide the Lower Island with a series of 14 parks linked wherever possible by woodland or rural trails.

Roberts also recommended the various municipalities in the capital region seriously consider keeping specified areas at a low density development level to provide green areas between the actual park sites.

"The entire proposal is a long-range effort," Roberts said. "The objectives are long-term, but I think they can be achieved if we make a start now."

Also in the report was a recommendation that the regional board seek changes in its letters patent to enable maintenance work to be carried out on existing parks and to provide for the building of restroom facilities.

At present the regional group is confined to parkland purchases only. It is not permitted to spend money on maintenance other than of an "emergency nature."

CANADA COUNCIL grant of $4,875 has been awarded University of Victoria geographer Dr. David Chuen-Lai to study relocation of industry in the satellite towns of Hong Kong. Dr. Lai said a study of the government-planned industrial towns, which were established to meet the problems of overpopulation and land shortages, could be useful in future policies for Asia and North America. The geographer is a former faculty member at the University of Hong Kong.

Driver Saved As Car Burns

Lawrence Glowasky, 25, of 1790 Ruby Road, suffered two broken legs Wednesday when his car flipped and burned on the Trans-Canada Highway near Wilkinson Road.

His condition is satisfactory at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

The car struck a rock bluff partially up an embankment, about 8 p.m. It burst into flames shortly after bystanders pulled Glowasky from his car.

Stocker Driver Nears 200 Mark

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Bobbie Allison set an unofficial stock car speed mark of 197.573 m.p.h. on the new Alabama International Motor Speedway Monday and said that 200 m.p.h could be reached under the right conditions.

The official world record is 190.706 m.p.h., set by Cale Yarborough in qualifying for the Firecracker 400 at Daytona, Fla., in July.

Cuba Unbeaten

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Cuba beat the United States 2-1 and won the world amateur baseball tournament Tuesday night. Cuba finished the tournament unbeaten in 10 games. The United States' record was 9-1.

ROME (AP) — Nino Benvenuti's manager said today that the world middleweight champion will defend his title against little known but unbeaten Fraser Scott of Seattle in Naples, Italy, Oct. 4.

Labor Calls Special Meet Over Death

The death of a picketing oil worker spurred the executive council of the B.C. Federation of Labor to call a special meeting with oil workers' representatives in Vancouver today.

Federation Secretary-Treasurer Ray Haynes said the meeting was called "to map out a decisive plan of action to deal with the present crisis.

"The labor movement is incensed by the tragedy which it has seen of a trade unionist being killed by a scab truck driver while the union man was peacefully picketing the strike-bound Shell refinery."

Haynes added, "We intend to take whatever action is necessary to bring about a satisfactory settlement to this long and bitter dispute."

He said the federation "is determined that the ugly practice in industry of utilizing scab labor in labor disputes must come to an end."

$1,217 Taken By Burglars

Thieves broke into Pacific Finance Ltd., 2029 Douglas Street, on Wednesday, and stole $1,217, city police said today.

They gained entry by smashing a 12 by 24 reinforced window located at the rear of the building.

Missing from the premises were two metal cash boxes, one containing $1,167 and the other $50 in bills; a radio and a brief case containing documents.

Some of the documents were found scattered on Kings Road, just west of Blanshard Street, police said.

Socreds Win Battle For North Island

There were tight races in the three north Island ridings Wednesday but the results mirrored the Social Credit slaughter of the opposition across British Columbia.

Socreds took the three seats with a cabinet minister, a doctor and a bathtub-hippy mayor.

Socred Frank Ney, the 50-year-old, go-go mayor of Nanaimo won the New Democratic seat held tenuously through two elections by David Stupich.

Ney won Nanaimo by more than 400 votes.

Stupich defeated Ney by 45 votes in 1966 and held a 19-vote margin in 1963.

'GREATEST DECADE'

"A 450-vote margin may not seem like much but it's the biggest by a right wing candidate in Nanaimo in 35 years," said Ney today.

Fresh from one of the hardest-fought campaigns in B.C., Ney is now preparing to defend his mayoralty title in December.

"I'll be running for mayor and I'll still be piloting bathtubs as well as acting as MLA," said Ney.

NEY
. . . beats Stupich

"This showing on Vancouver Island will mean the greatest decade in our history."

Final totals showed Ney with 7,953 votes, Stupich, 7,530 and Liberal Bob Plecas with 703.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell retained his Comox seat, but not without a fight from NDP candidate Harry Harris.

Campbell who won the seat by 1,200 votes in 1966 saw his majority reduced to 871 votes Wednesday.

Campbell polled 7,220 votes, Harris 6,349, Liberal Cookie Chown 2,076. The turnout in Comox was 64.6 per cent.

DETERMINED BID

In Alberni, incumbent Dr. Howard McDiarmid beat back a determined bid by NDP Johnny Squires for the seat McDiarmid took from Squires in 1966.

McDiarmird polled 7,069 votes to 6,235 votes for Squires and 1,245 votes for the young Liberal candidate Eugene Romaniuk.

McDiarmid, in 1966, won by 1,718 but Squires ate away two-thirds of that majority this time.

School Ignores Closure Order

Despite an order to close August 1, Saturna Island Free School will open September 8 with 22 students, director Tom Durris said Tuesday.

The school, established in September, 1968, was ordered closed in June by Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, director of the Greater Victoria metropolitan board of health.

Durrie is fighting the ruling in the British Columbia Appeal Court, on the grounds that the health board has no jurisdiction in the Gulf Islands.

MAN WARNED TO REFORM

COURTENAY — A Victorian appearing in court here was warned by Judge John Ryland he could be charged with being an habitual criminal if he continued his criminal activities.

Wayne Grey was sentenced to six months on a charge of false pretences.

Court was told Grey's record showed 82 convictions, 60 of which were for false pretences.

The last charge involved a $220 cheque tendered on a credit union account with insufficient funds to cover it.

"You have been in every institution in this province," said the judge. "Drink seems to be ruining your life."

Judge Ryland noted Grey had a wife and two children.

Leaving Scene Costs Man $100

DUNCAN — Allen Bergstrom of Duncan was fined $100 in court for failing to remain at the scene of an accident on Saturday.

Bergstrom also had his licence suspended for one year. The charge resulted when Bergstrom left the scene of a two-car collision at Sherman Road and the Trans-Canada Highway. The other car was driven by Ralph Quance of Duncan.

Court was told Bergstrom was arrested after a private citizen followed him and informed police.

Indian Author Gives Book

MONTREAL (CP) — Indian author George Clutesi of Port Alberni Wednesday presented a copy of his recent book Potlatch, to Andrea Laforet, head of the Indians of Canada Pavilion at Montreal's Man and his World exhibition.

The book is about social customs of west coast Indians.

Clutesi, a Nootka Indian, said in an interview many Indian customs, including potlatchs, were once forbidden by law and considered by the church to be "paganisms."

He said a potlatch was a lavish feast given by one chief or clan to another on ceremonial occasions. It had no religious significance.

Strachan Survives 'Sweep' But Socred Seeks Recount

DUNCAN — Dr. Charles Ennals said Wednesday night he will seek a recount of the results of the election in Cowichan-Malahat which he lost by 253 votes to New Democrat Robert Strachan.

Ennals said the results of the hospital polls and absentee ballots would be interesting.

"The results of the recount will be even more interesting."

Strachan received 7,132 votes over Ennal's 6,879. Liberal Jim Bigsby polled 874 and independent Kenneth Hasanen, 75. A total of 21,073 voters were eligible.

'UNDER THE RUG'

In 1963 Strachan received 5,646 votes to Social Credit candidate Pat Rogers' 4,412. Liberal Joseph Haddock got 783.

Strachan said he was pleased he had been returned to office but shocked at the loss of provincial leader Tom Berger and the "Social Credit sweep."

"But a sweep does not necessrily mean it was clean sweep," Strachan said. "It may mean sweeping everything back under the rug again."

He said the overwhelming victory for Social Credit was a result of the success of Premier Bennett's program of "hysteria and fear."

He did not see "much future for society where a person who is told he can have things if he votes a certain way or succumbs to bully boy tactics."

Strachan said the people in Cowichan-Malahat voted for what they wanted. But he hoped "those mill workers who are unemployed this winter, those teachers with inadequate funds to do the job they feel should be done, and those people with serious social problems, but who voted for Social Credit, do not complain.

"They have no right to protest any hardship."

'ECONOMIC UNION'

Strachan said Berger was a first-class member of the legislature and he hoped he would stay on as party leader. He would not speculate on who might become house leader.

Ennals said it is evident that Strachan "has a very large personal following in this area and I respect that." He said he would welcome Tom Berger as an opponent in Cowichan-Malahat if Strachan decided within the next few years to retire.

The 32-year-old surgeon, who lost twice before in Oak Bay riding to a Liberal, said it was obvious that large numbers of people now would like to see Vancouver Island "develop as an economic union."

This was an obvious reference to the good showing he made plus the fact that NDP Dave Stupich was defeated in Nanaimo by Mayor Frank Ney of the Social Credit Party. It has been an issue here that Cowichan-Malahat has suffered economically during Strachan's 17 years in office under a Socred government.

"Future elections and by-elections in this area will be marked with a greater enthusiasm on the part of people who appreciate progress and individual initiative."

He predicted that the Liberal Party—which dropped one seat in Oak Bay and received only five in the next Legislature—"will cease to be a factor in provincial politics."

Bigsby said he agreed with provincial leader Pat McGeer when he said the people of B.C. had not voted for Social Credit but against the NDP. He was confident that the NDP failure would mean success to the Liberals in the future.

He said towards the end of the campaign there seemed to be a swing towards the government side. Strachan admitted too that constituents here had begun to react to "province-wide fear and hysteria the premier deliberately spread."

Mr. Bennett Does It Again

MR. BENNETT HAS WON A RESOUNDING political victory, in some ways the greatest in his career. In an election campaign which brought out more doubts of Social Credit success than have been heard in many years—even some of his cabinet ministers were pessimistic—the Premier not only increased his seats in the House, but his total vote and percentage vote. His capture of the traditionally Liberal seat in Oak Bay was an extra scoop of ice cream on his Okanagan apple pie.

The reason for this sweeping reversal of NDP and Liberal hopes is apparently a simple one. There were many policy debates, competitive promises and local side issues such as Blanshard Street, Pat Bay Highway, school and hospital financing, and the personal records of some of his ministers. But the salient point on which Mr. Bennett hung his whole appeal to the people was the issue of "Marxist-Socialism" versus free enterprise.

Grossly exaggerated though this over-simplification was, it was overwhelmingly effective. Opposition candidates could not break through the smoke screen. The people did not want Socialism, so they voted Social Credit. As Mr. Bennett puts it, "We have stopped Socialism dead in its tracks." Mr. McGeer, in his post-election remarks, recognized this pivotal factor, and Mr. Berger saw the results as "a vote against Socialism more than anything else."

Mr. Bennett deserves every credit for his remarkable achievement, which crowns his 28 years in the Legislature with fresh laurels His concentration of the contest on one imposed issue, his massive advertising drive, his personal energy and magnetism, carried the day.

It now remains for the Social Credit Party to implement the mandate it has been given, and we may hope that the recent claims to be more interested in people than in things will be interpreted in programs to that end, after many years of a heavily materialistic administration.

This was a hard-fought election, waged in the best tradition of the democratic system. All candidates merit congratulations on their campaigns. Many of the winners know they have been in a fight, and their victories will be all the sweeter for the obstacles overcome.

A New Look at Bail Regulations

IN HIS ANNOUNCEMENT THIS week of government plans for a major overhaul of the Criminal Code in the next few years, starting this fall, Justice Minister Turner understood the need for reform in the law respecting bail. The overhaul will be undertaken by a national law reform commission and will be more extensive than the amendments voted at the last session and implemented this month in various particulars.

The intent of bail, or of post-arrest detention, is to assure the appearance of an arrested person for trial. Mr. Turner recognizes the necessity of holding some individuals in jail, lest they disappear before trial or, allowed liberty, endanger the public. But he expresses the view that the choice of release on bail or of confinement should not be determined by the amount the man can raise.

The Canadian announcement comes at a time when the United States Congress has in prospect a highly controversial proposal calling for preventive detention. This would be invoked to deny bail to a defendant whose offence fell into the category of a "dangerous crime", such as assault, robbery, rape and the sale of narcotics; to offenders charged with at least two crimes of violence; to narcotic addicts charged with any crime of violence; and to any persons attempting to threaten witnesses or jurors regardless of the offence. This would expand substantially the United States application of preventive detention in capital cases and cases which are being appealed.

The application of such legislation would keep an accused person in custody pending trial — and it is for this reason that the suggestion is under attack. The basic criticism centres on the impropriety of making a person serve time before he is proved guilty.

The American debate on the issue should be pertinent to any Canadian study of bail, for which the minister of justice has sought reform.

Master or Servant?

THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT's move to obtain a survey of the feasibility of a common data processing centre for the municipalities of the Capital Region is a logical one. Victoria has its own computer for processing accounts and other information, Saanich contracts some of its work out to a private data-processing firm. And when or if the other local governments find a need for this advanced form of housekeeping they could be expected to make their own arrangements. Another department of duplication would thus be added to the many duplications which the divided state of Greater Victoria still inflicts on the paying public.

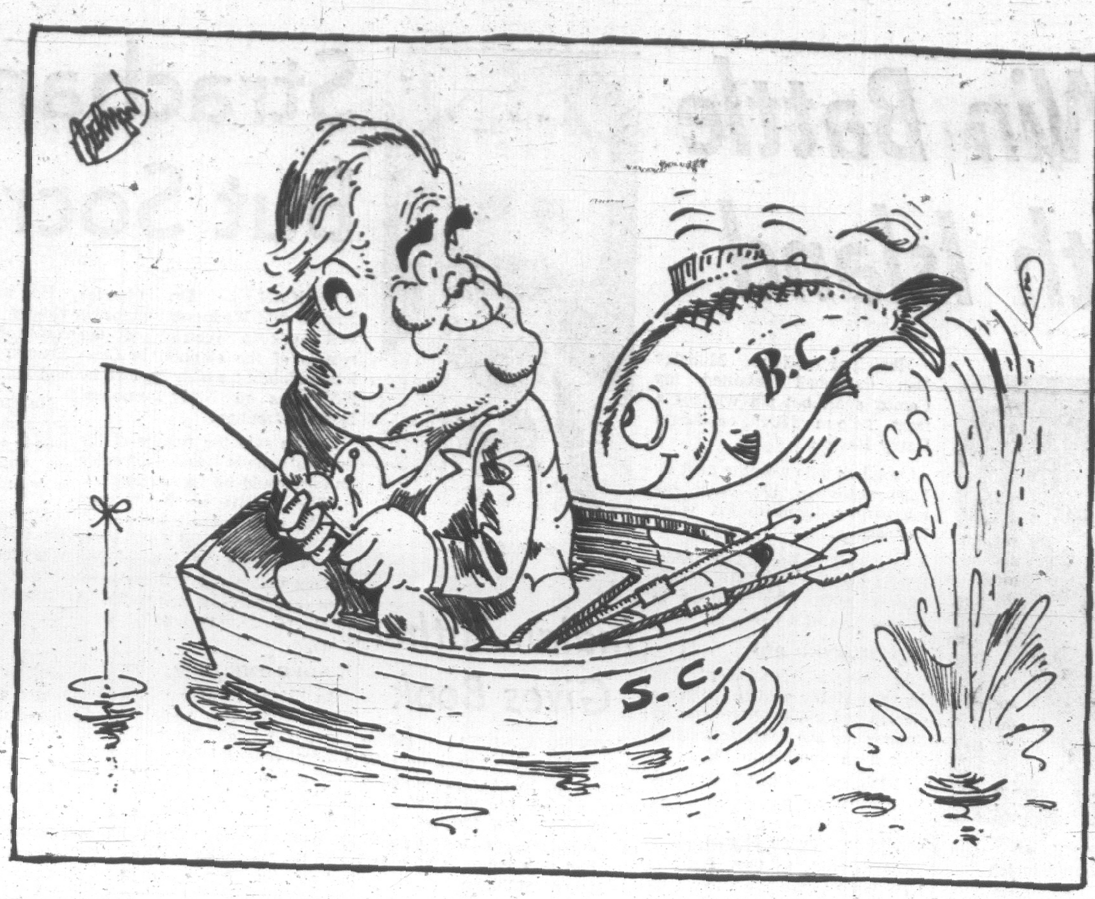
It would be a very natural step for all data-processing work to be placed under the Capital Regional District Board, which could set up a neutral office to handle the requirements of all the local municipalities. Eventually the logic of the machine might over-rule the sentiment of the fractured-community concept, and a great deal of the work could be coalesced—another step toward inevitable amalgamation.

It would be ironic indeed if closer integration of the municipalities should come about through the influence of a computer—a sort of electronic adviser with unanswerable logic — rather than that the people themselves should see the desirability of integration and then obtain a computer to assist with the work. We still, of course, have a choice. It will be much more dignified and satisfying if we switch to "Manual" and hold it there to chart our course, rather than abdicate to the robot our responsibility to make decisions.

A UN For Animals

THE WORLD ANIMAL ORGANIZATION, with headquarters in Vienna, has brought to notice the absence of an adequate international agency to protect animals along the lines followed by the SPCA in this country. At present many cruelties go uncontrolled in some nations and lack of universally enforced rules jeopardizes the preservation of some species. For that reason the WAO seeks general endorsement as a UN agency for animals.

The case made by the WAO deserves consideration. North Americans are familiar with the fight to save the whooping crane; we know of the fate of the passenger pigeon, the great herds of buffalo which once roamed the plains and now survive only in sancturaries, and other species which have disappeared under man's heedless slaughter. For both wild and domestic animals some effective protective agency is needed if, indeed, humans are to be encouraged or required to be humane.



A HABITABLE WORLD

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Fewer Toys and More Necessities

PRIME MINISTER TRUDEAU has put in his usual clear style a proposition which I tried to state, and stated badly, a few weeks ago. Using a vivid metaphor, he says that the Canadian people must decide whether they want to visit a summer beach equipped with stylish bathing suits, speed boats, transistor radios and other expensive toys only to find that they can't swim because the water is polluted. If the water is to be cleansed they may have to give up some of the toys to pay the cost.

Hutchison

This simple analogy presents the choice before us and it is not confined to the obvious problem of pollution. It is a choice between individual and collective spending over the whole range of society.

The prime minister has made his own choice and asks us to make ours. He favors more collective spending even if it means less private goods than we could have otherwise. Our most urgent need, for the time being, he thinks, is large investment in what you might call the capital of society, and also in its victims, the poor and ignorant.

Who can deny that proposition, when our capital is running down, when we are like a man who buys champagne instead of mending his leaky roof and feeding his children? The most important and therefore the most neglected fact of our time is that at the rate we are going now our planet, according to the United Nations' experts, will become poisonous and uninhabitable within a century or so. Long before then not only our beaches but our cities will be unfit for human occupation.

Falling Standards

We boast that our standard of living constantly rises, and so it does in the measurement of gadgets and luxuries. But in more significant terms—in terms of clean air and water, for instance, in terms of livable cities, crime-free streets, happy people and civilized life generally — the standard has started to fall already. In terms of mental serenity, freedom from fear, peace between nations and classes within nations, the standard in this nuclear age has hit a new low.

While all the facts are plain enough, we still imagine that we can somehow escape them by acquiring more luxuries as if, to repeat Mr. Trudeau's parable, a bathing suit were any use if you dare not swim or a fine house any comfort if you can't breathe. The truth, in short, is that we need more essentials and, apart from the poor, can do very well without many more gadgets, at least until we have protected our capital from erosion.

What else does Mr. Trudeau mean when he bounces lightly, too lightly, off the real problem? He says, to begin with, that his government doesn't intend to raise taxes if they can be avoided, though he makes no promise on that score. But he knows that the extra money required for the protection of our capital must come from the taxpayers one way or another. . If it doesn't come from the federal government it will have to come from the provinces or their creatures, the municipalities. In any case, it comes out of the same pocket.

That is why we cannot expect any cut in our total taxes however they are distributed and collected. But at this point our governments encounter the baffling contradictions of human nature, the raw stuff of politics.

Public Demands

On the one hand, the public demands larger state expenditures of all sorts, some necessary, some not, along with ever-increasing private expenditures. On the other, it resists higher taxes and it is politically impossible (no matter what the economists may say) to raise them beyond a certain level which we are now approaching and perhaps have reached.

Of course, the thing is not as simple as that. The public, I believe, would pay for vital expenditures on our deteriorating environment if it understood how vital they are, as it certainly understands in the case of pollution. It suspects, however, and rightly, that too much money is wasted on mere overhead, on a vast bureaucratic apparatus, on the endless shuffling of paper between little green men in celluloid collars behind the stone walls of Ottawa.

Unfair to Civil Service

This is unfair to our civil service, one of the best in the world, but Mr. Trudeau himself has admitted that overhead costs have got completely out of hand. He is cutting them, despite the screams of an opposition that always preached economy so long as it hurts no one and is prepared to grapple with any problem so long as the solution is painless and costs no votes.

If Mr. Trudeau can economize in non-essentials, if he can convince us that money is not being wasted, then he will find, I think, that we are ready to finance the essentials, that we prefer clean water to toys, the environment to the luxuries, the real living standard to the counterfeit. Or if Mr. Trudeau is wrong in his judgment of us, his government will not last long — a small concern in history — and a habitable nation and planet will not last long, either, which is a rather large concern for human beings, living and yet unborn.

FROM HERZLIYA, ISRAEL

By C. L. SULZBERGER

Peking, Jerusalem's Unintentional Ally

ALTHOUGH Communist China is trying earnestly to gain influence in the Arab world and especially among its guerrilla movements, it can be seriously argued that at this moment Peking is Jerusalem's best ally. Certainly Russia is never going to let its Arab clients get out of hand and risk another Middle Eastern confrontation while it has 700 million angry Chinese at its back.

Sulzberger

Israel regards Moscow as the key to its present calculations. Not only did the Kremlin arm the Arabs for the 1967 crisis but misjudged their intentions, fed them false information and, to its horror, spurred them into a war for which they weren't ready. Hundreds of millions of dollars worth of Soviet equipment was consequently lost and had to be replaced — this time accompanied by large training missions.

From Russia's viewpoint — if hardly anyone else's save for Egypt — the greatest strategic loss was closure of the Suez Canal. The United States and Europe found they could get on nicely without the famous cut but the U.S.S.R. needs it to support Indian Ocean commitments, to back up Red Sea infiltration efforts, and to give emergency help to its limited Far East fleet.

Israel reckons on this Soviet embarrassment in postulating strategy. Its formula is simple: no peace, no canal. Israeli troops are on the canal, a basic cease-fire line from the Six-Day War, and they will only withdraw in exchange for a permanent settlement. Israel doesn't seriously contemplate the chance that Russian troops might help an Egyptian army storm back into Sinai because, no matter how much Moscow might proclaim limited goals, this carries too much risk of showdown with the U.S.A.

Shrinking Pawn

As a pawn on the superpower chessboard, the Middle East's value is beginning to decline. Few nations are vitally interested in the Suez Canal. The threat of an Arab oil embargo has been exposed as a myth because the petroleum sheikhs have to sell in a buyer's market.

And even Suez has a lower priority on the Kremlin scale than China, simmering East Europe or the vastly expensive arms race. Russian commanders must be further deterred by the knowledge that never in Soviet history has their country mounted a war in a land which doesn't share a common border.

Certainly if the immediate attentions of external powers continue to diminish in the Middle East, this area — while remaining a crisis area — could become increasingly extraneous to other international matters. Palestine is a partitioned land and no partition scars have yet healed this century. But all of them — Germany, India, Vietnam, Korea, Ireland — are more removed from the maelstrom of world war.

It is beginning to seem as if both the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. are signalling that they have no intention of actually putting their own troops into any Middle Eastern ruckus. Each wants to be sure that its clients can avoid extermination so both indicate an intention of giving their little allies enough arms to look after themselves without being wiped out. That is all.

The odd thing about the Palestine conflict is that it comprises two wars — that between Israel and Egypt which involves the most arms and men, and the civil war of the Palestinian succession, between Israel and Jordan. The Israel - Egypt war, although the largely uninhabited Sinai Desert battlefield is huge, has little real impact on the Egyptian people.

Israel's war with Egypt is essentially juridical and should, were logic to prevail, be capable of settlement. But wars are rarely famed for other than explosive logic. The civil war is different. It involves the contest between former Trans-Jordan and the new state of Israel for the territory of ancient Palestine.

Isolation Required

Someday, if this region can be strikingly isolated from the greater international conflict involving China, Russia and America, it may eventually be able to achieve the outline of a rational settlement — just as, some day, similarly rational settlements will assume shape in Kashmir and Cyprus. When that time comes, maybe years hence, some kind of regional economic development must be arranged among the Arab states, Israel and Egypt, all of which have much to contribute.

But dreaming of this is like dreaming of the moment when Irish partition can be ended by admitting both the United Kingdom and the Irish Republic into the Common Market, making South and North Ireland equal states in "Europe."

"I GOT A LOT OF THINGS TO DO TODAY!"

Looking Back

From the Times, Aug 28, 1909.

Strawberry Vale is to be supplied with telephone connections. The residents of the district have long wanted this connection with the city and recently a meeting was held when the subject was gone into fully. The telephone company agreed to begin work at once on the line. The extension of the line to this part of the Saanich municipality will be a great convenience to residents in transacting business in the city.

The Wrong Czech Road

New York Times

Just a year ago Czechoslovakia, a member of the Warsaw Pact and of Comecon, was invaded by hundreds of thousands of troops representing its Soviet and satellite "allies." They marched in under cover of the brazen falsehood that they had been invited by Czechoslovak "party and government leaders."

The lie was so transparent that Moscow has had to abandon it. Instead the present quisling "ruler" in Prague, Gustav Husak, has just offered the grotesque argument that it was Alexander Dubcek, the Czechoslovak communications media and Radio Free Europe that had forced a reluctant Soviet Union into this distasteful act.

Those whose memories go gack to the 1930's will recall that a similar justification was offered by Adolf Hitler every time his Nazi war machine destroyed the sovereignty of another neighboring state.

Enormity Magnified

The passage of a year has magnified rather than diminished the enormity of the betrayal of Aug. 20, 1968, and of the worldwide shock waves that still reverberate from it.

Revelations since that tragic night make it plain that, just before the invasion, the insecure Kremlin leaders stood at a historic fork in the road of international development. That they took the wrong branch might be admitted privately now even by some of those who made the decision and have had to live with the bitter consequences.

It is now known, for example, that the Soviet aggression against Czechoslovakia took place the day after President Johnson had accepted an invitation to visit the Soviet Union and to initiate Soviet-American missile control negotiations. Those plans had to be scrapped, of course, when news of the aggression reached Washington.

Helped Nixon

Moreover, the new atmosphere thus created helped Richard M. Nixon with the Presidency of the United States. The missile negotiations have not yet begun and the dangerous arms race is a year further along in technical development.

In part, this year's battles on the Soviet-Chinese border also flowed from the invasion of Czechoslovakia. Peking, understandably, saw a threat to its own security in the Brezhnev Doctrine—the Kremlin's assertion of a Soviet right to intervene in any Socialist country whenever Moscow desires. And last month's unprecedented Romanian welcome for President Nixon had roots stretching back to the country's dismay and anger at the rape of Czechoslovakia.

Never the Same

The Guardian, Manchester

A moment of parliamentary history. David Kerr, the bearded Labor MP for Wandsworth Central, appeared at the house in a beach shirt—no hula girls, but an open neck and the tail flapping outside his trousers. Alarums and excursions, taunts and challenges. Would he, wouldn't he, go into the Chamber without jacket and without tie?

The quick answer was that he did, stayed a while, then re-emerged without reproach. On a day when the heat had taken the appetite out of politics and the terrace was swarming with Ascot hats and cotton frocks drinking Mr. Speakers' tea, the heresy soon caught on. Half a dozen MPs or more followed the good doctor's example. And Westminster, begging Leo Abse's peacock pardon, will never be quite the same.

Can We Wait for the Tired Old Admirals to Fade Away?

By GEORGE C. WILSON

Seven days in August, when looked at as a whole, tell a lot about what is really at the heart of the debate about military spending.

On a Saturday, hundreds of thousands of young people rode, hitch-hiked and walked to a music festival in upstate New York.

To them, the Pentagon is just that crazy big house on the Potomac where the generals and admirals keep yelling, "The Russians are coming." Today's young people don't believe that — never have. Many of them were born after World War II.

Sunday, about 120,000 people jammed into Dulles Airport outside Washington to watch an air show. The military showed off its best, all right, but the atmosphere was that of a fiesta — not of a grim show of military might.

●

Ecept for the gray-templed air force colonels who looked lovingly on the P-47 they flew in the last war and marvelled at the C-5A flying warehouse designed for the next one the people went to the air show as they go to the Smithsonian.

On Monday an admiral in charge of navy long-range planning intoned solemnly at an invitation-only seminar that relating domestic and military spending "is dead wrong".

He said social needs should be looked at independent.y and funded independently. He rejected the idea of arranging national priorities under one heading.

●

On Tuesday morning Adm. Thomas H. Moorer — the top officer in the U.S. Navy — said the Soviet Union is laying down "a real and substantial challenge to free world maritime supremacy." That same day the Pentagon's research director said it would be dangerous to cut back further on defence research and development.

On Thursday defence secretary Melvin R. Laird announced a $3 billion slash in military spending and said Congress was forcing him into it, dangerous as the cut will be.

On Friday Navy Secretary John H. Chafee listed the 76 ships which would have to be scrapped or put in mothballs to save money. He said — in less harh terms than Laird used — that the economies would make the navy less ready to fight a war.

And as Chafee spoke congressional howls of "foul" began to come from those blamed for forcing Laird to cut military muscle. Sens. Walter F. Mondale (D-Minn.) and Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.), co-sponsors of an amendment to force the Navy to justify keeping 15 attack carriers in service, were among those to react.

●

Mondale charged that Laird in blaming Congress for the military spending cuts was using "scare tactics of the crudest sort."

Case said, "It is not the cost per se of carriers that is the greatest concern to me but the purpose to which they are being and may be put."

Those seven days show that the argument over the military's rightful role cannot be settled merely by cutting the Pentagon budget.

Young people and the military leaders are on entirely different philosophical wavelengths.

●

And a growing number of politicians — historically the people with the best antennas — are tuning in the young people, not the generals and admirals.

The politicians have gotten the message. It is not really the money for the military which is bothering the young people and other critics of the Pentagon.

They do not like what the United States is doing in the world militarily and want the situation changed—now.

This is why the $3 billion in cuts misses the point of the national protest. The cost overruns the congressional critics cite in attacking the Pentagon are just the handiest weapons around. The overruns enabled the lawmakers to hack at the military's tentacles around the world without looking like peaceniks.

The budget cuts do not answer the fundamental challenges, such as why do we need so many aircraft carriers unless we are gearing up for more Vietnams?

Just as the politicians historically have had the best antennas, the military services have had the worst. This is the case today. Tired old generals and admirals — none of them under 50 — are making tired-old arguments to a national constituency which considers these fine old men obsolete, if not relics who are out of it altogether.

●

Yet these same military spokesmen would only have to study the retention rates in their own services to realize they are on the other side of a generation gap.

Only when the gap in thinking is perceived can the Nixon administration begin to deal with it effectively. This has not happened yet — $3 billion military spending cut or not.

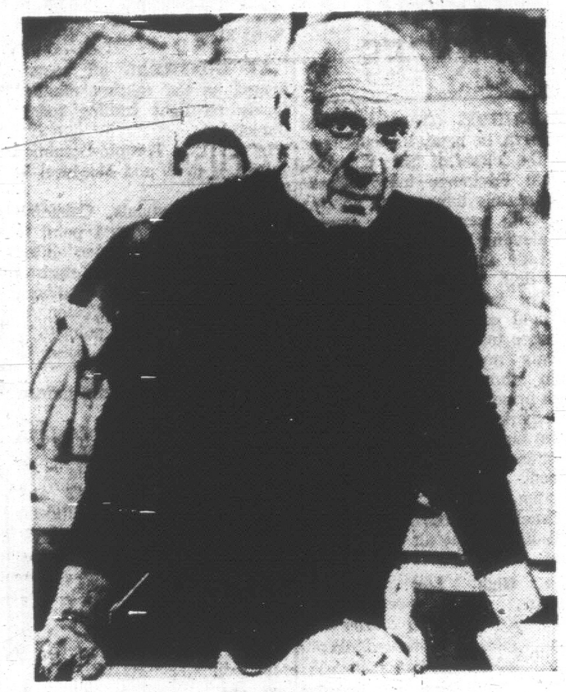
Picasso: Soaring Banality

By THOMAS SCHRODER
Die Welt



Pablo Picasso

Here he comes again, leaping over mountains like a young gazelle! The old, old man, the talented old mountain goat, portrayed in Jerzy Andrzejewski's novel as a piping Pan — Pablo Picasso has just given the world another object lesson on the themes of vitality and mature work.

In seven months of dedicated, but playful creative fervour between 16 March and 5 October last year the old master produced a 347-strong series of sketches, etchings, water-colors and technical potpourris.

Without Parallel

Many days saw the creation of as many as five or six such works. This is an achievement without parallel in the history of art.

Artistic recollections, dialogues with himself, outpourings of scorn and fanfares of desire fill these works.

Picasso, at 87, gives a reassurance of his remaining power of creation in splendid isolation.

He recollects his life's work, unites art and passion in moments of intense inspiration, works each day, inspired by his mastery of the impromptu and the caprice, which has continued to grow in his graphic works.

With light brush strokes he paints his circus pictures, bare-back riders, clowns, which are a product of his fantasy, nude dancing girls and acrobats.

And among the big-top audience we see Picasso himself, wearing 100 different masks, staid and sensitive, scornful and melancholy, goat-faced!

An old, favorite theme of his has been taken up again: artist and model. Lightly and casually, as in almost all of these works, he paints, varying his technique and graphic inspiration.

He has painted many scenes with grandees and naked women, orgiastic groups, and sacrilegious parodies of the Sacrea Conversatione.

Men he paints are stirred and excited as they view a naked woman, they are sunk in Panic tranquility.

Again and again Picasso plays his old game, treating artistic masterpieces as the whim takes him: Ingres and Goya, Cranach and Velasquez, Rubens and Manet are given his treatment, gentle mutation. The favourite victim of this treatment? Picasso himself.

Passionately and moodily one theme pervades the whole group of paintings as an orgiastic leitmotiv: phallic hymns to Eros, fauns and Bacchanal women in erotic profession, and idylls: a satyr family resting in the shade of a maple tree.

Eastern Influence

Far Eastern influences are not lacking. He portrays a lesbian group with all the libertinage of ancient Indian erotic teachings.

One cannot escape another fascinating theme. The theme is destruction. What mastery, what spontaniety! And what an anachronism! How this fantasy flares up, how restless is the urge to creation. And yet what banality!

This sort of art and its greatness are seen at a great distance already. Its wonder is lost in the mists of time and belongs in a museum. Even at its most spectacular it is demode.

An old man is telling his friends about his dreams. Art and cybernetics are as one and artists are studying this theory.

Picasso, too, is beginning to submit to the laws of his contemporaries. Historically the avant garde, following this law, is stocking its own museum with most recent works in its own lifetime. But this is only one aspect.

Trivial, Dull

It is even sadder to have to admit that several works in this collection give clear indications of painful attention to trivia, dullness and repetition. In these pictures the charm and magic of Picasso's self-eclecticism is weakened.

This is only to be expected, and is easy to understand if it is not forgotten how these works came about.

The series was so spontaneous, the time of creation so prolific that the heights of inspiration are levelled by ensuing weariness.

Perhaps this series should not have been put on show for fear that the undoubtedly undistorted view of the daily creative process would become too stylized.

On the other hand the weakest canvasses in this series give a deep insight into the artist's personal merit and his sensitivity.

The Marmalades Get Out of a Jam

RICHARD J. NEEDHAM

Not all children turn out badly; some turn out disastrously, and this was the experience of a middle-class couple who might once have lived in Toronto, and might have been named Marvin and Marcia Marmalade.

More by accident than by design, they had engendered three children, who were sweet enough when small but on reaching their teens had developed into veritable monsters.

The oldest of the three was Atila, 21, who worked at casual jobs and belonged to a motorcycle gang named Hitler's Heroes.

His naked chest was tattooed with naked females, threatening slogans such as "Hell can't hold me," and outright obscenities.

He wore his studded motorcycle boots to bed and wouldn't take them off even when he had his annual bath.

Loads of Beer, No Room for Food

He lived mainly on beer, and filled the refrigerator with so many cans of it that there was scarcely any room for food.

In the saddle-bags of his Harley - Davidson were a bicycle chain, a set of brass knuckles and the head of a defunct chicken.

He hardly ever spoke to his parents, and then only in snarls.

Lucrezia, 19, was a hippie who idolized Timothy Leary, Allen Ginsberg and the Grateful Dead. She subscribed to underground papers which bristled with four-letter words, and insisted on reading them out loud to her parents at the breakfast table.

Shoes Shed in May, On in November

She had long straight hair, which she ironed one day and curled into an Afro the next. She took off her shoes on May 1, put them back on November 1, and never washed her feet in between.

She burned incense all over the house, wrote poems which consisted of the same word repeated 187 times, and screamed "pigs" every time a police car went past.

She hardly ever spoke to her parents, and then only in grunts.

Caliban, 17, was enrolled at Dick and Jane Memorial C. I., but only showed up there when he was out of pot and had to get a new supply from the Grade 12 pusher.

Warsaw Convention On Every Evening

He headed an acid-rock group called the Warsaw Convention, and brought them over every evening for four-hour rehearsals amplified to the point where every house in the block trembled on its foundations.

When there was company present, he showed up in the living room wearing African tribal robes, with his hair in a pony-tail and smoking a six-foot-long waterpipe.

He hardly ever spoke to his parents, and then only in mumbles.

Marvin and Marcia Marmalade were held closely together by their mutual detestation of their offspring. He would say, "It must be the awful curse of the Marmalades. We could ask or even tell them to leave, but they wouldn't; they are much too comfortable here. The family that stays together, preys together," to which she would answer, "Perhaps they will be with us until we die; I would settle for just one year of peace and quiet before I go to meet my Maker."

She would say, "Perhaps we should simply pack our bags and steal away, leaving the whole place to them," to which he would answer, "this place is the only place we've got, and it's almost paid for, and I don't feel like giving up everything I've worked for these 25 years."

On day Mr. Marmalade came home with a look of great happiness on his face.

Martinis Helped The Celebration

He told his wife, "I have a plan," and when he spelled it out to her she clapped her hands with joy and mixed two Martinis to celebrate.

The next evening, Lucrezia stormed in and slammed the door and rushed to the telephone, only to discover it wasn't there. She screamed at her mother. "Where the hell is the bloody phone? Did you move it some damn place?"

Mrs. Marmalade quietly answered, "You father is having some business troubles, and we must economize so the telehphone has been taken out."

String of Oaths To Bust Blocks

Lucrezia let loose a string of block-busting oaths, as did her brothers when they heard the news.

The next evening the television set was gone, with Mrs. Marmalade telling the children, "The bank is pressing your father very hard; I don't know if we can even hang onto the house."

Subsequent evenings saw the disappearance of the hi-fi, the car and the refrigerator.

Mrs. Marmalade had usually spread a good table, but as time went on the roasts of beef were replaced by hamburger, then by macaroni, then by stale bread spread with margarine and peanut butter.

In the end, Mr. Marmalade told her trio. "We will have to give up this house and take a much smaller one. Instead of having your own rooms you will all be in one, with a sheet hung across the corner for Lucrezia."

With that, the three children disappeared, never to be heard from again, though Mr. Marmalade thought he saw Lucrezia's picture in the paper one time; she was leading a massed charge of hippies against the American Embassy to protest the Russian occupation of Czechoslovakia.

Merv Griffin And Mormon Choir

The Marmalades settled down to watch Merv Griffin and listen to their records of the Mormon Tabernacle Choir; but without the constant menace of their children to hold them together, they gradually drifted apart; and the latest one hears is that she got an uncontested divorce from him on the grounds of hypochondria, narcissism and skinny-dipping.

Leeches Just 'Minor Nuisance'

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Ordinarily leeches are not thought of as worms yet they have several characteristics typical of this group and there is no doubt that they are correctly placed in the Phylum Annelida.

The ringed appearance of the body and internally the ventral nerve cord and the segmental arrangement of certain organs are all typical of the true worms while other features indicate a close relationship with the Oligochaetes, the subdivision which includes the common earthworm.

In a typical leech the body is flattened and between three and four inches in length. However, it can be greatly stretched or dilated so that its outline and size can vary to a large degree.

* * *

At either end is a sucker by which the animal can attach itself for support, for locomotion or while feeding. Usually leeches are black or brown in color but some species are greenish or reddish; light colored bands or spots are sometimes present.

There are no tentacles, legs or other appendages. Leeches move about by a looping action using the suckers alternately as anchors or by swimming through graceful undulations of the body.

In feeding habits leeches are either scavenging, predatory or parasitic; some eat dead animals, other prey upon small worms, insect larvae, aquatic snails and other molluscs. A relatively small number suck blood but this habit is the one by which the group is best known.

* * *

The most famous member of the class is the medicinal leech of Europe which is about four inches long but which can stretch to twice this length when engorged.

When feeding, the leech holds itself in position with its front sucker and pierces the skin with stilleto-like teeth. The operation is surprisingly painless possibly because the cutting mechanism is remarkably sharp and skilfully used.

The blood is then pumped out by action of the muscular pharynx and is stored in the crop. A special enzyme prevents coagulation during the blood-letting and storage. At one feeding a leech may ingest several times its own weight in blood—enough to tide the animal over a period of several months.

Since ancient times this particular species of leech was used for blood-letting and during the early nineteenth century when this was a common, though erroneous, method of medical treatment leeches were in enormous demand.

During this time they were widely collected and even reared in ponds in many parts of Europe. Between the years 1827 and 1854 from 8 million to 57 million were imported annually into France and large numbers were also used in England and in North America. Medicinal leeches are still available but their use is limited to a few special cases.

* * *

Our common leeches are mostly found in fresh water and most of these are scavengers or predators. A few species are blood-suckers and these can be a minor nuisance to waders on bathers in certain lakes.

However the wounds they make are simple, painless slits in the skin; the experience of finding a leech attached to one's leg is much more a mental shock than a physical one.

Marine leeches are widely distributed but quite rare. Most are found as parasites on sharks, skates and rays.

In some tropical climates land leeches are exceedingly abundant and they can sometimes cause severe injury to human beings not only through loss of blood by repeated attacks but also by reason of the wounds becoming infected.

* * *

In reproductive habits leeches are somewhat similar to earthworms. Both sexes are combined in each individual and after reciprocal fertilization occurs, eggs are deposited in a cocoon which is place either in water or in moist earth. The young emerge fully formed.

One of our local leeches differs in that the eggs are carried on the ventral surface of the parent where they develop and where the young remain attached for some time.

Now that leeches are no longer used by the medical profession they have little or no value commercially. However, they are important items of food for some fishes, birds and other animals and therefore play a part in the economy of nature, particularly in fresh-water communities.

Price Boost For 1970 Model Cars

DETROIT (UPI) — The price of the 1970 model cars is going up. Exactly how much won't be known until dealers stick the price tags on when the new cars go on sale in their showrooms in September.

But Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. already are billing dealers for tentative price hikes ranging as high as $275 on Ford's Continental Mark III.

A Ford spokesman said the nation's second largest auto producer is sending advance billings to dealers calling for increases averaging $68, or about 2 per cent over the price of the 1969 models. Chrysler said the prices of its 1970 models will be higher, but wouldn't give an average increase.

Several Detroit-area Chrysler-Plymouth dealers indicated that the wholesale price increase was tentatively set at $183 on the Plymouth Fury, while some top-of-the-line Chrysler cars may go up as much as $200.

GM SILENT

The dealers said they had received "lump sum" price increases on cars already shipped to them. The "lump sum" increases are for the overall price of the cars as delivered to the dealer by the factory, including all optional equipment.

The actual prices to the car buyer will be announced next month—Ford shortly before its new cars go on sale Sept. 19 and Chrysler shortly before its new cars go on the market Sept. 23.

But, it will be General Motors Corp., the giant of the auto industry, which may again determine the actual price hikes. GM refuses to comment so far on its 1970 car prices, but when it does any increase is sure to influence the rest of the industry since GM annually accounts for more than half of the auto sales.

$91 Million Sale Of Oil Firm Shares

NEW YORK (AP)—Gulf and Western Industries said Wednesday it sold $91,000,000 of Atlantic Richfield Co. shares on the New York Stock Exchange.

The transactions Wednesday involved 371,000 Atlantic Richfield common shares and 618,000 $2.80 preferred shares.

The common stock was sold for $110.75 a share and the preferred for $70.75 a share.

Canadians presented a mixed appearance in quiet trading.

In oils, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas lost three points to 91, and Gulf eased 1½ points to 45. Pacific Pete and Canadian Husky were ½ points firmer.

In other sections, Noranda was 1¼ points lower at 78½. Fractional falls were recorded in Canadian Pacific, Massey-Ferguson, Alcan and Algoma. Elsewhere, Hiram Walker, Power Corp., and Central Del Rio showed modest gains.

Banks were easier and golds were quietly firm.

AT VANCOUVER volume was slightly higher on the exchange today in the aftermath of the provincial election, but prices were generally mixed on a pre-noon volume of 1,750,000 shares traded.

Among the mines, Gibraltar gained .35 to $2.95 and western mines advanced .15 to $3.15. Brenda lost .25 to $13.50.

Industrials were off with Driver down .20 to $2.85 and Great Pacific down .25 to $8. A single sale of 10,000 Southam Press shares traded at $59.

Oils were mixed.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Modest strength in rapeseed continued at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Trade was mainly inter-month spreading with some exporter buying on elevator company offers.

Trade in other commodities was dull.

Flax was fractionally easier in light commission house and crusher trade.

Oats and barley continued light domestic shipper trade with prices generally steady.

Exporters were small scale down buyers in rye, while some inter-month spreading continued. Rye prices were marginally easier.

Lakehead prices for class two and IGA wheat all were up ⅛ cent.

CHICAGO (AP) — Active trading, based largely on some trade thinking that export business in farm products might soon reopen between the U.S. and communist countries, today sent commodity futures prices higher from around 1 to 1½ cents a bushel on the Board of Trade.

Trade was mixed with all facets on both sides after a fairly light and irregular opening.

Shortly thereafter, however, news filtered to the floor that the government had approved a licence to do about $250,000 worth of corn business with East Germany.

Corn futures advanced 1½ cents.

Many traders viewed the new business in corn as possibly expanding into the soybean complex and wheat.

U.S. Moves Fail To Cool Economy

WASHINGTON (WP) — Continued inflation in the American economy for the rest of this year was predicted Wednesday by a government economist.

Despite all the efforts of the Nixon administration to cool the economy, said William H. Chartener, assistant secretary of commerce for economic affairs, "it is difficult to discern any harbingers of a turn-around in general economic activity during the balance of this year."

Chartener told a news conference that Americans can expect continued price increases at an annual rate of about 5 per cent for the remainder of the year, and he expressed pessimism about improving the situation early next year.

In Los Angeles, however, council of economic advisers chairman Paul W. MacCracken differed with Chartener's forecast. McCracken told a news conierence thay "by the latter part of the year we'll see some cooling in the rate of rising prices." He declined to give specific figures or to comment on Chartener's statement.

Echoing recent statements by leaders in the retail trade field and other economists, Chartener said the primary reason for continued inflationary pressure was a presistent rise in personal income, giving consumers the necessary spending power to buy what they want.

Personal income in July was up $6.2 billion, $1 billion higher than the monthly average for the first half of the year.

Other economists have also pointed to the estimated $1.2 billion in private debt by Americans as a major stimulant to the continued economic boom, which Chartener noted Wednesday was now in its 102nd consecutive month.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

Editor: G. S. Kent

B.C. Tel

B.C. Telephone Company Wednesday announced net income of $8.56 million for the first six months of 1969, up from $7.23 million in the corresponding period of 1968.

Operating revenue climbed to $75.92 million from $66 million.

A company statement said some income figures were estimated and subject to audit.

Earnings per share for the six-month period were $2.34, up from $2.03 for the first half of 1968.

Ulster

Ulster Petroleums Ltd. Announced Tuesday the company had made a significant oil dicsovery in southeast Saskatchewan.

The company said the well near Midale 100 miles southeast of Regina, flows at nine barrels hour and could be commercially produced. A proven oil field is about six miles away.

Further drilling operations are planned in the vicinity.

The well was drilled on land farmed out from Central Del Rio Oils Ltd. and French Petroleum Co. of Canada Ltd.

Production Slump

Steel ingot production slumped further last week, to 85,554 tons from the preceding week's 85,970, because of labor disputes, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Monday. A year ago, production ran to 193,081 tons.

Loss Reported

Captain International Industries Ltd. Wednesday reported a net loss of $326,932 for the first six months of 1969.

Keith Baldwin, president, said the Vancouver-based company will not show a net profit for the year, "as payments for the majority of our units are taken into income over a period of 60 months."

The report does not include comparative figures for last year because "the company's subsidiary was not in full operation for the first six months then ended, and comparative figures are not meaningful."

Wholly-owned subsidiary captain international industries Inc. produces Bell Captain and Captain communicator units in Montgomeryville, Pa.

Consolidated deficit at June 30 at $1,632,893 compared with $1,305,961 at Jan. 1.

B of M

Bank of Montreal has reported total revenue for the nine months ended July 31 of $405.12 million up from $315 million in the corresponding period last year.

The bank said operating earnings before taxes and appropriations for losses was $67.74 million against $50.89 million a year earlier.

Net income could not be calculated before appropriation for losses in the last period were determined at the Oct. 31 year-end.

Gill

Gill Interprovincial Lines Ltd. had a net profit of $262,353 during the first half of this year, an increase of $60,304 from the same period of 1968.

The profit, on a gross revenue of $6.35 million represents 52 cents a common share.

In a report of shareholders, the company said the increase was due to greater efficiency and better control of operating costs.

Added business has forced construction of a new terminal in Montreal and plans are also nearly complete for another in the Okanagan area.

Zellers

Zeller's Ltd. has reported a first-half but net earnings unchanged from the corresponding 1968 perioid.

Sales were up $8.15 million to $67.16 million but net earnings were unchanged at $1.57 million or 12 cents a share.

Leasco Makes New Takeover Offer

LONDON (Reuters) — The American Leasco computer company today decided to make a new bid to take over the British Pergamon publishing empire headed by a millionaire Labor member of Parliament, Robert Maxwell.

Both sides said early today they were satisfied with the terms of a new offer after a nine-hour session of Britain's watchdog committee on high finance business deals, known as the City Takeover Panel.

But the committee asked the board of trade to inquire whether the shareholders of Maxwell's publishing group were given all the information they might have reasonably expected.

Leasco's president, Saul Steinberg, 29, of New York last week called off a £25,000,000 ($65,000,000) bid for Pergamon and started a wave of speculation and bitter wrangling between the top men of both companies.

Under the new offer, Leasco has agreed to acquire Pergamon's shares on the basis of true earnings. Rodney Leach, a partner in Rothschild's, the merchant bankers advising the American company, said early today "the deal is now going through."

THE ACCOUNTANT'S ADVICE

Term 'Tax-Shelter' Misleading

(This is a service provided by The Times and by The Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia).

By EDGAR A. DOWNEY, C.A.

The term "tax shelter" is much over-worked and often misleading.

It is frequently used to advocate th purchase of real estate as an investment but seldom is the whole effect adequately explained.

A real estate investor may postpone the impact of taxation for several years because depreciation for tax purposes on buildings is allowed at a faster rate than actual wear and tear loss occurs in fact.

In the first year the owners of a frame building which cost $100,000 (excluding the cost of land which is not depreciable) may claim maximum depreciation of $10,000 based upon 10 per cent of the original cost. In the second year the maximum is $9,000 i.e., 10 per cent of the $90,000 residual cost; and continue on the diminishing balance basis for $8,100 in the third year and so on.

In effect, this postpones the taxation of the income to the later years but eventually all of the income will become subject to tax.

If the building operation shows a yield of only 9 per cent, or $9,000 profit, before depreciation the $10,000 allowance would produce a loss of $1,000 for income tax purposes in that first year which would apply against any other source of income in that year. Then the building operation would show nil as the taxable income for the second year, $900 taxable in the third year and growing to larger amounts taxable in subsequent years. Therefore, a substantial portion of the cash profit can be earned tax free in those early years.

SUFFER LITTLE

The cost of real depreciation should be charged against that $9,000 tax free profit but in the early years most buildings suffer little, if any, such real loss because with rising construction costs the replacement value would likely be above actual cost.

There are, of course, some catches in such an attractive deal.

As time progresses most taxpayers discover that their income tends to rise and, consequently, their personal tax rate also rises and so does the general level of taxation. So the postponement of income to become taxed in a later year almost invariably means that the charge will be at a higher tax rate.

Furthermore, if the taxpayer should sell his building without investing in another building of the same type then the roof of his "tax shelter" really caves in. He must then pay the income tax upon the recapture of the excess of the depreciation allowance claimed for tax purposes over the actual depreciation suffereed, as proven by the proceeds of the sale.

After, say, 10 years of operation this excess would likely amount to about $40,000 or more. Even if the taxpayer claims his right to pay the tax on the basis of averaging the recaptured amount as income over the previous five years the amount of tax would still be very high; and it must all be paid in cash in the yar of disposal even though the sale may not have been a cash deal.

This position may be reasonably attractive for some taxpayers who have a long period of education to lead to a relatively short period of earnings at a high rate of annual income. The tax deferment of a building investment can sometimes be applied to spread the taxation of their lifetime earnings over a longer period of years and, so, reduce the effective tax rate.

It is seldom much help to most ordinary taxpayers. The fact that there can be a temporary tax benefit in real estate investment for some high tax rate investors tends to increase the price for his special value of those particular investors. For taxpayers who do not have high earnings and a high tax rate the special value price may not be conomically sound.

PROTECTS CAPITAL

There is the further advantage that in theory, and usually also in fact, real estate investment tends to protect the capital against the erosion of inflation. Certainly, during the past 25 years real estate values have risen much faster than the values of other goods and services. It does not necessarily follow that this faster rise will continue for the ensuing 25 years, if that could happen the effect would be to price real estate out of its own market and cause it to lose value until it came into line with other values. No one type of commodity can continue to increase in value for ever disproportionately with other goods and services.

Already the yields on apartment blocks as investments are somewhat lower than the cost of the mortgage money required to finance the purchase. Thus in the short term, investing in mortgages may be wiser and more remunerative, but without any protection from inflation.

Bank of B.C. GM Resigns

VANCOUVER (CP) — Reginal B. Burton has resigned as general manager of the Bank of British Columbia, bank president Albert E. Hall announced Wednesday.

Hall said Burton had come to the bank to assist in the preliminary organization and establishment of the business, with the understanding that when it was well launched he would be free to take advantage of other opportunities.

Burton came to the Bank of B.C., established last year, from California, where he was regional vice-president of the First Western Bank and Trust Co.

Hall said there would be no immediate move to fill the position.

Burton said in an interview that he is considering several opportunities. He has had offers from firms in the U.S. and Canada, he said.

Wallace's Success Story: He Played It Really Quiet

'A Great Day for B.C.' — Chant, Skillings Team

Socreds Rip Open Tweed Curtain

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Dr. G. Scott Wallace ate potato chips at his Oak Bay home Wednesday night while his campaign headquarters erupted in joy at his stunning election upset of the Liberals.

"The chap next door came over and said congratulations," he said.

And that was how the 40-year-old family doctor from Scotland, who came to Canada 11 years ago, heard of his upset win over Liberal MLA Allan Cox.

In winning, he broke the Liberals' 17-year hold on Oak Bay constituency to become its first Social Credit MLA.

Wallace won every poll but one (in Ten Mile Point) as 10,281 persons voted for him.

Cox, a lawyer, former Oak Bay reeve and MLA for a year, trailed with 6,375 votes while Jack McKenzie put in a relatively strong showing for the New Democratic Party with 2,128 votes.

Wallace took nearly 55 per cent of the vote, Cox 34 per cent, and McKenzie 11 per cent.

•

Turnout in the constituency, which includes Saanich municipality east of Shelbourne Street up to Mount Douglas Park, was 78.25 per cent.

Wallace's victory was a major upset in British Columbia.

And for the first time, Premier Bennett—who lives in Oak Bay, on Satellite Street—will have a Socred MLA there.

Fear of an NDP sweep in B.C., door-to-door canvassing, a quiet personal Oak Bay-type campaign and a lacklustre Liberal candidate were some of the ingredients of the victory.

A little tired, and short on food—he had not eaten lunch or supper—Wallace left for home as the polls closed.

When Cox first arrived to formally concede, Wallace was still at home.

But soon he was at campaign headquarters and the high-pitch enthusiasm of 50 supporters exploded into cheers.

"It was a good clean fight, that was the main thing," were his first comments to the quiet and defeated Cox.

Later, he said he decided his campaign would be on a personal level "with no nonsense."

It was a quiet campaign, stressing contact with people, and it went over with Oak Bay voters in strong contrast with the razzle-dazzle campaigns of previous unsuccessful Socreds.

•

"I have outlined some ideas I think should be considered which it appears the government has not yet considered," he said.

"I am not against my own party, I am outlining certain constructive ideas. I am not critical of my own party."

He strongly rejected such labels as maverick and rebel which have been attached to him.

He has said that by switching emphasis to non-acute hospital beds, the acute bed shortage might be solved. And he has questioned the validity of Health Minister Ralph Loffmark's insistence on sewage treatment plants for marine outfalls pending full information.

Both before he became Social Credit candidate, and since, he has referred to Loffmark's position as arbitrary.

Wallace, who lives on Newport Avenue, graduated from Edinburgh University and practised medicine in England before coming to Canada, first to Sarnia and New Liskeard in Ontario and then, seven years ago, to Victoria.

He has been prominent as an Oak Bay alderman and led the fight against secret council meetings on the assessment controversy earlier this year.

•

Just before he went home for his potato chips, Wallace told reporters what he said he would state later: "I wouldn't have played it any other way. My basic appeal was via a personal approach."

At Liberal party headquarters, five blocks away on Oak Bay Avenue, gloom settled quickly on the small crowd.

The first poll went to Wallace.

Cox got the news in the parking lot.

Twenty minutes after polls closed, and as results trickled in showing Social Credit ahead, Cox said "we're in trouble, we're in trouble."

Five minutes later, with Wallace holding twice as many votes, Cox said "we're all finished."

Cox said Oak Bay has been a "middle of the road seat, slightly conservative in the small c sense. It is a seat that is deathly afraid of the NDP.

"My opponent put up a good fight. The indications I got early were that the people were fearful of the NDP. A lot of my people who supported me before thought they couldn't risk it."

Socred Elders Easily Win In Low-Geared Campaign

By BRUCE YEMEN

The Social Credit cabinet ministers who minded the shop while their colleagues were out campaigning were rewarded with easy victories in Victoria on Wednesday.

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant and Industry Minister Waldo Skillings held their legislative seats with 55 per cent of the total vote—the same share they pulled in 1966.

The 74-year-old Chant has been acting minister of almost everything in the past few weeks while his fellow cabinet members were out of town.

Skillings, 10 years his junior, only recently was released from hospital after recovering from serious injuries suffered in a fall down the Union Club stairs several weeks ago.

At some recent cabinet meetings, they were the entire cabinet.

Their quiet campaign earned them a combined total of more than 30,000 votes, almost double the nearly 16,000 total of their nearest rivals, NDP candidates Peter Bunn and Phil Fawcett.

But the NDP hiked its vote share from 23 per cent in 1966 to almost 28 per cent this time.

Liberals Drop to 16.6%

Liberal candidates Ian Stewart and Mel Couvelier pulled a total of 9,606 votes, a drop in percentage from 20 per cent in 1966 to 16.6 per cent this time.

Final results are: Chant (SC) 15,496; Skillings (SC) 15,072; Bunn (NDP) 8,251; Fawcett (NDP) 7,734; Stewart (L) 5,197; Couvelier (L) 4,409; Scott (Ind.) 244.

The smashing victory was evident within minutes of the closing of polls but jubilation over Socred gains across the province kept the candidates' Johnson Street headquarters rocking for two hours.

A frequent exclamation uttered by Socred supporters was: "What a great day for British Columbia."

At one point, Skillings, a long-time bridge partner of Premier Bennett, talked to "the chief" in Kelowna by telephone while his supporters watched Bennett on the other end of the line on television.

Stewart and Couvelier, disappointed but outwardly cheerful, came by to congratulate the winners before 9 p.m.

"You sure mopped up the floor with us," Stewart told Skillings.

One Socred official later said he felt sorry for Stewart and Couvelier and Liberal Louis Lindholm in Saanich and the Islands.

"They were cannon fodder for the party," he said.

Bunn and Fawcett, who remained at the Union Centre on Quadra Street rather than in the tiny party headquarters on Blanshard, declined to visit the winner.

Skillings said he wouldn't have shaken Bunn's hand anyway.

Bunn said he didn't go to see Skillings because it wouldn't have been a sincere gesture.

"I have nothing in common with Skillings. I may be many things but I'm not a hypocrite," Bunn said.

There were cheers for the re-election of Minister Without Portfolio Phil Gaglardi.

"Phil and I don't see eye to eye on many things but he did a terrific job as minister of highways," said Skillings.

Perhaps the biggest burst of applause was for the defeat of NDP Leader Tom Berger in Vancouver-Burrard.

After climbing on to a table to thank his supporters, Skillings took a swipe at "guttersnipe journalism" practised by the Victoria Times.

VICTORY AND THE SMILES are wide on the faces of Public Works Minister W. N. Chant and Mrs. Chant, Industry Minister Waldo Skillings and Mrs. Skillings and a host of jubilant supporters, following a smashing Socred triumph in Victoria Wednesday. The two cabinet ministers pulled more than 15,000 votes each. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Tisdalle Does It Again

By JOHN DRISCOLL

John Tisdalle took a nap Wednesday afternoon and in the evening yawned his way to another election win in Saanich and the Islands.

At 10 p.m. with a 2,500-vote lead over New Democrat Don Johannessen, Tisdalle left a Social Credit headquarters filled with the noisy laughter of victory.

He was going out for a steak-dinner celebration.

The final count showed Tisdalle with 9,577 votes with Johannessen polling 6,791 votes, Liberal Louis Lindholm trailing with 3,228 votes.

Tisdalle's votes accounted for 49.5 per cent of all ballots cast. Johannessen polled 34.8 per cent and Lindholm 16 per cent.

Saanich reflected the increased turnout across the province, with 75 per cent of the 26,000 eligible voters casting ballots, compared to 72 per cent in 1966.

"It's a vindication of the last 17 years," he said as televised results across the province pointed to a Socred sweep.

"The people have rejected socialism."

Tisdalle said he wasn't worried at any time during the campign.

As the results poured in and his margin widened, the 51-year-old real estate man sat grinning on a table, the calm in a sea of roaring supporters.

Only once did he get excited. An hour and half after the polls closed he announced excitedly "Johannessen's conceded."

QUICK DECISION

Johannessen actually knew he was a loser an hour earlier.

About 40 supporters of the energetic, 32-year-old, high school teacher had gathered at his headquarters for a celebration that turned out to be a wake.

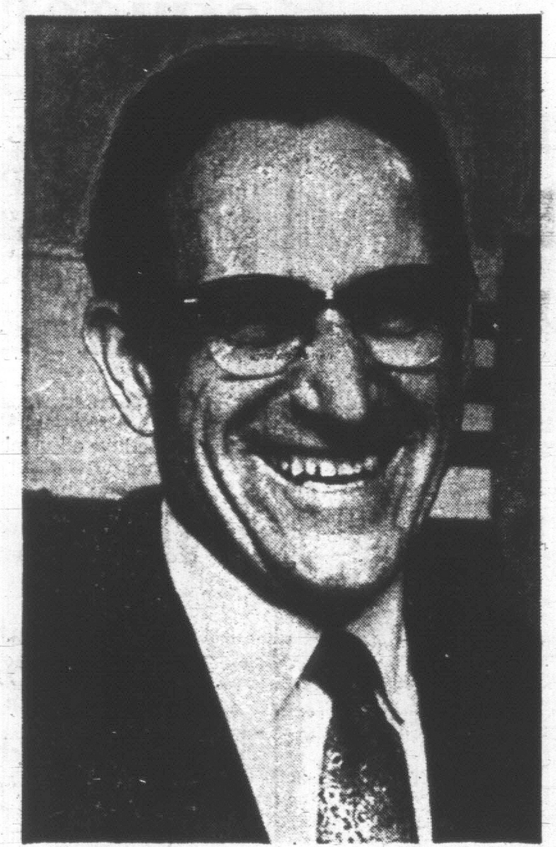
Until the polls closed Johannessen had confidently predicted an upset in this riding which has sent Tisdalle to the legislature six times.

"We'll know within 25 minutes how this election is going," Johannessen said.

But 10 minutes later, Tisdalle had opened up a 300-vote lead.

"Back to the drawing board," said Johannessen. "That's the ball game."

"At least I've got a job to go back to Sept. 2," he said. "This thing sure kicks hell out of all you pundits."



Tisdalle: 'It's a Vindication'

Q. I read recently about a man in California who beat the world's record for "live burial" a year or so ago. Who was he and how long did he stay below ground?

A. In 1968 Mike Shannon, 60, spent 77 days buried in a six-foot-long coffin at San Jose California. The times was a new world's record.

Lights Go Out on Bruch But He's Still Beaming

By REG SILVESTER

The lights went out at Herb Bruch's Social Credit campaign headquarters on Esquimalt Road Wednesday night, but not the power of his ability to gather Esquimalt votes.

A fuse blew out the lights, but the television set continued to perform for the knot of party workers clustered around it.

By 9:30, the tube had declared their man elected. They cheered; Bruch thanked them for their work.

Liberal Fred Phillips groped his way into the darkness to concede. He found Bruch's hand, shook it, and headed back to his headquarters for a rather low-keyed party.

Bruch happily sailed off into the distance to visit the Social Credit youth headquarters on Fort Street, and then to congratulate his victorious fellow-Socreds in the Victoria area.

A 65 per cent turnout of voters gave Bruch the riding with 8,177 votes or 52 per cent, down from 55 per cent in 1966. NDP candidate Jim Gorst hung back second with 5,550, and Liberal Phillips trailed with 1,923.

The NDP, however, increased its vote percentage from 31 to 35.5 per cent over the 1966 election.

Bruch was counting heavily on, and apparently got, the "individualist" vote. Much of the riding is unorganized territory, and Bruch has helped keep it that way since he entered the legislature in 1953.

Gorst refused to leave his headquarters at the junction of highways 1 and 1A to concede to Bruch.

"Why should I!" he asked. "It's just a courtesy that has developed over the years."

When a radio station announced Gorst had conceded, the NDP candidate angrily got on the telephone to correct them.

"I don't have to concede," he said. "They'll get the vote totals in the morning."

Phillips said he's ready to run again in the next election. "I cut my teeth on this one. I didn't expect to win, but I had hoped at least to make a dent."

Arthur Mayse . . .

THE AMAZING MR. BENNETT has done it again, and British Columbians can now settle down to contemplate the fact with joy or gloom as their political leanings dictate.

But let me correct one wrong impression prevalent among those who hoped for a different result.

It was not fear of socialism in itself that eased the premier's return as head of a Social Credit government for this the seventh consecutive time.

What did the trick was political savvy unmatched in the west, and possibly in all of Canada.

★

And from this astute sense of what wins elections, Bennett had but to choose rewards, and a weapon suitable to his purpose.

For the weapon, he strung together the bogey of socialism, which he served like a boar's head on a well-garnished platter. The garnish—promises of increased homeowners grants and boosted old age pensions.

Bennett had a truism of Canadian political history going for him as well. The NDP began life as a hard-luck party. It proved the fact once more no long time past, in a Manitoba knocked off balance by the dismal fact of unsold wheat crops.

★

Like Moses, the NDP may glimpse the Promised Land, but is unlikely to enter and possess in B.C. until or unless a general depression rakes the country.

It may be, too, that this party lost more than it gained when it traded Strachan for Berger.

I entertained higher hopes for the Liberals. What cost them one long-held seat of their previous six? A solid Oak Bay Socred candidate with the Bennett wind at his back? A population shift? Or could it be the slight frost that has followed the cooling of federal charisma?

At the risk of seeming naive, I hope Bennett will proceed in this next term of office to make good on certain promises that matter much to British Columbia.

The matter of air and water pollution needs action—not merely the posturings and lip service we've had on this subject by an indifferent government.

Housing and hospital situations are much less than good. I hope we can look for a girding of governmental loins for action in those neglected departments.

★

In any case, it's all over but the shouting, and until next time a province must live by and with the results of its decision.

A LETTER FROM MISS Gwendolyn Davies, who tells how yet another railway written off as a lost cause was given a new and profitable lease on life.

"Near my home in North Wales," Miss Davies notes, "a railway was to be closed that ran through the most beautiful mountain scenery, starting at the little fishing town of Portmadoc. To prevent this closure taking place, the line was taken over by private enterprise, and lovers of railways and country.

★

"Today, it is a hive of activity, and queues form daily to try and get on the train. Technical staff, fully trained, man the track, but students working voluntarily take over the 'halts', selling tea, coffee and confectionery. Profits are to be used to extend the length of the railway.

"What a pity it would have been to let it pass to just a memory. Vancouver Island, take note!"

A number of Islanders want to retain our line, and one of them told me no long time past that old-time coaches for a restored steam railroad wouldn't be hard to find. Some, he says, are standing on rusted steel back of the Victoria E & N roundhouse. If needed, others could be culled from the work-trains to which they have been relegated.

But back to Miss Davies, who wonders why B.C. Hydro doesn't replace those misleading arrows on its bus stop signs with a plain 'No Parking'.

With another visitor, she followed the arrow, only to see the bus pull in alongside the sign.

★

We're used to local foibles, but the summer people aren't, and our sign language should come under critical review.

So much for this day . . . and may the sun shine tomorrow!

Restored Youth Her Bag

By HANNS NEUERBOURG

BUCHAREST (AP) — Travel guides do not list the small group of white buildings near Bucharest's Lake District, but for many Western tourists it is the first stop.

Matrons, businessmen and members of nobility are among the callers at the Institute of Geriatrics. This is the realm of Prof. Ana Aslan, the Romanian scientist who has become a legend in her lifetime by holding out the vision of restored youth. Her message is that old age must be combatted as is a disease and that drugs can lengthen the life span and even bring new vitality.

Despite a skeptical echo in parts of the medical world, interest in her method seems stronger than ever. Inquiries from all parts of the world come to the institute from would-be patients almost every day. Pharmaceutical companies in Western countries are competing with "youth pills" claimed to be based on her research.

MAO A CLIENT?

More than 1,000 foreign doctors have visited the institute. Diplomats from both Western and Eastern missions here discreetly but regularly call the institute to restock their supplies of her geriatric drug. There are persistent rumors that China's Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung has received the Romanian product through the Chinese embassy.

Prof. Aslan developed the drug in the 1950s after noting that procaine, a pain reliever she had used in treating arthritic patients, also affected their general physical and psychic conditions.

She added benzoic acid, traces of sulphur and other ingredients and eventually began mass therapy with a solution which was named Gerovital H-3.

More than 100,000 people have since been treated.

Prof. Aslan and her assistants report their treatment has effected favorable results in a wide range of symptoms, from tightening skin to reactivating brain functions and recoloring hair.

Even sex life is said to be rejuvenated.

PATHOLOGICAL PROCESS

Prof. Aslan stated:

"These people take new interest in life again. They want to live and they want to be active again. They are old but they are not oldsters any longer.

"Many people think old age is something they just have to put up with. We find that old age is a pathological process. Something which can be influenced. Biological rejuvenation is possible."

She calls herself her "first patient." A sprightly though soft-spoken woman of 73, she has great plans for the future.

In the next year or so, the institute will move into new buildings on the outskirts of Bucharest. By then, a new Gerovital, claimed to be even more potent, is expected to have been licensed by the Romanian health ministry of which the institute is a branch. Tests with the new drug have been completed.

Licences will be awarded to manufacturers in France and Spain. Until now, only a Belgian company has held a Romanian licence, competing with, said Dr. Aslan, about 100 "imitation products."

Rock Fest Losses Covered

NEW YORK (AP) — The wealthy drug family of John Roberts, promoter of the recent rock festival at White Lake, N.Y., put about $1,000,000 in a bank to cover the venture's debts, Roberts' partner said here.

"We are speechless at the way the Roberts family rushed forward," said Joel Rosenman, a 26-year-old lawyer who has been associated with Roberts in an enterprise called Woodstock Ventures for 2½ years.

Rosenman said the money put up by the Roberts' family—from a fortune made from products of the Block Drug Co.—would be used to pay "every legitimate creditor" of Woodstock Ventures in full.

He said he and Roberts, 24, hope to recoup the $1,000,000 by sale of films and recordings made at the White Lake festival during the weekend of Aug. 16-17 and from "various other assets."

The estimated 500,000 young persons who crowded the pastures around the festival bandstand were ironically a prime reason for the financial loss.

Only from 60,000 to 70,000 tickets had been sold in advance and the kids poured into the festival site in such numbers that ticket-taking became impossible.

'Art of Survival' University Seminar

Prospective university students in Victoria can master the art of survival in the wilds of university life during a crash course before college begins in September.

The course, called How to Survive in College, begins Sept. 9 and will consist of three days of three-hour seminars.

According to instructor Dr. E. F. Casebeer, an associate professor at Purdue University in Indiana, the two major goals of the course are to help motivate the student and to show the student how to read, listen, schedule and take examinations.

"The 1969 report shows that one out of two or 50.4 per cent of university students drop out in the U.S. The rate is a little lower in Canada— about 25 to 40 per cent," said Casebeer.

LEARNING THEORY

He attributed this principally to the fact that students go into university without adequate knowledge of how to apply themselves or study properly.

The course, is devoted to instructing students in learning theory. "We teach students, for example, about the rates of forgetting," said Casebeer. "If you were to read one chapter in a textbook, you've immediately as soon as you've finished forgotten one-quarter of it already. In two weeks you'll have forgotten one-half.

"If, however, you take five minutes to relearn or review the important points of the chapter you will remember four-fifths of the information for two weeks."

Students also face psychological problems, lacking identity and adequate ideology.

"A student must be one of the most highly motivated people. He has to do at least 30 hours of unsupervised work a week. We teach students reliable techniques of short-term motivation until his own central motivation develops."

The course will be held in the student commons room at the Institute of Adult Studies from 7:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.

B.C. PAVILION TOP OSAKA DRAW

VANCOUVER (CP)—A director of Expo 70 said Tuesday British Columbia's pavilion will be one of the most popular at the world's fair in Osaka, Japan.

Kazuo Akiyama said the B.C. pavilion's huge Douglas fir trunks, stacked vertically to a height of 165 feet, are proving a powerful attraction to the Japanese.

Akiyama is here to head a mobile mini-expo caravan housing models and exhibits which will be shown in 41 cities in the United States and Canada.

Similkameen Hard Hit by Fires

PRINCETON (CP) — Freezers in the Similkameen Valley area of British Columbia remained with no, or insufficient power Tuesday and doctors warned residents not to take chances with food.

Meanwhile, West Kootenay Power and Light Co. said it hoped to restore full service Friday or Saturday. The grass and forest fire that cut power Sunday was still burning today, as crews prepared fireguards.

In Princeton, 120 miles east of Vancouver, two restaurants closed, others reduced their menus and operators spoke of thousands of dollars lost in spoiled food and more in lost tourist business.

The fire destroyed 36 wooden power poles and 9,000 feet of 60,000-volt line. By Tuesday night it also had destroyed a farm house, sheds and outbuildings, a trailer and car and had killed 50 head of livestock.

In Keremeos, an emergency generator borrowed from B.C. Hydro and Power Authority failed Tuesday. Another unit was borrowed and was expected to go into operation today.

Emergency generators in other areas didn't provide enough power for freezers and RCMP said: "Most food in home freezers is already unfit for consumption."

In Princeton, the operator of a drive-in restaurant said: "The tourists are just passing us by. We have lost all our ice cream mix and other perishables. The over-all loss will be considerable."

At the Princeton Hotel, a spokesman said the dining room was open—in candlelight — and sales of draft beer ended with the power cut.

"The bottled beer is not very cold," he said, "but it is wet and serving a purpose during the emergency."

Kids Who Pass Through These Doors Are Treated Like Kids

TORONTO (CP) — Some 4,900 children are charged and sent to Toronto's juvenile court each year. Of these, half go on to spend time at Walter Rutledge's detention home located behind the courthouse in downtown Toronto.

Twelve years have seen many changes in this half-way house for juvenile delinquents first opened in June, 1957. At last, says James P. Felstiner, justice of the peace, registrar and clerk of the court, "we're able to treat kids like kids."

There was a time when conditions in this home, and in many others like it, were harsh and unsympathetic. The eight-year-old boy convicted of breaking a window or the 10-year-old girl found guilty of stealing a skipping rope was treated like a hardened criminal.

Time has altered these attitudes. Mr. Rutledge, the home's superintendent, explains that the purpose of the home is to provide "therapy" for the boys and girls, aged seven to 15, who stay there—and not to provide them with further punishment.

Most of the youngsters stay for only three or four days, but some remain for as long as four months. The house will hold 39 boys and 20 girls at one time. Mr. Rutledge and his staff of 31 greet and say farewell to nearly 2,500 children every year.

The building too has been improved over the years. Under control of the province and with considerable assistance from the city, much has been done to make the two-storey concrete structure more livable. Air conditioning was installed last summer, and the whole house has been touched up with a bright new paint job. The home has an indoor as well as an outdoor playground.

What probably makes Mr. Rutledge happiest of all, however, is the $100 he is given by the province every year to use as a "discretionary fund." This means he may buy shoes for a barefoot boy, or ice cream cones for all the children, or a new game for the playroom.

Tub Skipper Survives Lake Voyage

MANITOWOC, Wis. (AP) — A Michigan father of six has reached Wisconsin safely after sailing his bathtub across Lake Michigan.

Victor Jackson, 32, of East Lansing, Mich., was the object of an air and sea search by the coast guard when worried relatives reported him missing.

As Jackson crossed the 65-mile wide lake, a dying battery and a broken antenna left him out of contact with anyone except a ham operator on the Wisconsin shore.

"It's sure nice to see people again, I'll tell you," Jackson shouted to about 200 onlookers as he stepped ashore Sunday night after 14½ hours alone on the lake.

"A couple of times I'd given up hope. I thought you were going to be fishing me out of there tomorrow morning.

"I had less than a pint of gas left. I had troubles all the way; general problems with the motor, my battery quit on me and my main radio mast broke six or eight miles out of Ludington."

Jackson's bathtub—registered in Michigan as a one-passenger pleasure craft—is the common household variety, welded to a frame and supported by four 30-gallon oil drums.

It is equipped with a 20-horsepower outboard motor and nearly $1,000 worth of radio and navigational equipment. He started out with 30 gallons of gas and made it to the coast guard lighthouse. But he had to borrow a gallon to sail into the harbor.

He said one of the first things he plans to do on his return to Ludington is "collect on that $5 bet I made with my boss."

Only Way To Fly Is at Home

REGINA (CP) — If you are an aircraft enthusiast, and build your own plane in your basement, you may qualify for a Cement Truck Award from the Experimental Aircraft Association.

The award goes to those who have had to knock holes in basement walls to remove the finished project.

About 12 home-built light aircraft are flying in Saskatchewan at the present time, and many more are under construction in basements, garages, attics and even living rooms.

Chapter 154 is the Saskatchewan local of the Experimental Aircraft Association, an international organization originally formed in the United States in 1953.

Five years after its inception the organization grew to 8,000 members and now has an international representation of about 40,000.

"The whole purpose of the organization is the building and advancement in design of aviation, and in particular sport aviation," said John Veale, a member of the Saskatchewan chapter.

President Rem Walker said the association was incorporated as a non-profit body and promotes, among other things, safety.

DESIGNS ARE PROVEN

He said the word "experimental" is perhaps misleading, since a high percentage of aircraft designs are drawn up by professional and semi-professional engineers and are, for the most part, proven designs.

Mr. Veale said building an aircraft at home is "one way the average guy without too much money can get himself airborne."

It was possible to build an aircraft for as little as $500, but "the costs vary, depending on your scrounging ability."

Mr. Veale estimates that his own aircraft, now under construction and of a somewhat rare all-metal design, will have cost him between $2,500 and $3,500 by the time it is ready to fly.

Tax Due Date Advanced

The due date for municipal taxes in Saanich next year will be six weeks earlier.

Present due date is the middle of August and this will be changed to the end of June in 1970.

Finance committee chairman Ald. Foster Isherwood said this is in line with practice elsewhere.

Penalty for unpaid taxes will be 5 per cent on July 2 and 5 per cent on Sept. 2. Council was told that not more than 5 per cent of taxpayers are late with payments.

Pink Shrimp Business Booms

OTTAWA (CP) — Commercial fishing for pink shrimp has developed into a lucrative business in the Maritimes in the last two years, the federal fisheries department reports in its magazine Fisheries of Canada.

Shrimp exploration and marketing trials were first conducted in 1965 in joint projects among the governments of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and the department's industrial development service.

Early surveys by Fisheries Research Board vessels showed plenty of pink shrimp—the popular, edible kind—in areas of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Bay of Fundy.

Futher studies in 1966-67 determined that there were commercial possibilities for a shrimp fishery in the Chaleur and Passamaquoddy areas.

In 1968 four vessels fished for shrimp commercially in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Sailing out of Shippegan, N.B.,, they landed 97,000 pounds within a few weeks. The shrimp averaged 55 to 60 a pound.

In the Bay of Fundy the shrimp fishery shot ahead quickly. In 1966-67 six boats were in use and by 1967-68 this number reached 30 vessels and landed 1,257,941 pounds within one six-month period.

Between November, 1968, and April, 1969, the Bay of Fundy fleet numbered 40 boats which landed about 2,000,000 pounds.

Much of the shrimp is cooked aboard the boats and sold to the Scandinavian market as salt-cooked shrimp. They are sold in Stockholm restaurants and supermarkets.

The market is expanding so rapdly that plans have been made to charter DC-9 jet freighters to transport 80,000-pound shipments to Europe.

Servicemen Won't Leave

HONOLULU (AP) — Twenty-four AWL U.S. servicemen who have taken refuge in two churches say they won't leave their sanctuaries until three demands are met:

An end to the Vietnam war, an end to "racism in the military," and an end to "military injustice."

The dissidents called a news conference Wednesday to list their demands and introduce their lawyer, Michael Kennedy of San Francisco. Kennedy, who has specialized in defending soldiers in trouble, said he will organize a pool of lawyers and train them in military proce.-dures.

The legal pool then will defend the AWL men.

Military authorities have said only that they are watching the situation.

Love of Adventure Used in Student's Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — CUSO, the Canadian University Students Overseas, has been waging a unique fund-raising campaign in the heart of Toronto's business community, appealing to the businessman's love of youthful adventure.

By September CUSO will have 1,300 volunteer workers spread out across the world. Each one of these will cost CUSO more than $3,000, which is why they need money and why they are hoping Toronto's businessmen will help them out with $75,000.

CUSO, unlike the Peace Corps, the American volunteer organization to which it is often compared, is an entirely independent body. Although it receives nearly 90 per cent of its funds from the Canadian International Development Agency, is a private, non-profit and non-political organization.

The Peace Corps is different, explains CUSO's Toronto campaign manager, Richard Thompson. "Many countries won't accept Peace Corps people because their institution is a political arm of the U.S. government," he says.

CUSO is able to preserve its independence by raising 10 per cent of its own funds. This year it is aiming for $386,000 from the private sector across Canada. Its government grant totals $3,474,000.

In addition, Canadian universities and pharmaceutical companies are expected to contribute over $1,000,000 worth of supplies and services.

CUSO volunteeers are paid a salary by their host country during their two-year volunteer period, says Ron Hornby, CUSO's national fund-raising chairman.

Working in India, for example a volunteer might make about $40 a month.

CUSO does not send its volunteers indiscriminantly. They wait until they receive a request from the host country. Even then, CUSO is able to send only one volunteer for every 15 requests it receives.

Bill WALKER

The suggestion was put out at the recent bun feed of the Victoria Baseball Association and general manager Norm Trasolini, of the Vancouver Mounties, that perhaps Victoria might be considered as a suitable site for a triple "A" baseball club.

At about the same time the Coast League game here between Vancouver and Portland was being set up, the suggestion was put out in Vancouver that perhaps Vancouver might NOT be considered as a suitable future site for a triple "A" baseball club.

Sheer happenstance?

Perhaps, but more like sheer folly in the case of Victoria.

Because if the Mounties are dead, and they do appear to be breathing their last, again, then Victoria should move over, make room in their bier, and forget the lamentations.

Saving baseball here is old hat. The dirge long ago was tolled, the epitaphs written, and the tomb sealed. Let's leave it that way, for now.

Why?

Why indeed!

The game here last week drew well enough (1,446 fans) to be repeated again next year, if there is to to be a next year for the Mounties, and if the Coast League sees fit, but it didn't draw well enough to be any bellringer for the return of professional baseball.

Sure, it would be fun and would be interesting, and all baseball lovers would be overjoyed, but if there aren't enough true lovers in Vancouver, there must be less than nothing here by comparison.

For the average attendance, I do believe, in that major metroplis of the west coast with a population approaching one million, works out to 970 baseball fans per game. And with the season already over, it is not going to improve.

●

It is a matter of record, too, that attendance has gone downhill steadily in Vancouver since the banner year of 1957 when the Mounties won it all and drew over 300,000 fans. Last year the figure was 82,000, this year perhaps 66,000.

The Mounties during that time have been associated with several major league clubs. The story always has the same ending. Where do the baseball fans go in the summer time?

Not to the baseball games, that's for sure, and that's the problem, nothing else. No fans pay no bills.

Marvin Milkes, general manager of the Seattle Pilots, has said of the Vancouver affliate:

"An attendance of 100,000 to 120,000 would be considered respectable."

Transolini said, when here, that a triple A club could be operated successfully with an average of 1,200 to 1,500 a game. Major league clubs are prepared to accept the remainder of such a financial responsibility as their bond of good faith.

At 66 home games a season, you can work it out. Either way, you still come out a loser.

●

Jim Fanning of Montreal Expos, who, with Seattle, are joint operators of the Vancouver franchise, has been quoted:

"Our plans are up in the air, but we don't think you can just write off triple A expenses."

On a recent junket to the mainland, I sounded out the symdromes which detect such things. And I hear from these soundings, that both Seattle and Montreal already have indicated their goodbyes, Montreal because Vancouver is such a long way off, and it would be handier with a triple A club closer by, and Seattle because they aren't making any money either, and what's the use of taking a chance of losing twice the bundle when once will do nicely, thank you.

There is, of course, always the chance that Vancouver will be considered as a major league city, and from this corner that's the only way that Vancouver can go, first class, to be accepted as a part of the sports community.

A recent story in Sports Illustrated suggested such a likelihood, but so far no-one has told Vancouver about it.

Then perhaps, Vancouver could look after Victoria. We would be handy, and that would be dandy, but then would we be satisfied with a lesser brand?

Because with major league ball in Seattle and, bad as the Pilots are, it definitely has had a noticeable effect on the Mounties. Trasolini readily admitted that fact and did not have the answer.

And furthermore, there is no doubt, in case you haven't heard already, that Victoria is a depressed area for professional sport, is becoming more so, and is likely to remain so for some years to come.

Baseball suffered several near deaths before it finally succumbed.

Hockey died twice, the last time after a championship had been won.

Lacrosse, the psuedo-professional type, is heading the same way, probably for different reasons, but with possibly the same eventual result.

Snarling cynics may say it has been too long already since the last pitch.

I'll drink to that, but with your dollar, not mine.

Gorge Ties Series

Stan Gibb provided the pitching power Wednesday night and Gorge Hotel forced a deciding game in the Senior Amateur baseball League's playoff final.

Gibb blanked Independents 3-0 as the Gorge crew deadlocked the best-of-seven title series at three games each.

Leadoff batter Tony Cosier and Doug Hill scored first-inning runs on an infield error, a single, another error and a passed ball.

Gibb drove in the last run with a sacrifice fly.

Deciding game of the series is slated for 6:30 p.m. Friday.

CONGRATULATIONS are extended by Ontario's tall (six-five) Karl Beacom to little (five-five) Hal Clayton, of Saskatchewan, who defeated Beacom in playoff to take singles championship.

Playoffs Mark Bowling Finals

Hal Clayton, of Regina, and a Tom Jarvis-skipped Vancouver entry followed extended trails Wednesday before capturing the Canadian lawn bowling singles and rinks championships at Carnarvon Park.

Montreal's Harry Elliott and John Henderson clinched the doubles title on Tuesday, and all winners earned trips to the 1970 Commonwealth Games in Edinburgh, Scotland.

Clayton and the Vancouver rink had to go through playoffs before emerging with the titles.

Clayton won the final two rounds of regular singles play Wednesday morning to overtake Tuesday's leader, Karl Beacom of Toronto, who won his only scheduled game. This left them each with a 5-1 records.

In the 15-point tie-breaker contest, Clayton nipped Beacom 15-13 for the crown.

Vancouver bowlers representing B.C. lost a chance to clinch the rinks title earlier when defeated 13-12 by a Quebec entry skipped by Jim Brodie.

THREE-WAY TIE

When John Wheler's Ontario entry tumbled Nova Scotia 22-9, B.C.'s loss resulted in a three-way tie between the Vancouver quartet and the Quebec and Ontario groups.

Ontario drew a bye for having the most plus points of the three-day competition.

Jarvis, Ted Hodgson, Jim Denholm and Sam Caffyn then bounced Quebec 10-1 in the eight-end playoff opener and followed through with a 12-2 romp over Ontario to claim the crown.

Deal Works Both Ways As Bombers, Argos Win

Gabler Leads Rider Upset; Raimey Key in Esk Loss

By The Canadian Press

Dave Raimey and Wally Gabler, the chief figures in a major Canadian Football League trade, made both their coaches look good as they led their teams to wins in CFL action Wednesday night.

In Winnipeg, Gabler, who was traded from Toronto Argonauts, led the Blue Bombers to a 16-14 win over Saskatchewan Roughriders in a Western Conference game before 21,100 fans. In Edmonton, Raimey, traded from Winnipeg to Toronto, ran the ball for more than 100 yards in leading the Argonauts to a 24-12 victory over Eskimos before 20,850 fans.

Although Raimey failed to score a touchdown, he so mesmerized the Eskimo defenders that halfback Bill Symons was able to score, with quarterback Tom Wilkinson adding another Toronto touchdown and defensive back Dick Thornton returning a pass interception for a third Argo touchdown. Dave Mann kicked a field goal and three converts.

Toronto's win moved them into a first-place tie with Ottawa Rough riders in the Eastern Football Conference. Each team has won four games. However, Toronto has lost one game, while Ottawa is undefeated.

In Winnipeg, Gabler utilized the Winnipeg ground game, and scrambled himself for valuable yardage after being apparently trapped for losses trying to pass. The Bombers' win over the previously-undefeated Roughriders moved them into a WFC second-place tie with Calgary Stampeders.

Bomber Kicker Connects Twice

Pierre Guindon kicked two field goals for the Bombers and added a convert and single. Amos Van Pelt, the man counted on to replace Raimey, darted 32 yards for the only Winnipeg touchdown.

The other Winnipeg points came in the first quarter when Saskatchewan quarterback Ron Lancaster was tackled in the end zone by Bill Whisler for two-point safety touch.

The Argonauts utilized a ball-control offence to handcuff the Eskimos and sparkled defensively to give Edmonton little chance to mount a sustained offence. The Eskimos could manage only one touchdown, on a one-yard quarterback sneak by Corey Colehour. Dave Cutler missed on the convert but added two field goals to round out the Edmonton scoring.

Saskatchewan was also handcuffed by Winnipeg's defence, scoring only one touchdown by fullback George Reed with Jack Abendschan adding two field goals, a convert and a single.

The Bombers were jubilant about their win.

Fullback Butch Pressley felt that the loss of Raimey may have helped the Bombers.

"Before, teams usually stacked their defences to stop the Raimey sweep," he said. "Wally (Gabler) gave everybody almost equal work tonight and the Roughriders didn't know where we were coming from."

Thornton's touchdown in the Toronto-Edmonton game gave him a career total of six on intercepted passes, a mark which ties him with Green Bay Packer Herb Adderley of the National Football League and a record which embraces all professional football.

Wilkinson, in his first year as a starting quarterback in the CFL, was outstanding in the game as he blended passing and running to keep the Argos moving steadily.

Raimey slashed for 106 yards running on 14 carries and a 7.6-yard average gain. Symons also gained 68 yards on 13 carries and added another 36 yards on three passes.

Van Pelt was Winnipeg's leading ground-gainer with 13 carries for 85 yards. Fullback Bob Houmard carried 12 times for 68 yards and caught one pass for 14.

Flanker Ken Nielsen was Winnipeg's prime receiver with four catches for 29 yards.

KEYES ESCAPES; OHLER RELEASED

VANCOUVER—Leroy Keyes isn't with the B.C. Lions today. Neither is Pete Ohler, the Canadian quarterback who at times appeared capable of leading the Lions out of the Canadian Football League wilderness.

Hopes of signing Keyes, one of the last holdouts among last year's great college stars drafted by U.S. pro clubs, evaporated Wednesday when it was announced Leroy had signed a three-year contract with Philadelphia Eagles.

Although contract terms were not revealed, Keyes was earlier reported to be asking $225,000 while the Eagles were offering $170,000 to the Purdue star.

Ohler, who was plagued last season with a bad ankle and has seen little action this season in the first five B.C. games because of a sore shoulder was released Wednesday. He had thrown only 13 passes, completed six for 56 yeards and had two intercepted.

His release leaves Paul Brothers in the official spot as Lions' No. 1 quarterback. Hank Grepda, a rookie Canadian who played at Washington State University, is now back-up signal caller.

Lions also announced Wednesday that they have acquired flanker Casey Boyett on a five-day tryout contract.

With Chicago Bears, of the National League, until released recently, Boyett has good speed and is a capable pass receiver.

Tallon Uses Big Drives To Lead First Round

KELOWNA (CP) — "When Dale is driving well, he's impossible. He's probably the most consistent long hitter I've seen."

Tim McCutcheon of Peterborough, the only scratch player in the field, was talking about his Ontario team-mate Dale Tallon, the sometime hockey player who parlayed a big drive into a three-under-par 69 and the first-round lead in the Canadian junior golf championship.

Tallon, six feet, one inch and 200 pounds, carried a one-stroke lead into today's second round and his 69 helped Ontario to a 289 in the four-man interprovincial team competition, three shots better than Alberta at the halfway point in the 36-hole test.

Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver, the 17-year-old medallist last year, David Russell of Medicine Hat, Alta., Geoff Longland of Comox, B.C., and a surprising Alan Defoe, also of Vancouver, went right behind the burly belter from Toronto with 70s.

Tallon was only one of nine juniors to break par on the 6,251-yard Kelowna Golf and Country Club course, a beautiful tree-lined layout that turned into a monster for most of the 159 other players.

FIELD REDUCED

The reduced field of 168 was to tee off in today's second round and it will be cut to the low 60 and ties for the final 36 holes Friday and Saturday, probably at about 150.

Tallon, knocked out last year in the third round of match play by Doug Stewart of Vancouver, who went on to defeat Bill Morrison of Toronto 9 and 8 for the title, is making his fifth appearance at the championship, but his first as a member of the Ontario team.

He played with a pressure bandage on his left wrist after pulling a tendon during a weight-lifting session in Toronto two weeks ago, but it didn't seem to bother his game.

DISASTROUS HOLE

Robin Burrell and Jim Girard, each with 73s, and Carl Schwantje (74) paced the Victoria entrants while Dave Mick was jolted by a disastrous 10 on the par-five fifth hole and finished with 77.

One of the pre-tourney favorites, Dave hit two shots out of bounds on the fifth and added to his miseries by using three putts.

Ken, Nirmal Selected For Shamrock Awards

By STEWART LANG

Victoria Shamrocks collected only silverware Wednesday night as they closed out the home-floor portion of their Western Lacrosse Association schedule before 881 fans at the Memorial Arena.

They dropped a 12-7 decision to Vancouver Carlings while Ken Alexander and Nirmal Dillon were sharing the most important pieces of silver as the Irish held their annual "awards night".

Alexander was selected as the most-valuable-player and shared the most-competitive-player award with Dillon. The latter honor was decided by a team vote.

Dillon was also named as the player best combining sportsmanship and inspirational capabilities.

ROOKIE OF YEAR

Netminder George Grover received the rookie-of-the-year award, Bill Spotswood was selected as the most improved Shamrock and Smokey MacLean was voted the best conditioned player.

One of the other heroes of the night belonged in the ranks of Carlings—Brian Davidson.

Davidson matched the Irish total with seven goals as well as assisting on one other.

Davidson, who is still registered as a junior, continually broke through the sagging Shamrock defence and only some spectacular saves by Grover kept the Irish in contention.

PACE SHAMROCKS

Mike Beaulac and Tom Somner paced Victoria with two tallies each while single goals were scored by Ranjit Dillon, Charn Dhillon and MarLean.

After the award presentations between the second and third periods, Shamrocks caught fire briefly, whittling a 9-4 lead down to 9-7 in the first 12 minutes. But from then on the game belonged to Vancouver.

The flurry was also marred by the only fight of the night when Beaulac squared off with Vancouver's Dan Cameron.

Vancouver showed up with some new long-passing tactics, probably worked out to offset the more polished play of New Westminister Salmonbellies in the semi-final playoffs next week.

Victoria coach Tom Druce pointed out: "They must have been practicing throwing the long pass. It proved very effective tonight."

Wandering Romo Finds New Home

By The Associated Press

Vicente Romo is missing again—this time from the Boston Red Sox bullpen.

Romo, the wandering Mexican relief pitcher who disappeared from the American League baseball club for 36 hours in Chicago two weeks ago, hasn't been back to the bullpen since.

Red Sox manager Dick Williams has turned Romo into a starter and with good results. The right-hander pitched his first complete game in the major leagues Wednesday night, beating Kansas City Royals 4-3.

He scattered nine hits and got credit for the victory when Syd O'Brien's two-out, bases-loaded single drove in George Scott with the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning.

In other AL action Wednesday, Detroit Tigers blanked Oakland Athletics 2-0, Minnesota Twins clipped Washington Senators 4-2, California Angels beat Cleveland Indians 4-1 in 10 innings, Baltimore Orioles jolted Seattle Pilots 7-2 and New York Yankees downed Chicago White Sox 6-3.

Jerry Adair's leadoff home run in the ninth inning tied the game for the Royals. Earlier, Pat Kelly had tagged a two-run Kansas City homer.

In the National League, New York Mets moved to within two games of the slipping Cubs from Chicago.

The Mets defeated San Diego Padres for the 11th straight time, 4-1, while the Cubs were losing to Cincinnati Reds, 6-3.

COLE COACHES GAMES SQUAD

Trevor Cole, former coach of Victoria Olympians (1960-67), has been selected to coach Canada's swimming team at the Commonwealth Games in Edinburgh next July. After leaving Victoria, Cole coached Port Alberni Aquatics before tackling the same job with Vancouver Amateur Swim Club last year.

Denfords Remain In Playoff Battle

Denford Electric fended off elimination with a 4-2 victory over Lake Cowichan during the fifth game of the best-of-seven Stuffy McGinnis Men's Sofball League playoff final Wednesday at Heywood Avenue Park.

Lake Cowichan leads the series 3-2 with the sixth game scheduled for 6:45 tonight.

Scott Sinclair scored the tying run on a passed ball in the sixth inning while Barry Wilkin and Barry Milne took advantage of two Cowichan errors and a passed ball to score the winning runs in the final frame.

Wilkin, earned the pitching victory, allowing six singles and a two-out homer by Jerry Jenzen in the third.

Vaulters, Jumpers Rate Part Of Canadian Meet Spotlight

By STEVE HUME

Take three 16-foot pole vaulters, one Canadian championship, a limited number of berths on an international team, some good luck with the weather and what do you get?

Perhaps a 17-foot vault, says Ron Bowker, meet director of the Canadian track and field championships, which will be staged at Centennial Stadium Saturday and Sunday.

While admitting optimism, Bowker said he would not be surprised if one of the vaulters in the national meet became the first Canadian to clear 17 feet.

Brightest prospect for a record effort is Ontario ace Bob Raftis, holder of the national mark of 16 feet five inches who has several near misses at 17 feet.

Also considered title threats are two other Eastern Canada athletes — Larry Wolfe, a member of the British Commonwealth team this year, and Bruce Simpson, a rapidly-improving 18-year-old who was the first Canadian high school vaulter to clear 16 feet.

"This will be one of the most interesting events of the nationals," commented Bowker. "The chances of 17-foot vault, if we get good weather conditions, must be considered good.

"Let's face it, it is this kind of competition and incentives that produce record-breaking performances."

Top Performers Get Trip to Tokyo

One major incentive to all contestants is that leading athletes in the Canadian championships will qualify for berths with the national team going to Tokyo in late September for the Pacific Conference Games, which will also include teams from Japan, Australia, New Zealand and the United States.

Also rated high in the bounce department is Vancouver's Wilf Wedman, who holds the Canadian high jump record of 6' 10½".

Wedman, who has cleared 6' 11" in practice, has a new coach this year and is confident it is only a matter of time until he tops seven feet in competition.

His chief competition may come from a Vancouver 18-year-old Rick Cuttell, who took the Canada Games silver medal at Halifax with a 6' 8" bound.

The women's high jump is similarly high calibre, with three jumpers clustered within three inches of the national record of 5'9½", held by Diane Gerace of Trail.

Debbie Brill, the 17-year-old Langley star, drew a standing ovation from 85,000 Germans when she cleared 5' 9" at the Europe - Americas track meet and is the girl to beat.

And another Debbie — Van Kiekebelt — of Scarborough is a hot 15-year-old contender with a best jump of 5'6". Diane Jones of Saskatchewan has an identical jump, and the experience of being Canada's pentathlon champion.

The women's long jump should be a battle between Vancouver's 18-year-old Brenda Eisler and Olympic veteran and Canadian record-holder Joan Hendry. Both have leaped more than 19'10½".

And a three-way battle is shaping up in the men's event. Mike Mason of Scarborough, a Simon Fraser student, has recorded a wind-assisted 25'3" leap, while Vancouver's Pete Spencer is right behind with 24'2½".

Canadian record-holder Michel Charland of Montreal, who is a definite entry, is the favorite with a recorded 25'7¼".

While the vaulters and jumpers will get plenty of attention, they will only share the athletic spotlight this weekend because brilliant efforts are expected from many of the runners and throwers.

Almost every event in the two-day meet offers prospects of excitement and some of Canada's greatest track and field stars were expected to arrive today, in time to become acquainted with the Centennial Stadium conditions.

Titles will be decided on both afternoons with finals scheduled Saturday from 1:30 to 5:40 and on Sunday from 1:30 to 5.

Tension Colors Oil Strike Vote

FORT McMURRAY, Alta. (CP) — Three hundred workers on strike at the huge Great Canadian Oil Sands plant 20 miles north of here vote today on the latest company contract offer in an atmosphere of some tension.

Already in the strike, five days old today, there has been angry shoving and arguing between striking and non-striking workers on the picket lines, a window in a company bus has been broken, and two strikers are reported to have been knocked down Wednesday by a car passing through the picket.

The strike has shut down the GCOS plant, one of the largest industrial operations in Canada, and more than 300 non-striking workers are refusing to cross the picket lines of those on strike.

Great Canadian has been plagued with a host of problems in its attempts to get its pioneering $300,000,000 plant into operation extracting crude petroleum from the oil-impregnated tar sands in the Fort McMurray area.

Technical difficulties delayed by months the company's achievement of full production capacity of 45,000 barrels of crude daily. GCOS showed a $16,000,000 loss in the first six months of this year.

The oil sands, lying on and near the surface in this area 250 miles northeast of Edmonton, are estimated to hold more than 600,000,000,000 barrels of recoverable crude oil. The Great Canadian plant is the only one so far allowed to operate in the sands.

CHARGES SABOTAGE

A source said Wednesday there were attempts by workers to sabotage the shut-down of the plant last weekend when the strike loomed. A spokesman for the workers said trouble in the shut-down procedures was caused by management personnel operating machines with which they were unfamiliar.

The oil production process is tremendously complex and cannot be carried on without a full complement of skilled workers. A company spokesman has said the company is incurring "quite high" costs in keeping the plant idling.

A source also said Wednesday that the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union has interfered in the strike and is causing it to run longer than it would otherwise.

Today's vote by the workers, vote which the bargaining association says is being "shoved on us" by the company and a government conciliation officer, will be carried out in Fort McMurray and in Edmonton, where some workers are looking for temporary jobs.

The vote is on the latest company offer of a 30-cents-an-hour wage increase retroactive to May 1, an increase in pension contributions equivalent to three to five cents an hour, and a change in the designation of one job.

The bargaining association is asking a 50-cents-an-hour increase. Current wage rates are $2.71 to $4.25 an hour.

Before the Judge

Dennis G. Newstead, 9495 Maryland Drive, Wednesday pleaded guilty before Judge William Ostler to 11 additional charges of false pretenses over $50.

The accused, a former sales representatives for Pacific Petroleum Ltd., on Tuesday pleaded guilty to three charges of obtaining through false pretenses goods and cash from the company.

He was remaneded to Sept. 3 for sentence.

A 15-year-old boy was remanded to Friday for sentence after pleading guilty to theft under $50 and two counts of breaking and entering.

The youth stole money from a cigarette machine, ice cream and eggs from a dairy firm and bread and buns from a baker's truck.

He was transferred from juvenile to provincial court.

MISS PNE CHOSEN

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 17-year-old brunette, Patsy McPhee, was chosen Miss PNE at the Pacific National Exhibition here Wednesday night from among 27 contestants.

Miss McPhee, who graduated in June from Crofton House School in Vancouver, entered the contest as Miss New Westminster after earlier winning the title Miss Sapperton.

She won a cash award of $1,000 and a number of other prizes.

Miss McPhee, daughter of Mrs. D'Arcy McPhee, of New Westminster, plans a career in nursing.

Withdrawal Of Troops 'Not Faked'

PARIS (Reuters) — Chief U.S. negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge told the 32nd session of the peace talks today that President Nixon was delaying further U.S. troops withdrawals from South Vietnam because of increased guerrilla attacks.

"The president has decided to defer a decision regarding additional U.S. troop replacements until we can further evaluate your recent military activity, in particular the recent wave of attacks, and examine potential activity in the future," he told the Hanoi and Viet Cong delegates.

He denied Viet Cong accusations that B-52 bombings have been intensified and that the withdrawal of 25,000 U.S. troops was faked.

Crackdown On Junk Cars Launched

A crackdown on people who abandon junk cars on city streets is being carried out by city police.

In traffic court Wednesday, David Harvey, 641 Dunedin, was fined $75 for leaving a car in the 500 Hillside block.

In the past, fines for similar offences have ranged between $10 and $15.

City prosecutor Cory Stotle said the city will press for stiffer penalties in view of the large number of cars which have been abandoned on city streets since the start of the year.

"More than 100 cars have been left on city streets since the start of the year," he said. "It is a real problem."

Maximum fine under provincial traffic laws is $500 or three months in jail.

An offender can also be charged under a city bylaw.

It was pointed out that if a person leaves a car parked on a street for more than 72 hours, he can also be charged with "storing a car" on a street regardless of whether he intended to move it or not.

Inspector Richard Berry of the traffic department, said the reason for an increase in the number of cars abandoned on public roads is because their owners feel the vehicles would not pass the tests at the automobile testing station.

"Some owners remove parts from their cars before abandoning the vehicles," he said. "So they are absolutely worthless."

He said tracking down owners of abandoned cars is time-consuming and costly.

"We sometimes spend days trying to locate the owner of a car," he said.

SANTA CLAUS became a summer Santa this week when he hitched two horses to a home-made chariot and entered the Sylvan Lake parade, and he's only four months early.

He Even 'Blew' Into the Cello!

By VINCENT CANBY

NEW YORK (NYT) — Even as a small, red-haired boy with poor vision, Virgil Starkwell, the hero of Woody Allen's "Take the Money and Run," is betrayed by fate — and by the fact that although he is aggressive, he also is a schlemiel (incompetent).

The kid tries to rob a gumball machine and his fist gets hopelessly wedged in the slot. When he is picked up by the juvenile authorities, the charge against him reads: "assault, battery and the illegal possession of a wart."

Virgil goes straight for a brief period and shines shoes on street corners, but his reach exceeds his grasp.

When he gives a spit shine, it lands not on the toe of the shoe, but on his customer's pants leg. He's not much more successful with his cello.

His music teacher later recalls with some embarrassment: "He really had no conception of how to play. He blew into it."

Virgil Starkwell, who grows up to be Woody Allen himself, is a marvelous mess, and "Take the Money and Run," which Allen wrote (with Mickey Rose) and directed, is a very funny movie.

The film is the cinematic equivalent to one of Allen's best nightclub monologues, a kind of cowardly epic peopled with shy FBI agents, cons who are wanted for dancing with mailmen, over-analyzing parents, and one lady blackmailer who has the soul of a Jewish mother — she likes to feed her victim good, hot meals.

Allen has performed in — and contributed to the screenplays of — other films ("What's New, Pussycat?," "Casino Royale"), but this is his first attempt at direction.

The nicest surprise of "Take the Money and Run" is that it shows he has been able to complement visually the word-oriented humor of the writer-performer.

The film is a comedy of short takes, the chronicle of the relentless decline of the sort of bank robber who has to get his hold-up note initialed by a vice-president.

It has the texture of a collage — blackout sketches, sight gags, fake cinema verite interviews, old newsreel footage, parodies of all sorts of other movies and the kind of pacing — or maybe it's just momentum — that carries the viewer over the bad gags to the good ones.

WILD RIDE LANDS MAN IN PRISON

DUNCAN—John Henry Murphy, 1353 Pandora Ave., Victoria, was sentenced to 30 days in jail and had his licence suspended for one year after being convicted in court of dangerous driving.

The charge was laid after an RCMP constable on foot patrol testified that Murphy's car accelerated so rapidly on downtown Craig Street it zigzagged for a complete block and threatened to turn over.

The constable said this procedure was continued around all four corners of a city block and was being repeated when the driver was caught.

Prosecutor Bill Baillie told the court this was the accused's second offence of dangerous driving and he had a long record.

Zambia Official Stays After Shuffle

LUSAKA (Reuters) — Vice-President Simon Kapwepwe withdrew Wednesday night his two-day-old resignation from the Zambian government of President Kenneth Kaunda and said he will stay until his term expires in August, 1970.

Kaunda Tuesday re-appointed Kapwepwe vice-president in a cabinet reshuffle and appealed to him to stay on.

At a news conference Kapwepwe said he made his latest decision after a two-hour meeting with Kaunda and after numerous appeals from Zambians, Zambian organizations—including the labor movement—and Zambians living in the United States and Britain.

He said his resignation had been a matter of principle. One reason he gave was alleged discrimination against his own Bemba tribesmen.

A few hours after Kapwepwe resigned Monday, Kaunda dissolved the central committee of his ruling United National Independence party.

He said in a television and radio broadcast that divisive forces were seeking to destroy the fabric of the party and nation.

The moves came after repeated indications of a struggle for power in the top echelons of the party.

In reshuffling his cabinet, Kaunda left Kapwepwe the vice-presidency, but appointed another minister to the development and finance ministry.

MARCHAND
. . . reluctant draftee

Grit Minister Would Accept Party Draft

QUEBEC (CP) — Jean Marchand, federal minister of regional expansion, said Wednesday he would "reluctantly" accept a draft to the Quebec Liberal leadership.

Reached at his home near here, Mr. Marchand said he would do so only on condition that Jean Lesage decided to give up the provincial party leadership.

It is the first time Mr. Marchand, longtime friend and one of the closest cabinet colleagues of Prime Minister Trudeau, has said anything to encourage the periodically recurring speculation that he would enter Quebec politics.

Ironically, Mr. Lesage tried to persuade him to join the provincial Liberals in 1962 when he was at the height of his power as premier.

Mr. Marchand, former president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, entered federal politics with Mr. Trudeau in the 1965 general election.

He said Wednesday he will do nothing to undermine Mr. Lesage's hold on the party.

It was up to the provincial Liberals to settle their own problems.

He insisted that he would be reluctant to make the move and would do so only if a provincial leadership convention sent for him.

As of now, there is no provincial leadership convention in the cards. But Claude Wagner, a former justice minister aspiring to succeed Mr. Lesage, has been calling for a leadership convention and announced this week that he will soon go on a province-wide speaking tour.

Mr. Lesage plans to ask for a secret ballot on the issue of his leadership at the party's regular annual convention, beginning Oct. 31 in Quebec City.

Taiwan Main Block to Washington-Peking Harmony

By STANLEY KARNOW

HONG KONG (WP) — While they repeatedly assert their desire to ease tensions between the United States and Communist China, President Nixon and his associates have yet to approach the major stumbling block to a rapprochement with Peking—the Taiwan issue.

And as they procrastinate, there are indications that this obstacle to a possible accommodation with Peking may be further enlarged by the Pentagon in collaboration with Chinese Nationalst officials anxious to prevent an improvement of U.S. relations with the Communists.

Though they are still at the talking stage, Chiang Kai-shek's nationalists are currently striving to persuade American military planners that their island redoubt is the ideal alternative to Okinawa, where the status of the U.S. bases is due to be modified soon.

Among other inducements, the Chiang regime has reportedly offered to help construct a new airfield for American use at Hualien on the eastern side of the island.

As well the Ching Chuan Kang base in central Taiwan, which has been expanded in recent years to handle B52s.

These others are tempting to Pentagon strategists, who understandably want to maintain their forward positions close to the Asian mainland. They contend, quite plausibly, that tactical flexibility increases with proximity to the potential target.

But if the nationalist invitation to a U.S. build-up is accepted, the White House can shelve any realistic hopes of ending within the foreseable future the past two decades of dealocked American ties with the Red Chinese.

Oddly enough, the prospect of a reinforced U.S. military presence on the Island comes at a time when the Communists are beginning to show faint signs that they may be adopting a more supple stance on the Taiwan question.

They will not, of course, drop their claim to the Island, which they covet with the kind of emotional intensity that the French have towards Alsace-Lorraine.

Incidentally, they share this passion with the nationalists, for whom Taiwan is officially only a "province" of their China.

Lately, however, the Communists have toned down their former threats to "liberate" Taiwan. Nor do they mention the mutual defence agreement of 1954, under which Washington is committed to protecting the nationalists against attack.

Instead, Peking's main propaganda theme at present is that the American forces must be withdrawn from Taiwan and the strait separating the island from mainland China before a genuine detente with the United States can be expected.

To Americans accustomed to accepting the defence of Taiwan as an article of faith, the Communist demand may sound like a call for capitulation. Examined closely, though it is far less dramatic than it seems.

For one thing, most of the mighty Seventh Fleet was long ago shifted down to the waters off Vietnam, leaving only a few destroyers, radar vessels and EC121 aircraft in the Taiwan Strait, primarily to gather intelligence.

As for the 10,000 American soldiers on Taiwan, the majority are unnecessary for the island's defence and will become increasingly idle as U.S. military aid to the nationalists phases out over the next few years.

Meanwhile, most specialists concur that the nationalists are more than capable of protecting themselves against the Communists' obsolete aircraft and navy.

This was proved during the 1958 Strait crisis, when Chiang's pilots clobbered the Communists even though they were outnumbered.

The fact that they have refrained from attempting another assault against the nationalists since then is clear evidence that the Communists are well aware of their inferiority.

Thus their demand for a U.S. withdrawal is not designed to leave the island naked to attack, but to underline their principle that the Taiwan question is a domestic Chinese issue to be settled without foreign interference. Or as Communists here put it privately:

"Let the Americans get out and we will resolve the problem ourselves."

In many ways, this position does not differ radically from President Nixon's announced intention to disentangle the U.S. from internal Asian conflicts.

The conflict between the nationalists and Communists is, after all, a civil war.

A reduction of American strength on Taiwan, then, may serve to signal Peking that Washington seriously means to bridge the essential gap dividing the U.S. and China.

While it may not evoke an immediate Communist response, such a move is better than military build-up, which would only widen the chasm.

Support Forces First to Go

BANGKOK (AP) — The first American troops to be withdrawn from Thailand probably will come from the 12,000-man U.S. Army support group, authoritative source said Wednesday.

The sources said it was unlikely that any of the 36,000 U.S. Air Force personnel stationed at six large bases in Thailand would be withdrawn as long as the Vietnam war continues and the Communists gain ground in Laos.

The source said it was also "most unlikely" that any of the 1,000 U.S. advisers working with the Thai armed forces would be withdrawn.

"We have a lot of construction projects, road building and so on that have recently been completed," one source said. Units in these activities will probably be the first to go."

U.S. and Thai representatives begin negotiations Sept. 1 to make plans for the gradual withdrawal of American forces no longer needed because of the reduction of the American force in Vietnam.

Women's Clubs' Briefs Are Just Pious Rituals

BY JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — Every year women's groups present governments with requests for action on assorted issues. Sometimes several ask for action on the same issue, year after year.

The presentation has almost a ritual quality.

It begins with the submission to the relevant government of a brief outlining that year's requests, carefully documented and approved by the club membership. With it goes a pious hope that it will be read before the next step is taken.

That step is a club delegation meeting with the government leader and cabinet ministers. The brief is read aloud by a delegate and the appropriate ministers then comment. There is an exchange of amenities, perhaps a photograph is taken. Then, say a sampling of club women, there is usually a longer pause.

The consensus among experienced delegates is that the effort is worth making because there may be results in the long run. There is nonetheless a wry note in their comments about it all.

Margaret Hyndman is a lawyer and past international and national president of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs. She is skeptical.

One of her causes has been to get equal-pay legislation for women. She says repeated pressure may have helped get present laws on the books, but that they are not as strong as asked.

"What it reduces itself to is how many voters are involved.

"On different occasions we have been told we have had much more effect than we realized, but I haven't seen much evidence of it.

"If they would give you a fight on the merits of a question there would be some point in it, but they are so polite and disinterested."

Margaret Ashdown, current B and P president, says she thinks submissions do get results, but agrees they are not necessarily in the form asked for.

"We've been well received on every occasion. This doesn't mean a darn thing, but it's comforting.

"We did track back one series of requests on estate tax and found we got legislation—not exactly in the form we wanted, but you hope you plant a seed."

Finding the right person is part of the problem, says Mrs. P. J. Chadsey, president of the YWCA.

"I think you do get something in the long run, but I think you only get it if your requests are reasonably based and properly stated. You have to have a strong conviction, a properly documented case to present and see that it gets to the right people. Then, if you keep hammering away, something gets done. But that's a very long view.

"We have seen some improvements in what you might call the general status of women. The Canadian bill of rights is something we'd worked on for a long time."

Timing can be another important factor, says Mrs. G. B. Armstrong, Ontario CAC president.

"I was quite pleased this year. Sometimes it's because your resolutions are timely."

SOME PROGRESS MADE

A list of some of the requests made in the last 50 years is an indicator of how successful the clubs are.

In 1917, the National Council of Women was seeking "better care of the feeble-minded," suitable films for children, standardization of canned goods.

In both the 1920s and 1930s they submitted briefs on the status of women.

In 1930 they celebrated the success of appeals for appointments of women to the Senate. In 1937 they "reported with gratification" the appointment of women to federal royal commissions.

In 1949 the then Canadian Association of Consumers was asking about controls on rising prices.

In the 1960s, the B and P have dealt with rehabilitation for female offenders, ballot boxes in hospitals and rest homes, tax relief for low-income people and sex discrimination in unemployment insurance.

RECEPTION PLANNED

Mr. and Mrs. Archie H. Wills, Camosack Manor, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary next Wednesday. They were married in Toronto in 1919 after Mr. Wills returned from three years' overseas service with the 58th Battery, C.F.A. They came to Victoria following their marriage and have resided here since. Mr. Wills, a native son, served as acting mayor of Victoria for three years and was an alderman for 10 years. Mrs. Wills has been a member of the Women's Canadian Club and is a past president of Chapter K, P.E.O. Sisterhood. Mr. and Mrs. Wills have three children, Kenneth, of Victoria; Mrs. David (Eileen) Wilson, of Montreal, and Mrs. George (Dorothy) Little, of Calgary. They have 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. They will have a family dinner at the Empress Hotel and a reception later in the Georgian Lounge.

Nose Shape Affected

VANCOUVER (CP) — A University of California orthodontist said Tuesday there is more to the practice of orthodontics than just correcting the growth of a youngster's teeth.

Dr. Spiro J. Chaconas, here for the three-day meeting of the Pacific Coast Society of orthodontists, said the nose and chin are very much involved in the development of a child's mouth.

A guest lecturer at the conference, Dr. Chaconas has specialized in researching nose growth as related to tooth growth.

He said in an interview that premature or incorrect removal of molars to make room for protruding front teeth will, in effect, pull the entire face back.

"If it's done between the ages of 10 and 16, the period of most intensive growth," he said, "then often along with the teeth the lips will move back. And the nose too.

"It will remain stunted and cause the patient psychological harm."

To correct the esthetic deficiency, expensive plastic surgery is the only answer, he said.

Dr. Chaconas said with new technology, the mechanical process of correcting tooth growth "is quite easy."

Out-of-Work Job Finder Now Works As Cat-Sitter

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — When Judy Burns's job with Sarnia's student employment office ended after two months, the service got her perhaps its most unusual summer placement. She's a cat-sitter.

The 17-year-old student was assistant director of Operation Funnel, but when the load of job applications tapered off, director David Stoesser carried on alone, and Judy was looking for work.

Her job now is grooming, cleaning, feeding and amusing 32 Persian show cats owned by a Sarnia couple, and cat-sitting on weekends when they are away attending cat shows.

Already she's learned that Persians are like most cats: "They like their necks and under their chins rubbed." She says she's eager to learn techniques of feeding, cleaning and show grooming because the job could extend to part-time winter work.

About 700 students applied to Operation Funnel, but less than one-quarter were placed.

What was probably its shortest placement went to Roger Bedard and Gilbert Piche, both 17. Their job lasted half an hour.

The students were waiting in the Funnel office when a woman came in looking for two boys to fix a flat tire on her car two blocks away. She was going to call a garage, but "knowing the problem teen-agers have finding jobs," decide to use student labor, she said.

Another unusual offer came from a man seeking a combination cook, dishwasher and mechanic to work without pay. The job would provide an all-expenses-paid tour of Nova Scotia late in the summer in the man's trailer.

Little Red School Home for Artists

ORANGEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — After searching in Mexico and Europe for a suitable home and studio, artist-teacher Jim Gordaneer and his wife Miria settled in a little red schoolhouse on a side road four miles from this town to the northwest of Metropolitan Toronto.

Since their marriage eight years ago Jim has been trying to make art a full-time occupation but has always had to supplement his earnings by teaching.

"Living in Greece and several other places was inexpensive," Jim says, "but there was no way to earn a living."

The couple then began looking for land in the Orangeville area on which to build.

"Land in this area is expensive—$1,000 an acre—but we got the 1885 schoolhouse for $1,800," Jim says. "Renovations came to $10,000 but would have been more if we hadn't done most of the work ourselves."

A Toronto architect friend, David Tsow, designed a workable interior for the schoolhouse and a builder in the area dropped in from time to time to correct their mistakes and tell them what to do next.

Both earned money to finance their expenses, Jim teaching art and Miria grade school. Weekends were spent working on the schoolhouse.

The interior has two bedrooms and a bathroom upstairs. The downstairs is a roomy three-level area with a large artist's studio.

With property paid for, other expenses include hydro, between $250 and $300 a year; taxes $170, and food, clothing, telephone and car expenses.

With these expenses, Jim has been able to reduce his teaching job to four nights a week. Miria gave up her teaching job a year ago to have their first child, a daughter, Alisa.

Miria's hobby is pottery so this year the Gordaneers bought a railway caboose in London, Ont., for $250 and for $300 had it shipped to the schoolhouse to be used as a potting shed.

Knaves Steal Tarts For Gladys' Party

By PENNY SAVER

The Queen of Hearts, alias Gladys, made some tarts all on a summer's day. Before 4:30 in the afternoon a whole platoon of young knaves had stolen the tarts away.

When Gladys, like Old Mother Hubbard, discovered her cupboard bare of tarts her language was far from fit for young ears.

"I made those for my bridge group," she cried. "And I'm almost out of filling."

"A friend in need is a friend indeed," I said. "I will lend you whatever I have in the filling line."

When I got back the pastry was made and one pan of shells ready for filling. Half were filled with lemon butter and Gladys was wrestling with the bottle and a spoon, trying to scrape it clean to the very last drop.

"Drat," she said, putting it down in disgust. "That was the last of my lemon butter and I love lemon butter tarts. Do you have any?"

"Try apple," I said kindly. "It's some of Mathilda's own."

The apple was accepted, but Gladys couldn't forget. She kept looking mournfully at the bottle and the lemon butter sticking to the sides and in the corners, and sighing. "I could have got at least one more tart filled if I could have scraped that clean," she said at last. "But my rubber spatula is too large to fit in the mouth of the jar."

"You need a small one," I said, sneaking a lick of apple butter, "like the one I saw the other day for 35 cents. The rubber scraper is less than two inches wide — in fact they even showed it fitting into a bottle.

"The handle is of colored plastic so it is completely washable, and as long as on a regular scraper so you can get to the bottom."

Wrench Removes Lids

Had I the gift of foresight I would have bought one of those scrapers as well as a jar wrench to take the top off a well-aged jar of my own jam.

The jar wrenches I saw were $1.39 each and will adapt to jars of the smallest possible size to one that is four inches in diameter.

This jar wrench is a bar of metal with a lip at one end and ratchet holes down the length. Another bar is set at an angle to it and fits into the appropriate ratchet holes to grip the jar lid. Then one holds both tightly and uses the whole thing as a lever to work the lid loose — or, counterwise, to give it a good tightening twist. The handles of these openers came in different colors.

Something else in the good idea department is a hammer especially for the housewife.

This hammer costs 98 cents — not a large investment — and has a special small rubber grip to fit a delicate feminine hand and a small lightweight head with a claw at one end for pulling nails and levering things up. Needless to say it will fit easily into drawers.

While I would recommend a full-size hammer for big jobs, this housewife's hammer could certainly handle the little ones that husbands sometimes overlook.

SEW SIMPLE

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Mrs. Farmer,

Could you tell me where I can get material as wide as shower curtains are made of? I would like to do some decorating this summer and want to match the curtains to the wallpaper.—Mrs. A. J.

Dear Mrs. A.J.:

I think you will notice that today shower curtains are made of practically any fabric, cotton, moire, velvet, etc. I truthfully haven't seen any shower curtains that are made of fabric that haven't been pieced with one seam down the centre. With the fullness of the curtain, the seam will never be noticed and you can surely save money by making your own curtains.

Incidentally, I would like to pass on to you an experiment I did this week. I have seen so much fabric used instead of wallpaper in the decorator magazines that I tried one wall myself to see if it would actually work. I chose a colorful print cotton of a rather good quality that I knew would be colorfast. I should have smoothed or sanded the walls first but I got so anxious to try it that I didn't take the time.

Using a regular mixture of wallpaper paste (perhaps a little thicker), put the paste on the wall, not on the fabric. Be sure to cut the selvage off both sides of the fabric and begin with your project. It takes hardly any time, isn't messy like trying to hang wallpaper and when it dries, it shrinks just enough so that the walls are covered with a neat, tightly stretched fabric. Be sure to mark the width of each strip on your wall as a guide line because you don't want to lap the seams.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Eccentric or Shady?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a waitress in a very nice restaurant which is located on an interstate highway. It's one of a well-known chain. I greet everyone with a smile and try to give good service. Sometimes I exchange chit chat with my customers, but I never get overly familiar. I am happily married and have four children.

About three months ago a man came in alone and I served him. I don't know who he is or where he's from. He was well-dressed and well mannered. He didn't talk much but he did tell me about his grandchildren. I also told him about my family. I showed no more interest in him than any other customer and he never made a pass at me.

About three weeks later this man came in again and sat in my section. I remembered him, greeted him cheerfully and served him. When he left he gave me a hundred-dollar bill for a tip. I was flabbergasted! I really tried to give it back but he wouldn't take it.

About three weeks later he came in again, and the same thing happened. After it happened a third time I took the three one-hundred-dollar bills down to the bank to find out if maybe they were counterfeit. They were real and legitimate.

I haven't spent any of it. I'm afraid if I do, he might turn out to be some kind of eccentric and his family might demand the money back. He seems perfectly sane and normal to me, but I wonder now just what I should do?—Perplexed Waitress.

DEAR PERPLEXED: If you haven't already told your husband, tell him. You are wise to save the money for the time being in case The Last of the Big-Time Spenders turns out to be a disturbed or shady character. Maybe he is on the level, but I'm suspicious. It's a little early for Santa Claus.

DEAR ABBY: I have a wonderful husband and children, too, but don't use my name as this is a small town and I'm known here.

I love my husband and he loves me. So what's my problem? My husband's brother. I feel strongly attracted to him, and it is so frustrating because we are around each other a lot. I know that he feels a strong attraction for me, too. He is also married, and has a family, but you can't change what you feel, can you? I wouldn't want to jeopardize my own marriage, or his either, but I sometimes feel that if I don't get this guy alone just once I am going to jump out of my skin. It's getting worse all the time. How can I control it? Or should I make the first move and get it over with? He wouldn't be hard to get.—Attracted.

DEAR ATTRACTED: Sublimate! By that I mean keep busy, think of something else, and keep your mind off this man. You're undoubtedly flirting with him, and he's responding. Cut it out! It's marital suicide.

DEAR ABBY: Please let a secretary answer Gemini from a secretary's point of view: No marriage is threatened by a married man buying his secretary dinner when she works late to express appreciation for extra work or a job well done.

You told the wife if the boss wants to show appreciation, he should try money—and for the most part, I agree. But let me assure you that no amount of money paid by a corporation—not the boss—makes up for the inconvenience of an interrupted week-end, a 100-mile drive, working in a cold office because over the week-end the heat is turned off, typing for several hours, and missing dinner because the boss' insecure wife feels her marriage would be threatened if her husband took his secretary to dinner. I can assure all wives that after such a grueling work session, no secretary could possibly entertain any ideas about her boss. All the secretary would like is a nice warm meal and a kind thank you—little to ask in return for inconvenience.—Well Paid Executive Secretary.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ALIVE AND WELL:" You may be alive, but in my opinion, you are far from well. Your "honest" approach to the necessity for extramarital relations in order to satisfy man's (and woman's) urge for variety will eventually destroy the deep love you claim to have for one another.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed evenlope.

'PEOPLE WILL GO BERSERK'

SEATTLE (AP) — The world won't quietly starve to death when it runs out of food—it will simply go berserk, a scientist says.

Dr. A. S. Sussman, research botanist from the Universtiy of Michigan, made the statement Monday. He is here with 4,200 colleagues for the International Botanical Congress and will head a public symposium Thursday on world food supply problems. Hunger "leads people to do irrational things affecting both individuals and nations emotionally," he said.

"Just look at the Far East now."

Sussman thinks the problem of feeding the world's billions in the next decade has no equal.

"The problems we've had up to this time are pale in comparison," he said.

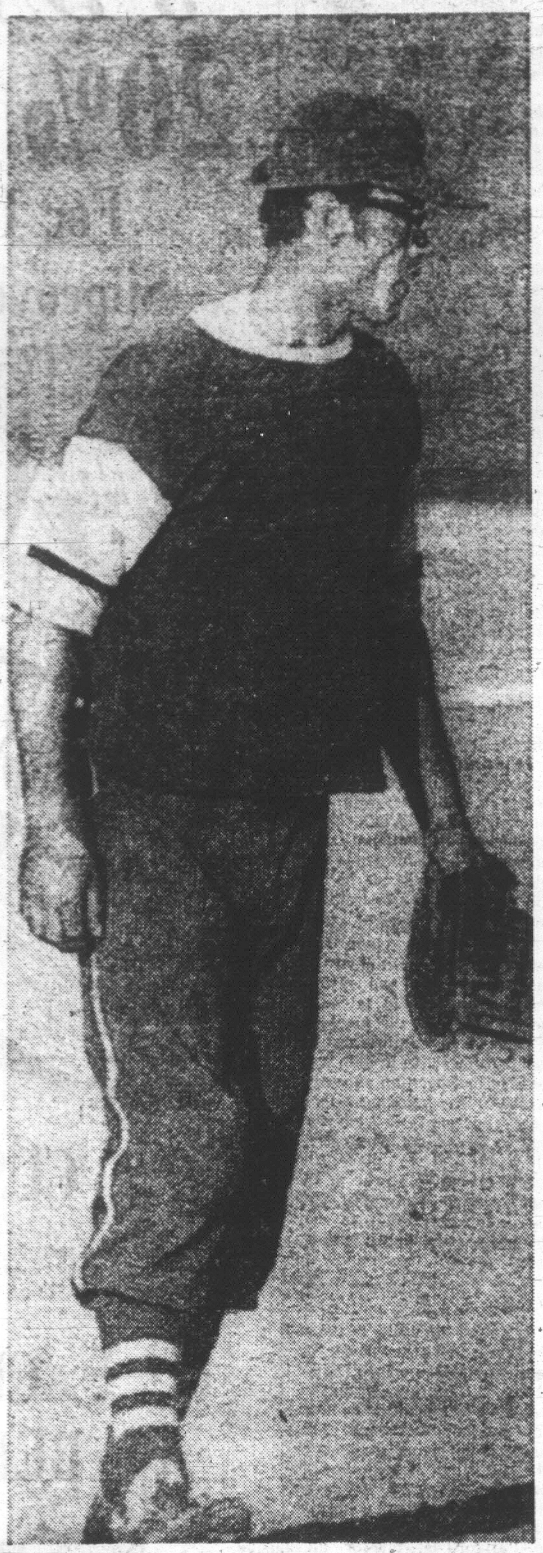
Truscott Release May Come Next Month



PRISONER Steven Truscott plays softball behind walls, awaiting word on parole. He is serving life term for murder of 12-year-old Lynne Harper. In game he struck out several times. (CP Wirephoto.)

COLLINS BAY (CP)—Steven Truscott plays softball, does farm work and leaves the guessing to fellow prisoners at Collins Bay penitentiary.

Truscott, 24, who has served 10 years of a life sentence for the murder of 12-year-old Lynne Harper, became eligible for parole June 12.

No decision has been announced yet, but some of Truscott's fellow prisoners think he will be out on parole next month.

Truscott was moved to the penitentiary's minimum security farm annex last spring and one prisoner said during a softball game this means Truscott "likely will spring within a month."

HAD A VISITOR

Another prisoner said Truscott probably will be released on parole about mid-September. Most believe he will move to Vancouver to live with his grandfather who owns a farm there.

A parole board officer visited Truscott last Sunday for a long conversation, another prisoner said.

George Street, National Parole Board chairman, said in Ottawa Wednesday recommendations on Truscott's parole could be a few weeks or a few months away.

Bangkok Gets an Earful As U.S. Debates Treaty Terms

By MERLO J. PUSEY

WASHINGTON (WP) — The state of fluidity that has developed in the relations of the United States and Thailand is a reflection of the rather amorphous basis on which those relations have rested in recent year. Relying upon the general expression of common defence interests in the SEATO treaty, the defence department under the Johnson administration joined in the development of a "contingency plan" for the defence of Thailand in case of aggression.

●

Now the Nixon administration has indicated a lack of sympathy with that arrangement, and the implications on which it rested seem to be crumbling. If the evolutionary process through which the United States-Thai relationship is passing seems to be disorderly, it is partly because the pressures for a change have been coming, not from the state department or from Bangkok, but from the senate.

The foreign relations committee raised a fuss about the contingency plan because it feared that joint defence arrangement might lead to another undeclared war in Southeast Asia. In trying to throw down that idea, Secretaries Rogers and Laird were talking for domestic consumption. But the government at Bangkok has been listening in, and is loath to be put into the position of wanting to retain pledges of American support which this country is no longer willing to give.

Only a week ago State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey had indicated that the contingency plan could be put into operation by joint action of the two governments and that only a word from the president would be essential so far as the United States is concerned. Secretary of State Rogers undercut that view in some degree. The Nixon administration fully understands the necessity of getting the support of congress and the public, he said, for any military adventure. The president would consult congress, seek its advice and request consent in any appropriate circumstances.

Secretary Laird went a lusty step beyond this. The contingency plan for defense of Thailand does not have his support, he said, or that of the administration. Then came a still more devastating blow to the concepts which have prevailed in the past: "I dont' agree with using American troops without proper consultation and advice of the congress."

Of course this stops short of saying that he would advise the president to seek authority from congress before using any American forces under the contingency plan, but it certainly carried that implication. If this is what Secretary Laird meant, and if the president agrees with it, the great conflict between the senate and the White House over executive war-making may be nearing an end. But the president has yet to be heard from.

●

At bottom the controversy involves the meaning of the SEATO treaty.

The heart of SEATO is a pledge that, in case of armed aggression against any member, each signatory will act to resist the threat "in accord with its constitutional processes." The quoted phrase was inserted for the specific purpose of making certain that no commitment of American troops to defend another SEATO country would be made without specific authorization from Congress.

When the treaty went before the Senate for its consent to ratification, Secretary of State Dulles spelled out its limitations. SEATO was not intended, he said, to be a fully-fledged counterpart of NATO, which requires that an attack upon one of the allies be regarded as an attack upon all. In response to a question by Sen. Green as to whether the SEATO treaty would commit the United States to help put down revolution in any Southeast Asian country, the author of that document said flatly that it would not.

In recent years, however, this history has been forgotten and the State Department has repeatedly contended that the president has authority to use American troops for the defence of a SEATO power whenever he deems such action essential. It was this claim that Mr. McClosky was reasserting, but he obviously spoke without full awareness of the current thinking in the cabinet.

The need for further clarification of what the administration is thinking is now enormous. One can understand the reluctance of Secretaries Rogers and Laird to be specific about what the administration might do in the unknown future. But the Senate and the country have a right to know whether executive officials intend to abide by limitations that have been written into treaties, with general understanding of their meaning.

●

Upt to this point President Nixon has not been very helpful in defusing the controversy over the war power. When the Senate was considering the Fulbright-Cooper resolution on national commitments, he commented that his hands should not be tied "in a crisis in the fast-moving world in which we live."

History is very clear, however, on the point that the men who wrote and ratified the constitution did intend to tie the hands of the president in regard to committing the country to war. In Britain war-making had been an executive function. The founding fathers were adamant in insisting that it should not be so here. They refused to place the entire executive power in the hands of one man until they had made certain — as they thought — that only Congress could commit the country to war.

●

Of course they did assign to the president the power to repel any attack on the United States or its forces, so that he would be in a position to meet any sudden emergency. This power is not being challenged. The question is whether it shall be distorted to cover attacks upon other countires where we have interests but no "all-for-one, one-for all" defensive alliance.

It is reasonable to assume that the contest on this issue will go on until the administration is ready to give a more satisfactory answer than that which emerged from the Rogers and Laird news conferences.

Interests Clash At Science Meet

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (CP) — The 20th Alaska science conference ended Wednesday the way it began, with the oil industry pitted against conservationists in a dispute over exploitation of the North.

Throughout the three-day conference, Canadian and American conservationists were near-unanimous in expressing fears that the intrusion of oil companies into Alaska and the Canadian North would seriously upset the balance of nature.

The conservationists said nature's balance in the North is precarious and easily disturbed because of harsh climatic conditions.

Some speakers at the conference added that the harmful effects of industrial exploitation in the north extend to the native peoples of the region.

An address Wednesday by James H. Galloway of Houston, vice-president of Humble Oil and Refining Company, amounted to a summation of the oil industry's counter-arguments.

TOO FAR ADVANCED

He said oil development in the Arctic already is too far advanced to be stopped regardless of conservationists' fears.

"Let's not fool ourselves," he told the 750 delegates. "This activity is already far past the point of return.

"The world needs it. . . . Oil is going to be extracted and some of the country hitherto unmolested is going to be torn up in the process."

Mr. Galloway said the overall record of the oil industry shows that it is causing the least possible damage to the arctic's singular environment.

"We now are and will continue conducting the work of exploration for oil and gas . . by such ways and means as will do the least possible damage or violence to the land, the air and the water we must occupy and to all of the life forms that we affect."

The debate over the northern oil operations centred on vast oil fields discovered last year on the north slope of Alaska near Prudhoe Bay.

Development on a lesser scale is under way in the Canadian high Arctic.

Death of Teen Heroin User Awakens France to Issue

PARIS (AP) — The death of a 17-year-old girl who took heroin is helping to jar France into a realization that it has a narcotics problem.

Paris newspapers Wednesday headlined the story of Martine X, an addict of two months, found dead in a Riviera rest room with blood oozing from the inside of her left elbow.

An 18-year-old beatnik—a $4.50-a-shot pusher—admitted giving her the shot. The pusher, Roger P., was charged with involuntary homicide. Both names were kept secret under France's juvenile laws.

Martine is the second young French addict to die this year. Arrests of young narcotics users have hit the headlines a half-dozen other times in 1969.

These are new and unusual reports, for the French youth, unlike Americans, shunned stimulants.

SEEM AS SERIOUS

"It is not yet a disaster," Paris police prefect Maurice Grimaud told Le Parisien Libere, "but that doesn't mean that the situation isn't getting to be serious."

"France has long been the laboratory country, where raw materials from the Middle East are transformed into concentrate for smuggling to North America. This is why in 1966, only half the 119 narcotic users arrested were French. The rest were foreigners.

But it became more and more dangerous to smuggle into the big U.S. market, and the pushers decided to develop the European market starting with France, officials say. In 1968, three-fourths of the 181 individuals arrested were French.

The age average fell too. In 1966, only half were under 30. In 1968, three-fourths were under 30.

The French narcotics bureau reports that the number of users, occasional or habitual, has shot up ten-fold in two years to about 20,000.

Narcotics officials say European beatniks have introduced popular low-priced narcotics into France.

BADGER BADGERS CALGARY POLICE

CALGARY (CP) — A lone badger kept two city police constables at bay Tuesday when they tried to oust him from a doorstep sleeping place.

The animal moved in overnight and refused to move along when roused out of a mid-morning nap.

When the police advanced the badger snarled. When the badger advanced, the police gave way.

Finally, zoo attendants came to the rescue and hustled the offender into a cage.

Four Facing Drug Charges After Island RCMP Net

Four young men appeared in court Wednesday on charges of trafficking in marijuana, LSD and the drug mescaline.

The four, including 30 others living in Victoria and on Vancouver Island, were arrested Tuesday following one of the most extensive undercover operations conducted by the RCMP Victoria subdivision.

Philip R. Isaacson, 1419 Stanley Street, pleaded not guilty to trafficking in marijuana, and was remanded to Sept. 18 for trial.

Richard Moore, 1345 Stanley, charged with trafficking in LSD, was remanded until Sept. 3 for election and plea.

Douglas R. Page, 1403 Stanley, charged with trafficking in marijuana, was remanded until Friday for election and plea.

Wally Barnard, 1655 Chambers, charged with selling mescaline, was remanded until Friday for election and plea.

BAIL REDUCED

Except for Barnard, the accused were not represented by counsel.

Lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood, acting on behalf of Barnard, indicated he might make a motion before the court Friday to quash the charge against his client.

Bail was reduced by Judge William Ostler from $1,500 to $1,000 for the four accused after Isaacson told the court he knew no one who could raise a large sum of money on his behalf.

A RCMP spokesman said further arrests will be made in Victoria and Vancouver Island.

He said the arrests were the result of the work of three members of the force who mixed and lived with hippies for about three months.

"We were more concerned with trafficking than with possession of narcotics," he said.

He said the investigation conducted by the undercover agents indicated that there was a notable decrease in the supply of marijuana.

'Apple' Eye On Bennett

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the British Columbia Teachers' Federation said Wednesday his organization will keep its eye on Premier Bennett.

"Bennett made a lot of promises involving education and we hope he will carry out these promises," J. W. Killeen said in an interview.

The federation spent an estimated $50,000 on its own campaign trying to promote more government interest in education, he said.

NEILSON RATINGS

News, Not Entertainment, TV's Biggest Draw

By LAWRENCE LAURENT

WASHINGTON (WP) — Television is nearly always described as primarily a medium of entertainment with advertising as its second most important function. Yet audience research material released this week by the A. C. CNeilsen Co. shows that the biggest audiences are always for coverage of a major news event.

The latest report from Neilsen Co. shows that the million television hoseholds "viewed at least part of the sponsored network coverage" of the Apollo 11 mission to the moon last month. This is 93.9 per cent of all homes with TV sets.

In those 53.5 million households the average period of viewing of network coverage was 15 hours and 35 minutes.

To understand fully the attraction of live news coverage, one must know that an entertainment program drawing 30 per cent of all households (fewer than 20 million) gets a passing grade from advertisers and is almost certain to be renewed for another season.

For a comparison, Nielsen studied average audiences during the weeks that preceded and followed Apollo 11 coverage. The "moon walk" showed an increase of 99 per cent. Audiences went up 75 per cent for the launch of the mission and were boosted by 79 per cent during the moon landing.

For another perspective, Neilsen researchers drew up lists of the top "special events coverage" during the past ten years. In each instance, the major event was covered live by all three networks and even with this allowance the audiences are usually large.

The top event in 1968 was the Democratic national convention in Chicago, which drew 90.0 per cent of all households.

Audiences in 1967 were usually small, compared to other years. The top event was President Johnson's State of the Union speech, which drew 59.6 per cent of the viewers.

In 1966, the top event was TV coverage of off-year elections (84.4 per cent). Coverages of the Gemini-Titan space mission was tops (92.1 per cent) in 1965.

Election returns were first in 1964 with 90.6 per cent and, of course, the coverage of events fololwing the death of President Kennedy was first (96.1 per cent) in 1963.

These statistics seem to support the conclusion that television performs best in conveying a sense of reality to its viewers. The audience, in turn, responds with the kind of attention that is never given to even the most appealing situation comedy or variety show.

TURTLE RIDER TELLS TALE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A young Korean who tumbled into the Pacific Ocean from a merchant ship told Wednesday how he clung to a giant sea turtle for two hours before another ship picked him up.

"I had been swimming; it seemed like 13 hours," said Chung Nam Kim, a 27-year-old deck hand. "I thought it was a shark, then I could see it was a turtle."

"I threw an arm around it and we swam, very slowly, very slowly, for about two hours. How can I live? How can I be rescued, I thought."

Kim told about his adventure in an interview by radio telephone from the Swedish freighter Citadel, which picked him out of the water 113 miles off the Nicaraguan coast. He spoke in Korean translated by Jai Sung Kim, South Korean consul here.

Horst Wedder, captain of the Citadel, said his crew spotted Kim with his arm over the turtle's back about 4:45 p.m. Friday. He was 50 or 60 feet away from the ship.

Embassy Bomber 'Hates Canada'

VIENNA (CP) — Colman Losonczy, the Hungarian-born Canadian held in Tuesday's fire-bombing of the Canadian embassy that killed two persons, did it as a "protest against the tyranny and against Canada," Austrian police say.

Losonczy, 47, described by his former landlady in Montreal as a "quiet man who would't hurt anyone," made the statement in a letter to the Austrian interior department Tuesday, the day of the fire that badly damaged the embassy premises in the Austrian capital and injured 23 persons, police said Wednesday.

Police said at least six or seven bottles were used in the embassy attack and said they were more potent than ordinary gasoline-filled bottles. Police said wiring was used and described the missiles as "fire bottles."

An obsessive hatred of Canada is revealed in letters Losonczy wrote to the interior department and the Canadian government. The letters were replete with obscenities.

It was also revealed Thursday that while in Montreal in 1968, Losonczy was arrested on a charge of participating in a riot in connection with the June 24 St. Jean Baptiste disturbance.

MAKES ACCUSATION

Later acquitted, he accused police of brutality in describing the riot for Le Lundi de la Matraque (Nightstick Monday), a Montreal leftist publication.

Another letter was addressed to: "The Canadian government, Ottawa, Ont., Canada." It referred to a letter Losonczy said he had written to the Canadian government April 30, 1968.

It started:

"Miserable capitalist criminals, arrogant oppressor—exploiters, stinking prostitutes and degenerate satellites of the imperialist Yankee murderers—as I told you in my letter dated 30th April 1968—I escaped from Canada that (obscenity deleted) English colony where I refuse to live in destitution and misery.

"Remember now you kidnapper-gangsters who try to force over me your (two obscenities deleted) citizenship, that you will not kidnap me again as you did Nov. 1, 1967, and bring me back to that miserable English colony to be a 'consuming beast' whose only purpose is to serve the interest of the exploiting Jew and English bastards . . . and serve as a source of cheap labor when the industrialist conspirator gangsters need it. . . ."

ACTED ALONE

No charges as yet have been placed against Losonczy, who police said apparently acted alone in the attack which killed two Austrian employees of the embassy. One of the injured was a Canadian.

Reforms Set In Nova Scotia

HALIFAX (CP) — Premier G. I. Smith has unveiled a broad program for reform of municipal government in Nova Scotia. It calls for amalgamation or annexation of cities, towns and rural municipalities and for consolidation or elimination of hundreds of local school boards.

The program was presented Wednesday in a report to the Union of Nova Scotia Municipalities by a provincial-municipal fact-finding committee of which Premier Smith is chairman. The report contains recommendations to both levels of government.

The recommendations are not binding on the province or municipalities, the premier emphasized. However, there seems little doubt they will become provincial government policy. Four other cabinet ministers sat with Mr. Smith on the 10-member committee.

The premier said he is hopeful the recommendations will be accepted by both government levels.

The committee calls for the province to take a more active role in encouraging municipal amalgamation. The Nova Scotia public utilities board or a municipal boundaries commission would have power to take direct action toward amalgamation in a particular area.

At present the first move must be made by a municipal unit, a number of ratepayers or the provincial government.

"There are too many units of municipal government to carry on efficient local government in today's circumstances." Mr. Smith said, "but the committee also believes that strong municipal agovernment should be maintained."

COMPARISONS NOTED

Nova Scotia thus veers away from municipal reform methods recently adopted in neighboring New Brunswick. There, to quote a committee report, "instead of strengthening local government ... numerous services were assumed by the province and all rural government effectively ceased to exist."

Premier Smith and his committee also rejected as unsuited for Nova Scotia the regional government system adopted by Ontario, that is, a "second tier" of regional units between province and municipalities.

"The stress should be on fewer units," he said. "So the creation of a second level of municipal government should be avoided, except in unusual cases."

Nova Scotia's population of 760,000 persons now is governed by 65 municipal units that include cities, towns and rural municipalities. In addition there are 89 municipal, regional and vocational school boards, 686 boards of school trustees, plus a variety of boards and commissions dealing with various municipal services.

Mr. Smith said the proposed school board consolidations would save money and permit more effective use of teachers and buildings. He said it would be impossible to carry out a comprehensive school program in units with less than 2,000 to 3,000 pupils. This program gives the pupil choice of academic, vocational or technical courses at the high school level.

MARITIME EDUCATION UNDER FIRE

OTTAWA (CP) — Educational achievements of the Atlantic Provinces were severely criticized in a report released Wednesday by the department of regional economic expansion.

The report, prepared for the Atlantic Devleopment Board which now has been absorbed by the department, said high birth rates, low incomes, illiteracy, and a general migration of people away from the Atlantic provinces have contributed to the low levels of educational attainments.

But the report sees prospects for significant improvement in the next 15 years.

Stratford Supporting Illustrious Son

By GEOFFREY MURRAY

STRATFORD ON AVON, England (Reuters) — When it comes to the good name of their most illustrious native son—playwright William Shakespeare—the people of Stratford on Avon are ultra-sensitive.

Those who doubt that the immortal bard wrote the plays attributed to him for the last 400 years are likely to be run out of town.

Supporters of Francis Bacon, Christopher Marlowe, the Earl of Oxford or any other exotic claimant do well to keep their mouths shut. Defeatist talk is not welcome in this small town near the heart of England.

If Shakespeare is proven to have been an illiterate country bumpkin, Stratford's multi-million-dollar tourist boom crumbles. This town of 15,000 souls is Britain's No. 1 tourist money-earner.

This is why the honest yeomen of Stratford are closing ranks against the challenge from amateur detectives intent on prying open the bard's tomb in quest of "truth."

For the last six years a group led by historian Francis Carr has been campaigning for the right to view the playwright's remains in the hope of finding clues to establish or disprove his authorship finally.

Most Stratfordians are sure historian Carr would find nothing. They point out that the bard's body was buried in the town's Holy Trinity Church, on the banks of the River Avon, and periodic flooding over the centuries would have destroyed anything left in the grave.

But the Stratford tourist industry would prefer the world at large to respect Shakespeare's last warning on his tomb—"Blessed be the man who spares the stones and cursed be he who moves my bones."

Commented one souvenir salesman: "We know they won't find anything. . . . But we're frightened that all the publicity will harm the Stratford and Shakespeare image."

Stratford doesn't take kindly to such sentiments as one recently expressed by American lecturer Calvin Hoffman—a Christopher Marlowe supporter—who said: "Shakespeare was just a one-horse- town grain dealer who became an accessory to a great hoax."

To add to the town's worries two Englishmen have come up with a theory that it was all the work of a Welshman anyway.

George and Bernard Winchombe, in a recent book climaxing 21 years of research, say George Williams, a Welsh scholar who became a Church of England bishop in Shakespeare's time, was the real penman.

"Because of religious duties he was unable to give his name to the works, so Shakespeare, a stage manager and producer, agreed to give his."

English Education Issue In Quebec Still Unclear

QUEBEC (CP) — The future of English-language education in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard remained in doubt Wednesday when a tight-lipped Quebec cabinet would not comment on a meeting called to discuss the issue.

Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal told reporters "it is not in the public interest" to reveal the cabinet's conclusions on his recommendations to end the year-old problem.

And Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand shrugged off questions with a "no comment."

Meanwhile, St. Leonard Mayor Leo Ouellet spoke of a possible "racial explosion" unless the education issue is resolved quickly.

The French-speaking mayor said "New Canadians" in St. Leonard, in the east end of Montreal Island, have been deprived of their "sacred right" to educate their children in the language of their choice."

The suburb's Roman Catholic school board is controlled by the Ligue pour l'Integration Scolaire, a group whose policy is to make French the sole language of instruction.

They began their phasing-out policy last year by eliminating Grade 1 class in English and announced their intention to eliminate Grade 2 classes this year.

While affected parents awaited action on their angry protests to the Quebec government, they organized private classes for their children but soon began to feel a financial pinch.

The government said later the school board had the power to do what it wished.

The telegram from Mayor Ouellet to Mr. Bertrand read in part:

"It is my duty as mayor of the city to warn you of a racial explosion within the population of St. Leonard.

"Another encounter of this kind would presumably be much more violent and regrettable than the previous one, judging from the over-heated tempers."

Mr. Bertrand introduced legislation to resolve the problem last year but his efforts were stymied by a caucus group including Mr. Cardinal.

The education minister generally is more tolerant of Quebec nationalist feelings than Mr. Bertrand.

Both the premier and Mr. Cardinal, however, Wednesday expressed the hope that the problem could be settled for the school year which begins next month.

A temporary solution would be in effect until the national assembly adopts legislation to reorganize the school system on Montreal island. Such a bill now is being drafted for presentation in the fall.

Wallet Returned

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP)—Elmer Anderson's wallet came back and his $155 was still in it. Anderson lost the wallet while deep-sea fishing off the Columbia River bar a week ago. Ed Gleb, Ocean Park, Wash., found the wallet washed up on the beach and sent it to Anderson. The contents, wet but still good, included a $100 bill.

Teacher Conspired

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A teacher who admitted selling marijuana was acquitted on that charge by a superior court judge because another teacher conspired with police in the arrest. Judge Joseph Iilgarif acquitted James Stevenson, 35, Wednesday after Sharon Riggs testified that she called on a bugged line from police headquarters. Stevenson said she asked for marijuana. He agreed and was arrested.

POLLUTION PENALTY

TORONTO (CP)—Resources Minister George Kerr of Ontario said Wednesday the government is planning legislation that will give courts power to put municipalities and industry convicted of pollution violations on probation, with step-by-step orders on how they must act to escape new and heavier penalties.

He said in an interview that if offenders do not co-operate under court order, they may face fines of up to $10,000 a day or even 30-day jail terms for an officer of the company or municipality.

Death Penalty Ban to Stay

By JOHN HAY

OTTAWA (CP — The government has no intention of revising the five-year trial restriction on capital punishment despite Canada's rising murder rate, Solicitor-General George McIlraith said Wednesday.

Parliament passed a temporary ban on capital punishment in December, 1967, except for murderers of policemen or prison guards.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported this month that the murder rate per 100,000 population increased in 1968 to 1.8 from 1.6 in 1967 and 1.3 in 1966.

"The removal of capital punishment may be a factor in the increase," Mr. McIlraith said in an interview.

But there also was "an increase in the whole field of crimes of violence. Very close attention has to be paid to the whole subject."

Police Problem Probed

By HUBERT BAUCH

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Allegations of bribery, prostitution and police corruption have been brought up here during the last three weeks as a Quebec Police Association inquiry commission attempts to find out who is responsible for whatever is rotten in Trois Rivieres.

But no one has been found so far who is willing to shoulder the blame for the city's state of affairs.

City hall has said the police force contains corrupt elements, police officers have claimed city hall has not supplied the force with enough men to police the city, and the chief of police, due to retire in September, claims he has been unaware for some time of what was happening in his department.

The inquiry, ordered by the Quebec government, was sparked last March when Trois-Rivieres Alderman Gaston Vallieres charged at a city council meeting that prostitution was flourishing in the city with the support of certain members of the police force.

He declined to associate any names with the allegation, but said Det.-Capt. Georges Gagnon, who heads the city's nine-man morality squad, was innocent of any blame.

SUED BY OTHERS

However, he was subsequently sued for a total of $120,000 by the eight other members of the morality squad.

During the opening day of testimony, Mr. Vallieres said Det.-Sgt. Paul Dallaire, also of the morality squad, had told him during an interview in November, 1968, that he himself controlled the activities of prostitutes in the city.

He said Sgt. Dallaire told him that this was the best way of controlling prostitution in Trois-Rivieres.

The same day, Police Chief Amedee Delage, who has been with the force since 1930 and had already stated his intention to resign from the post he has held since 1962, took the stand and said he did not know what was going on within his own force.

He told the commission, headed by Judge Roger Gosselin, that his only contacts with his deputy chief, Capt. Gagnon, were by phone and such conversations were rare.

He also testified that it was rare for anyone on the 150-man force to work weekends and that there was no surveillance of local night spots between Friday night and Monday mornings.

MET HIM ONCE

Chief Delage said he only met Sgt. Dallaire once when he was "responsible for checking on women of easy virtue."

"Our interview lasted for three or four minutes. I asked him to change his methods of dealing with prostitutes."

He said, however, that he never checked to see if there had been any change since "it never occurred to me to do so."

In subsequent testimony, two Trois-Rivieres men said they knew of policemen taking bribes, while a young woman who said she had worked in the city as a prostitute, claimed that the police laid down the regulations under which she and other prostitutes operated.

She also said one police officer had asked her to turn a share of her earnings over to him, but she had refused.

Next, a member of the Montreal morality squad who was sent to Trois-Rivieres to check alleged corruption in the police force in 1967, aid the local morality squad had files on all prostitutes who worked in the city.

GIRLS KNEW POLICE

He testified that he had met with a member of the Trois-Rivieres morality squad who told him that whenever a prostitute arrived in town she was sent to a night club where she became familiar with the manager. The girls were also instructed to get in touch with a member of the morality squad.

The officer said local policeman told him that each new prostitute was placed on probation for a month, and if during that period of time she did not violate any laws such as loitering, assault on clients and theft, she was allowed to practise her profession.

The inquiry was suspended for a week during which city council, on the recommendation of Chief Delage, indefinitely suspended Sgt. Dallaire and another morality squad officer, Det.-Lieut. Jean-Marie Hubert, from the force.

A week later, on Aug. 25, the detectives were reinstated at a council meeting when Alderman Fernand Colbert said that the suspensions had been premature and that the council should not try to act as a substitute for the commission.

The inquiry is continuing.

ENGLISH TUDOR TYPE

Once again we present a rare and much in demand roomy cottage style home, having four bedrooms, wide hallways, a good den, twenty foot living room and a dining room now furnished with authentic heirloom oak pieces as is the rest of this splendid home. Heated by a sound oil hot-water furnace, economy is obvious by the construction of the home whereby one takes only six steps to the upper bedrooms and second bathroom and six down to the basement. Ample attic storage is available through six more steps behind a cleverly concealed entry. I like this home very much and so will you, especially should you need to park a boat or trailer or several cars where they are out of view behind the house which is cunningly concealed behind trees from the traffic and public gaze. Here is a house built to order for the person who knows what he wants in a classic style which holds its value at all times. Also IMMEDIATE POSSESSION. Please call LYNETTE DELAHUNT, 385-7707 anytime for complete details.

We are so proud of this 10-year-old 2-bedroom home is a real doll. Cute in every way — with large living room with fireplace, separate dining room, modern kitchen with range hood, copper tone tile for back splash, a dream of a laundry room off kitchen, plus a rec. room down completely finished. Extras are aluminum storm windows and doors, plus aluminum awnings. Front patio covered with lovely indoor-outdoor carpets. Back patio is very secluded: Also fish ponds.

THE BLISSFUL COVE in NORTH SAANICH

Only a few minutes from the SWARTZ BAY FERRY, yet facing due south with an uninterrupted view from the sundeck of the ocean dotted about with ships, small craft and islands. No reminders of the harsh world of commerce here, the property is nearly an acre of seclusion and beauty. The southerly boundary 174 feet, and the beach has a gentle slope of sandy shingle that DOES warm up for swimming, yet collects logs and driftwood for the fireplace. If you make your home here the vegetable garden with its own well and electric pump — is already in top class shape. Dinghy platform and the boat anchorage are there. If you want to enlarge the 1,100 sq. ft. 2 or 3-bedroom home with its polished log interior and ECONOMICAL electric heating, you can — but you don't NEED TO. You could insulate the extra cottage on the point and put a bathroom there, or you could alter the LARGE GARAGE for extra visitors. The only snag with this beautiful property is that all your friends are bound to ask to stay. Main water, hydro and arbutus on site.
THE PRICE $45,000 — Probably worth half as much again in a few yeas. PERFECT RETIREMENT, SEMI-RETIREMENT, PEACEFUL RETREAT or JUST BLISS, 35 minutes from Victoria.

Grid Hornets Lighter But Mobility Increased

Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League wars will be launched again Sunday and Saanich Chew Excavating Hornets will start on their home field in their quest for a second successive provincial crown.

Hornets clash with Nanaimo in their season opener at 2 p.m., while Oak Bay Farmer Construction tangles with Cowichan Timbermen at Duncan the same afternoon.

James Bay Atheltic Association Mustangs have a first week bye.

Ten players from last year are back with the Hornets, reports returning head coach Frank Hindle, and four of them are key men.

Forming a hard-core nucleus for defensive players will be interior linebacker Terry Kustaski, a hard-charging, mobile stalwart, and defensive end Don Owsianski.

Heading up the offensive alignment will be fullback Steve Parker, a blasting runner who went to the B.C. Lions development camp. On the attacking unit is tight end Pete Rushton, who blocks hard and runs well.

Pat Griffin, who sat out much of last season with a shoulder separation, is back in action, Hindle says, and is looking good at the quarterback spot.

He will start Sunday as signal-caller, backed up by defensive safety Ron Taylor, a rookie from Centennial High School in Vancouver.

UTILITY EXPERT

"But one of our most important men is one who very seldom received mention," Hindley said. "Dennis Begley is the team's top utility man; he's the one who takes over at weak spots in an emergency."

The Hornets lost the only exhibition game of the season, a 24-19 squeaker to North Vancouver Wildcats, who had played two league games.

"We were unhappy to lose, but they just beat us with polish," Hindle said. "We have the talent, it just needs to be whipped into shape."

MORE MOBILITY

He predicted the team will be much lighter than last season but more mobile.

"We're strong in both offensive and defensive backfields," said Hindle, "but are weak on both lines."

One place Hornets are hurting is in the kicking department. Placement specialist Dave Granlin is out of action indefinitely with a cartilage injury to his knee he picked up skiing last winter.

Staff of the Hornets includes offensive coaches Ken Moulson and Ray Negrich, defensive coach Ray Villinger, and trainers John McLeod and Ron Pauwels.

Lindy's Pride Takes Second Trotting Gem

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP) — Lindy's Pride, trotting with a vulcanized front hoof, won the $124,910 Hambletonian—harness racing's most honored stakes—in straight heats Wednesday with blazing mile times of 1:57 3-5 and 1:58 2-5.

The color-bearer of Lindy Farms, Lindenhurst, N.Y., thus captured the second jewel of trotting's Triple Crown, having won the $100,000 Yonkeds Futurity on July 13. The third leg is the Kentucky Futurity in Lexington on Oct. 3.

Howard Beissenger, 46, driver-trainer of the son of Star's Pride, became the first to win the big classic in his initial try since 1948 when Harrison Hoyte made his debut with a straight heat victory with Demon Hanover.

Cup Contest For Bowlers

Cerny Resigns

WILLIAMS LAKE, B.C. (CP) — Dan Cerny, an eight-year veteran with the Czechoslovak national hockey team, has resigned his coaching position with the Williams Lake Stampeders of the Cariboo Intermediate Hockey League.

Cerney, who left his native country after the Soviet invasion a year ago, was appointed to the coaching job only last month.

He said following the resignation he will leave to find work in the Lower Mainland area. He said he couldn't find a job in Williams Lake.

HARNESS DIRECTOR

DU QUOIN, Ill. (CP) — J. Elgin Armstrong of Brampton, Ont., has been elected to the board of directors of the famous Hambletonian Harness Racing Society.

Cox and Coach Shoot Holes in Seeded List

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — A member of the British Davis Cup team and the team's Australian coach shot the seeded list full of holes Wednesday in the first round of the $137,000 United States open tennis championshiq.

First Mark Cox, 26, an erratic left-hander known for his giant-killing, eliminated fifth-seeded Tom Okker of The Netherlands, the 1968 runner-up, in the opening match on the centre court, 7-9, 6-3, 0-6, 6-4, 9-7.

Some five hours later, Owen Davidson, an Australian southpaw who grew up in the shadow of such players as Rod Laver and Roy Emerson, took an easy 6-3, 6-3, 6-4 triumph over eighth-seeded Cliff Drysdale of South Africa.

HOME GARDEN

Choosing Spot for Pansy Plants

By HILDA BEASTALL

Hilda

The gardeners who want pansies to bloom next winter were those who sowed the seeds back in July. We discovered from Victoria Parks Department that the class known as Clear Crystals were used last year by them, and resulted in glowing swatches of color in the Humber Green urns.

There were other beds too outside McPherson Playhouse. They astonished the observant by having their blossoms all ready to show off just as soon as the mudsplashed snow subsided.

Plants from July sowing will be growing quite well now that cooler weather has crept in. Pansies don't like it too hot.

A really choice spot for them now would be in rows where vegetables have been removed. Fork over the ground, add an inch of screened compost, and rake in a light dusting of 6-8-6 or something similar.

The small pansy plants can go in at five or six inches apart; a double, staggered row if space allows.

By the end of September or early in October, the winter flowering place should be ready. This should get all the sun available. In the home garden it may be possible to select a spot with protection of shrubs or trees to the north and east, just to give them a better chance than average.

Another job before the weekend holiday is the removal of all old flower stems from perennials which have finished blooming.

These may be delphiniums, phloxes, redhot-pokers, sidalcea, erigerons, hemerocallis (Daylilies) and heleniums.

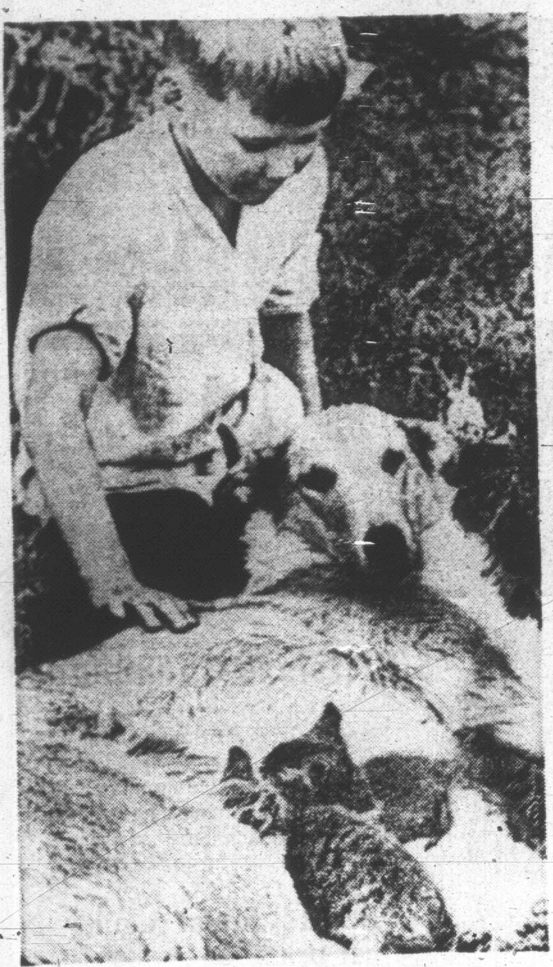
Removing old flowers does not mean the cutting back of plants to ground level. The plants need their green leaves right up to the last day of mild weather.

They are important to the health of the underground roots which we expect to live over winter and put up new growth next spring. Only the faded blossoms are cut off at this time.

As is usual in nature, we find a few exceptions. These are plants having a plentiful rosette of leaves at soil level with flowering stems rising above with a few leaves attached to those stems.

An example of this could be the carnation and pink. These should have the complete flowering stem cut off at the base, not just the removal of the old flower head at the top.

Late summer care of perennials results in better plants next spring. And care now will give you weeks of flowering pansies during the lengthening days of late winter.



MOTHER to five kittens is role adopted by Lady, a collie owned by the Ed Bettac family of Bruderheim, Alberta. When an expected litter of pups failed to arrive Lady took over job of feeding kittens left motherless when Bettac cat was run over by car. Lady is a patient dog but there are pitfalls—her face is covered with scratches. (CP Photo.)

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Canada's Freedom Favored by Britain

By BOB BOWMAN

Britain began preparing Canada for nationhood long before 1867. The rebellions of 1837 and 1838 resulted in serious studies being made of the British North American colonies, including the Durham report It was recognized that one democracy could not govern another democracy and that Canada should be given responsible government.

On August 28, 1846, the British Possessions Act gave the North American colonies the right to impose tariffs on imports from other countries. However, Britain adopted free trade at the same time and this caused a severe depression in Canada. Until then flour milled in Canada had entered Britain on a lower tariff than flour from the U.S.A. This had resulted in the building of many flour mills in Canada, and also a growing shipping trade. A great deal of this was lost when Canadian wheat and flour had to compete with other countries on even terms in the British market.

Many leading businessmen in Canada were so annoyed that they advocated joining the United States. They included a number of prominent Conservatives, but John A. Macdonald was not in favor of the movement and managed to change its direction towards confederation of the British North American colonies.

Early in 1850, Lord John Russell was Prime Minister of Britain, and said that it was the policy of the government to train the colonies for independence. He looked forward to the day when the tie with Canada might be severed and Britain would no longer be responsible. Gladstone and other leading statesmen of the day supported his view.

Other events on August 28:

1661—Radisson and Groseilliers explored fur-trading possibilities in Lake Superior area.

1781—Annapolis Royal, N.S., was raided by U.S. privateers.

1792—Captain George Vancouver arrived at Nootka Sound, B.C.

1804—First Colonial Cathedral was founded at Quebec.

1833—British act abolished slavery in Canada.

1873—Gold was discovered at Cassiar, B.C.

1891—All railways serving Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia were made part of Intercolonial Railway.

1904—Archbishop of Canterbury arrived at Quebec to visit Canada.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

The folly of doubling a slam contract to pick up an extra 50 points is vividly demonstrated in the deal presented below. The hand arose in a recent team-of-four match. If a title were reqired for this deal, a fitting one wold be: "Speech is silver; silence is golden."

Neither side vulnerable

♣ A K Q 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	6 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♠.

West, on lead, quietly cashed the ace and king of spades, and chalked up 50 points for his side. When the deal was replayed with West's teammates holding the North-South cards, this was the bidding sequence:

South	West	North	East
1NT	Pass	6 NT	Pass
Pass	Dbl.	7 ◇	Pass
Pass	Dbl.	Pass	Pass
Pass

When West doubled the six no-trump contract, North had a premonition that West, who was on lead, was all set to cash two or more tricks in either spades or clubs (how right he was!). So he decided to gamble out a seven diamond contract. In making his bid, he of course transferred the opening lead to East. West's double of the seven diamond contract was based on the hope that his partner would come up with a spade opening lead.

But East, not being blessed with E.S.P., chose to open the jack of clubs. This was won by dummy's queen, after which declarer cashed the ace and queen of trumps. Next came the ace and king of clubs, North discarding his five of spades on the lead of the club king.

A spade was then ruffed by North. The queen of hearts was now led. East covered with the king—and North breathed a sigh of relief. When he took the trick with South's ace, the jack and 10 of hearts became winners.

And so, as it turned out, West's "greedy" double of six no trump resulted in a guaranteed small profit being transformed into a staggering loss.

Crucial Problems Issue At Student Union Meet

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP) — The tone of this year's convention of the Canadian Union of Students will be a measured, analytical approach to the most crucial problems facing students, says CUS president Martin Loney.

In an address Wednesday night officially opening the week-long conference, Mr. Loney told about 250 delegates and observers they should concern themselves primarily with issues confronting university student councils now.

CUS conventions in the past have sometimes disintegrated in angry debates over international affairs. Last year, the union endorsed the activities of the Vietnamese National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong, causing a national controversy.

This year, in an attempt both to stop a serious membership drain and to respond to students' wishes, the CUS executive will try to stick to common domestic problems.

Among the issues mentioned by Mr. Loney for consideration were:

—The student housing shortage. ". . . Housing must be available at rates atudents can afford;"

—Summer employment for students.

—The lack of a sufficient demand for graduate students in Canada.

—The neglect of Indians in Canada. About 97 per cent of all Canadian Indians never finished Grade 11 and the reasons must be investigated.

"We can't shy away from problems just because they are radical problems or because the only solutions may be radical ones," said Mr. Loney, a 25-year-old graduate student from Simon Fraser University.

SEEKS CONTROLS

He called for "community control boards for police and those people who are mainly the targets of police violence, and that is the young people, . . . particularly young people who drop out of school and who can't get jobs and are forced to be transients."

If such boards were not feasible, ombudsmen should be appointed to act as mediators between police and young people.

Police earlier Wednesday raided a CUS-sponsored swimming party at a nearby lake where most of the 25 participants swam in the nude. One student was arrested and charged with disturbing the peace by swearing.

Peter Warrian, a graduate student at the University of Waterloo and out-going CUS president, told the convention earlier Wednesday night the union should clarify its aims.

Most CUS officials said privately there has been bad feeling between the old and new administrations, generated by Mr. Loney's desire to tone down what many consider have been radical left-wing statements by CUS and Mr. Warrian's more uncompromising adherence to a leftist philosophy.

Although only two universities, Lakehead here and Dalhousie in Halifax, had given an early indication Wednesday of their intention to renew memberships for another year, officials said most others would likely sign before the deadline tonight.

All memberships are for one year, with 19 of the 33 universities present able to recommit their schools at this convention.

The remaining 14 must hold referendums at their universities later in the year to decide whether they will stay in CUS or leave.

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence department expects to pay out about $150,000 in damages to residents of Kelowna, B.C., resulting from a sonic boom when a U.S. Navy jet went through the sound barrier Aug. 12.

A defence department spokesman said Wednesday that 300 claims have been received to date.

New Atomic Energy Roles Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atomic energy may play such diverse roles in the future as power for planetary grand tours and artificial hearts, Congress has been told.

The idea of implanting a tiny nuclear engine in the body to power an artificial heart is hypothetical, but worth investigating since heart disease kills some 750,000 Americans a year, says the director of the Atomic Energy Commission's isotopes development section.

E. Eugene Fowler estimates such heart research would take about four years and $5,500,000.

The commission's director of space nuclear systems, Milton Klein, in arguing for funding of the nuclear research on project Nerva, said atomic engines will be a must for deep space flight.

The testimony of both men before House of Representatives appropriations subcommittees in May was released Tuesday.

Landslide Win for Bennett

HOISTED HIGH after scoring one of the major upset victories in the provincial election is Dr. G. Scott Wallace who broke the Liberal hold on Oak Bay. His win was "very sweet" to Premier Bennett, who is one of his constituents. The riding has been held by the Liberals since 1952.

Popular Vote Close to 1966

Premier Bennett smashed what had been billed as the strongest New Democratic Party and Liberal threats of his 17-year administration Wednesday.

Social Credit was returned to five more years of power with an overwhelming majority.

"I need every vote" Bennett said in his last platform appearance and British Columbians rallied to his plea so eagerly the government party surged to almost 47 per cent of the popular vote for its best performance ever.

The dimensions of the victory will be measured on the floor of the 55-seat legislature when, for the second time, Socreds will have to sit on the left as well as the right of Speaker William Murray to accommodate their numbers.

'Socred Cup Runneth Over'

"Our cup runneth over," Bennett said in Kelowna as the returns showed his administration had won its seventh consecutive mandate and he personally had been returned for the 10th time in Okanagan South with a 50 per cent higher majority than 1966 of almost 9,500 votes.

"The people of British Columbia have stopped socialism dead in its tracks," said the premier.

The outcome exceeded his own private prediction of 34 Socred seats and "this shows you the great sweep . . . this one is sweeter than them all," Bennett said.

Throughout the campaign, press and party reports suggested enough Socred backbenchers and cabinet ministers were in serious trouble to raise the possibility of a change in government.

Bennett, warning that the NDP would try to duplicate its Manitoba win here, repeatedly hammered the theme that the electorate had to choose between "socialism or Social Credit . . . Bennett or chaos . . . strike pay with Berger or take-home pay with Bennett."

Cabinet Returned Easily

The electorate responded by returning all cabinet ministers and government MLAs, most with wider margins, while dismissing freshman Liberal Allan Cox in Oak Bay, Berger and running mate Dr. Ray Parkinson in Vancouver-Burrard, Norman Levi in Vancouver South, veteran NDP whip Leo Nimsick in Kootenay, William King in Revelstoke-Slocan and caucus chairman David Stupich in Nanaimo.

The Socred victors included onetime Socred whip and 14-year MLA Bert Price along with Harold Merilees who won Vancouver-Burrard, Harry Broadhurst in Kootenay, Burton Campbell in Revelstoke-Slocan, Mrs. Agnes Kripps in Vancouver-South and Mayor Frank Ney in Nanaimo.

Minister Without Portfolio Phil Gaglardi, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and Speaker Murray easily withstood efforts to unseat them despite predictions they would lose.

Wednesday's results in two seats still might be reversed by recounts.

Nimsick was only 49 votes behind Broadhurst in the Kootenay upset and Dennis Cocke of the NDP barely held New Westminster with a 17-vote lead over Socred John Edmondson.

An estimated 500 ballots in New Westminster are still to be counted, Returning Officer William Love said today.

"I'm expecting at least that many to be mailed in to this riding from returning officers across the province," he said. "These votes could well affect the outcome of such a close race."

Love said the mailed ballots would not be opened for at least 12 days.

Premier Bennett said he will make no announcements about cabinet posts for some time and added that the next election probably will be called "in four of five years" instead of the three-year intervals he has favored.

No Abuse of Power

KELOWNA—Premier Bennett this morning said his most powerful mandate from the people will be exercised with humility and responsibility.

"After winning this election, we're not boasting.

"We'll be more humble," he told The Times in a telephone interview.

In quiet and measured tones Bennett indicated he will strive for statesmanship as the product of the overwhelming Social Credit victory.

He said the conclusiveness of the opposition parties' defeat eliminates the need for rough-and-tumble political battle and increases the need for responsibility.

"Things will be decided on their merits," Bennett said.

"We don't want to abuse power, because we believe in democracy.

"We've had a tremendous number of critics in the different parties and in the press and that's why we've had to hit back hard at times," he said.

The premier said the government's challenge now will be to conduct itself so that even critics have no justification for "accusing us of arrogance."

Doctor Performs Political Transplant

Oak Bay had a stunning change of heart Wednesday.

The successful transplant was performed by Social Crediter Dr. G. Scott Wallace, after Premier Bennett had earlier delivered the "kiss of death" to Liberal Allan Cox.

Bennett predicted Monday that the Liberals would retain only one seat in the next legislature—Oak Bay.

But Wallace took Oak Bay by 4,000 votes and a solid Socred bloc of five MLAs will represent the Greater Victoria area in the next legislature.

TIDAL WAVE

The tidal wave of Socred voters that swept the lower Island left former New Democratic Party leader Robert Strachan clinging by his fingertips to the lone non-government seat, in Cowichan-Malahat.

Oak Bay was the first seat in the province to be decided and proved a deadly accurate indicator of how the evening would go.

A Liberal fortress since 1952 Oak Bay had given Cox a 3,200-vote majority in a by-election in July, 1968.

In Victoria cabinet ministers W. N. Chant and Waldo Skillings again proved an unbeatable combination with their closest pursuers, NDP candidates Peter Bunn and Phillip Fawcett trailing by almost 7,000 votes.

Deputy-Speaker Herb Bruch won Esquimalt handily with a 2,600-vote lead and John Tisdalle came through again in Saanich and the Islands, dashing NDP hopes with a 2,800-vote margin.

The results in Cowichan-Malahat were almost as surprising as the Oak Bay count.

In what was considered an impregnable NDP fortress Strachan scraped past Dr. Charles Ennals by only 253 votes.

Bill 33 Invoked

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister Les Peterson today invoked British Columbia's controversial Bill 33 for the first time by ordering compulsory mediation in the strike of 550 oil workers in the province's lower mainland.

The order followed an announcement by the Teamsters union that its members would support the oilworkers by refusing to drive machines and trucks using what it called "hot" fuel in an attempt to bring an end to the three-month strike.

Peterson said this move could produce effects similar to a general strike.

'I CAN'T CONTINUE WITHOUT A SEAT'

Berger Ponders Fate

The fate of Tom Berger as leader of the New Democratic Party will remain undecided for several days.

Berger, defeated in his own Vancouver-Burrard riding said today:

"It's obvious that I can't continue as leader without a seat in the legislature.

"At the same time it wouldn't be right to ask an MLA to step down to make a seat available."

Berger said he will talk over his future plans with the party caucus, its officers and membership in the next few days.

"Everybody wants me to stay on but I think that's a kind of emotional reaction you can expect. . . ."

A better idea of people's wishes would be known "when everyone has had a chance to think about it for a few days," said the 36-year-old lawyer.

'STILL OUR LEADER'

Former NDP Leader Robert Strachan said Wednesday night that Berger "is still our leader" and that a house leader could be chosen in his absence from the legislature.

He declined to speculate on who the House leader might be until a meeting of elected MLAs — promised by Berger Wednesday — is held.

Strachan said Wednesday night he hoped Berger would stay on.

Dave Barrett, Coquitlam MLA who was narrowly beaten by Berger in the party leadership race earlier this year, declined comment on his own leadership ambitions at this time.

He said the fact that Berger sought advice from the party on the question makes a party meeting on the sjubject necessary.

BARRETT
. . . thinking about future

Berger said the party could take some satisfaction in having been able to persuade one-third of the voters "that a rational approach to politics is what is needed."

SLIVER LINING

"Maybe I am looking pretty hard to find a silver lining," he added.

"But I wouln't change anything. Nothing could ever persuade me to run Bennett's kind of campaign. I believe in appealing to reason."

Berger said the NDP vote share was maintained in spite of "the millions Bennett poured into the campaign" and "the wave of hysteria it generated."

If the NDP had really run its best campaign ever and lost ground, could it ever hope to form a government in B.C.?

"Sure, I think it can and it will."

Asked whether the NDP campaign policy of concentrating on ridings it hoped to win and taking for granted those it held had contributed to his own defeat, Berger said:

FIRST CLASS CAMPAIGN

"The question is really irrelevant,—if you're leader you campaign all over the province. If there's a wave of hysteria, you lose your seat."

He said his supporters in Burrard ran "a first class campaign" and that the party actually increased its vote totals there.

He said he didn't feel the strong union support which helped him win the leadership hurt the party at the polls.

"I don't think that entered into it. In fact, our canvassers didn't get any feedback on that issue."

Berger said the popular vote figures, showing a loss of Liberal support and a gain for the Socreds, suggests that Bennett's campaign strategy

Real Output In Canada Takes Drop

OTTAWA (CP) — For the first time since the current economic upsurge started in 1961, Canada's real output declined in April, May and June, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

The bureau's index of real domestic product, based on 1961 output equally 100, declined to 150.5 for the second quarter from 151.4 in the first quarter of the year.

The index measures real output without price-change factors. It also measure domestic rather than national product. The latter includes Canadian output outside Canada's geographic borders.

The decrease was small—six-tenths of one per cent—and followed large advances in the previous two quarters. But it is the first decline recorded since Canada came out of the pre-1961 recession.

Both goods-producing and service-producing industries contributed to the decline.

STRIKE A FACTOR

DBS also noted that "to a certain extent," strikes and lockouts contributed to the decline.

In goods-producing industries, the main decline was 7.5 per cent in mining, where labor disputes crippled iron ore output. Strikes also contributed to a cut in construction. Agricultural output was also down.

There was a small gain of four-tenths of one per cent in output of manufacturing, mainly in durable goods.

The drop in production of the service industries was entirely in transportation, storage and communication—down 4.6 per cent from the first quarter of the year. Almost all of it was in transportation, where air, railway and water transport was affected directly or indirectly by major labor disturbances.

$91 Million Sale Of Oil Firm Shares

NEW YORK (AP)—Gulf and Western Industries said Wednesday it sold $91,000,000 of Atlantic Richfield Co. shares on the New York Stock Exchange.

The transactions Wednesday involved 371,000 Atlantic Richfield common shares and 618,000 $2.80 preferred shares.

The common stock was sold for $110.75 a share and the preferred for $70.75 a share.

Price Boost For 1970 Model Cars

DETROIT (UPI) — The price of the 1970 model cars is going up. Exactly how much won't be known until dealers stick the price tags on when the new cars go on sale in their showrooms in September.

But Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. already are billing dealers for tentative price hikes ranging as high as $275 on Ford's Continental Mark III.

A Ford spokesman said the nation's second largest auto producer is sending advance billings to dealers calling for increases averaging $68, or about 2 per cent over the price of the 1969 models. Chrysler said the prices of its 1970 models will be higher, but wouldn't give an average increase.

Several Detroit-area Chrysler-Plymouth dealers indicated that the wholesale price increase was tentatively set at $183 on the Plymouth Fury, while some top-of-the-line Chrysler cars may go up as much as $200.

GM SILENT

The dealers said they had received "lump sum" price increases on cars already shipped to them. The "lump sum" increases are for the overall price of the cars as delivered to the dealer by the factory, including all optional equipment.

The actual prices to the car buyer will be announced next month—Ford shortly before its new cars go on sale Sept. 19 and Chrysler shortly before its new cars go on the market Sept. 23.

But, it will be General Motors Corp., the giant of the auto industry, which may again determine the actual price hikes. GM refuses to comment so far on its 1970 car prices, but when it does any increase is sure to influence the rest of the industry since GM annually accounts for more than half of the auto sales.

Cash Outflow Hits U.S. Loan, Savings Groups

WASHINGTON (WP) — The nation's savings and loan associations—a major source of lending for the private housing market—experienced the largest outflow of funds in three years last month, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported this week.

The loss amounted to $1,075 billion, 0.8 per cent of their total savings at the end of June. Though July is customarily a weak month for new savings, the outflow this year was about 75 per cent more than last July's deficit of $606 million.

At the same time, the FHLBB reported that the growing scarcity of funds for private housing continues to drive upwards effective interest rates on new home mortgages. The effective rate for new conventional mortgages on single-family homes rose to 7.90 per cent in July.

Since July 1967, the rate has risen from 7.17 per cent. That increase represents a considerable cost to home buyers. A recent study estimated that every 1 per cent increase in interest rates raises the monthly payments of a 30-year mortgage loan by 12 per cent.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Light Trading Witnessed

Under light trading today the Toronto and New York stock markets posted moderate gains. Industrial components were higher at Toronto, while beverage, construction, merchandising, pipeline and real estate issues were slightly lower.

AT TORONTO Algoma rose ⅝ to 16. Steelworkers at Algoma went on strike Thursday. The contract between the company and the union expired July 31.

Stelco picked up ⅛ to 22⅝. Steelworkers at Stelco have been on strike since Aug. 1 following expiration of their contract with the company.

Inco slipped ⅛ to 37. Inco's Ontario operations have been shut down since July 10 by a steelworkers' strike.

Falconbridge gained ¾ to 132¼. Workers at the company have been on strike for the last week.

AT NEW YORK big board prices near the close included: Leasco Data Processing, off 1⅛ at 25½; Cities Service, unchanged at 55⅛; Fairchild Camera and Instrument, off ¾ at 63; McGraw-Hill, off ¾ at 28¼, and Loew's Theatres, up ⅝ at 31½.

AT MONTREAL all sectors firmed as the market climbed slowly on light trading today. Banks led.

In banks, Toronto-Dominion gained ● to 19 and Montreal ⅛ to 14¾.

Among industrials, Canadian Refractories was up 1 point to 13¾ as ½-point gains lifted Crush to 11, Massey-Ferguson to 17¾, Du Pont to 30, Southam Press to 59½ and Weston to 22½. Rothmans lost 1 point to 17 and Credit Foncier 1 point to 53½.

Fraser, among papers, gained ⅝ to 24⅜.

In senior mines and oils, Denison advanced 3 to 49½, Rio Algom ¾ to 19¼, Noranda ⅝ to 33⅜, Aquitaine ½ to 23 and Shell ½ to 25½ while Hudson Bay Mining slipped ½ to 79.

On the Canadian Stock Exchange, Belgium hopped 2 to 23.

Among speculative mines and oils, Sullivan was up 35 cents to 7.85 while Cadillac Explorations dropped 15 cents to 5.25.

AT LONDON the stock market had a slightly firmer appearance today but volume remained low. Leading industrials, after a firm start, tended to slip.

Bowaters, at 100s 3d, was 10½d higher.

Canadians presented a mixed appearance in quiet trading.

In oils, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas lost three points to 91, and Gulf eased 1½ points to 45. Pacific Pete and Canadian Husky were ½ points firmer.

In other sections, Noranda was 1¼ points lower at 78½. Fractional falls were recorded in Canadian Pacific, Massey-Ferguson, Alcan and Algoma. Elsewhere, Hiram Walker, Power Corp., and Central Del Rio showed modest gains.

Banks were easier and golds were quietly firm.

AT VANCOUVER volume was slightly higher on the exchange today in the aftermath of the provincial election, but prices were generally mixed on a pre-noon volume of 1,750,000 shares traded.

Among the mines, Gibraltar gained .35 to $2.95 and western mines advanced .15 to $3.15. Brenda lost .25 to $13.50.

Industrials were off with Driver down .20 to $2.85 and Great Pacific down .25 to $8. A single sale of 10,000 Southam Press shares traded at $59.

Oils were mixed.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Modest strength in rapeseed continued at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Trade was mainly inter-month spreading with some exporter buying on elevator company offers.

Trade in other commodities was dull.

Flax was fractionally easier in light commission house and crusher trade.

Oats and barley continued light domestic shipper trade with prices generally steady.

Exporters were small scale down buyers in rye, while some inter-month spreading continued. Rye qrices were marginally easier.

Lakehead prices for class two and IGA wheat all were up ⅛ cent.

CHICAGO (AP — Active trading, based largely on some trade thinking that export business in farm products might soon reopen between the U.S. and communist countries, today sent commodity futures prices higher from around 1 to 1½ cents a bushel on the Board of Trade.

Trade was mixed with all facets on both sides after a fairly light and irregular opening.

Shortly thereafter, however, news filtered to the floor that the government had approved a licence to do about $250,000 worht of conr business with East Germany.

Corn futures advanced 1½ cents.

Many traders viewed the new business in corn as possibly expanding into the soybean complex and wheat.

Japan Tones Down Oil Discovery

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Japanese government has denied a newly discovered oil field off the coast of the Senkaku Islands in the East China Sea is the world's largest.

Japanese geologists have found promising oil resources in the area, but did not give any clues how large the field is.

Neonex

Neonex International Ltd. announced Wednesday it now is registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission.

James A. Pattison, company president, said as a result of this registration the Vancouver-based company filed an updated application for a listing on the American Stock Exchange and hopes to be trading on the ASE shortly.

Dome

Dome Petroleums Ltd. had a net income of $4.43 million or $1.32 a share during the six months ended June 30, compared with $4.94 million or $1.48 a share during the same period last year.

No reason for the decrease was given in a report to shareholders.

Gross income was down slightly at $11.96 million.

Production of crude oil, natural gas liquids and oil equivalent of natural gas also decreased, to 24,112 barrels a day from 24,153 barrels.

Women's Clubs' Briefs Are Just Pious Rituals

BY JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — Every year women's groups present governments with requests for action on assorted issues. Sometimes several ask for action on the same issue, year after year.

The presentation has almost a ritual quality.

It begins with the submission to the relevant government of a brief outlining that year's requests, carefully documented and approved by the club membership. With it goes a pious hope that it will be read before the next step is taken.

That step is a club delegation meeting with the government leader and cabinet ministers. The brief is read aloud by a delegate and the appropriate ministers then comment. There is an exchange of amenities, perhaps a photograph is taken. Then, say a sampling of club women, there is usually a long pause.

The consensus among experienced delegates is that the effort is worth making because there may be results in the long run. There is nonetheless a wry note in their comments about it all.

Margaret Hyndman is a lawyer and past international and national president of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs. She is skeptical.

One of her causes has been to get equal-pay legislation for women. She says repeated pressure may have helped get present laws on the books, but that they are not as strong as asked.

"What it reduces itself to is how many voters are involved.

"On different occasions we have been told we have had much more effect than we realized, but I haven't seen much evidence of it.

"If they would give you a fight on the merits of a question there would be some point in it, but they are so polite and disinterested."

Margaret Ashdown, current B and P president, says she thinks submissions do get results, but agrees they are not necessarily in the form asked for.

"We've been well received on every occasion. This doesn't mean a darn thing, but it's comforting.

"We did track back one series of requests on estate tax and found we got legislation—not exactly in the form we wanted, but you hope you plant a seed."

Finding the right person is part of the problem, says Mrs. P. J. Chadsey, president of the YWCA.

"I think you do get something in the long run, but I think you only get it if your requests are reasonably based and properly stated. You have to have a strong conviction, a properly documented case to present and see that it gets to the right people. Then, if you keep hammering away, something gets done. But that's a very long view.

"We have seen some improvements in what you might call the general status of women. The Canadian bill of rights is something we'd worked on for a long time."

Timing can be another important factor, says Mrs. G. B. Armstrong, Ontario CAC president.

"I was quite pleased this year. Sometimes it's because your resolutions are timely."

SOME PROGRESS MADE

A list of some of the requests made in the last 50 years is an indicator of how successful the clubs are.

In 1917, the National Council of Women was seeking "better care of the feeble-minded," suitable films for children, standardization of canned goods.

In both the 1920s and 1930s they submitted briefs on the status of women.

In 1930 they celebrated the success of appeals for appointments of women to the Senate. In 1937 they "reported with gratification" the appointment of women to federal royal commissions.

In 1949 the then Canadian Association of Consumers was asking about controls on rising prices.

In the 1960s, the B and P have dealt with rehabilitation for female offenders, ballot boxes in hospitals and rest homes, tax relief for low-income people and sex discrimination in unemployment insurance.

RECEPTION PLANNED

Mr. and Mrs. Archie H. Wills, Camosack Manor, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary next Wednesday. They were married in Toronto in 1919 after Mr. Wills returned from three years' overseas service with the 58th Battery, C.F.A. They came to Victoria following their marriage and have resided here since. Mr. Wills, a native son, served as acting mayor of Victoria for three years and was an alderman for 10 years. Mrs. Wills has been a member of the Women's Canadian Club and is a past president of Chapter K, P.E.O. Sisterhood. Mr. and Mrs. Wills have three children, Kenneth, of Victoria; Mrs. David (Eileen) Wilson, of Montreal, and Mrs. George (Dorothy) Little, of Calgary. They have 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. They will have a family dinner at the Empress Hotel and a reception later in the Georgian Lounge.

Nose Shape Affected

VANCOUVER (CP) — A University of California orthodontist said Tuesday there is more to the practice of orthodontics than just correcting the growth of a youngster's teeth.

Dr. Spiro J. Chaconas, here for the three-day meeting of the Pacific Coast Society of orthodontists, said the nose and chin are very much involved in the development of a child's mouth.

A guest lecturer at the conference, Dr. Chaconas has specialized in researching nose growth as related to tooth growth.

He said in an interview that premature or incorrect removal of molars to make room for protruding front teeth will, in effect, pull the entire face back.

"If it's done between the ages of 10 and 16, the period of most intensive growth," he said, "then often along with the teeth the lips will move back. And the nose too.

"It will remain stunted and cause the patient psychological harm."

To correct the esthetic deficiency, expensive plastic surgery is the only answer, he said.

Dr. Chaconas said with new technology, the mechanical process of correcting tooth growth "is quite easy."

Out-of-Work Job Finder Now Works As Cat-Sitter

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — When Judy Burns's job with Sarnia's student employment office ended after two months, the service got her perhaps its most unusual summer placement. She's a cat-sitter.

The 17-year-old student was assistant director of Operation Funnel, but when the load of job applications tapered off, director David Stoesser carried on alone, and Judy was looking for work.

Her job now is grooming, cleaning, feeding and amusing 32 Persian show cats owned by a Sarnia couple, and cat-sitting on weekends when they are away attending cat shows.

Already she's learned that Persians are like most cats: "They like their necks and under their chins rubbed." She says she's eager to learn techniques of feeding, cleaning and show grooming because the job could extend to part-time winter work.

About 700 students applied to Operation Funnel, but less than one-quarter were placed.

What was probably its shortest placement went to Roger Bedard and Gilbert Piche, both 17. Their job lasted half an hour.

The students were waiting in the Funnel office when a woman came in looking for two boys to fix a flat tire on her car two blocks away. She was going to call a garage, but "knowing the problem teen-agers have finding jobs," decide to use student labor, she said.

Another unusual offer came from a man seeking a combination cook, dishwasher and mechanic to work without pay. The job would provide an all-expenses-paid tour of Nova Scotia late in the summer in the man's trailer.

Little Red School Home for Artists

ORANGEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — After searching in Mexico and Europe for a suitable home and studio, artist-teacher Jim Gordaneer and his wife Miria settled in a little red schoolhouse on a side road four miles from this town to the northwest of Metropolitan Toronto.

Since their marriage eight years ago Jim has been trying to make art a full-time occupation but has always had to supplement his earnings by teaching.

"Living in Greece and several other places was inexpensive," Jim says, "but there was no way to earn a living."

The couple then began looking for land in the Orangeville area on which to build.

"Land in this area is expensive—$1,000 an acre—but we got the 1885 schoolhouse for $1,800," Jim says. "Renovations came to $10,000 but would have been more if we hadn't done most of the work ourselves."

A Toronto architect friend, David Tsow, designed a workable interior for the schoolhouse and a builder in the area dropped in from time to time to correct their mistakes and tell them what to do next.

Both earned money to finance their expenses, Jim teaching art and Miria grade school. Weekends were spent working on the schoolhouse.

The interior has two bedrooms and a bathroom upstairs. The downstairs is a roomy three-level area with a large artist's studio.

With property paid for, other expenses include hydro, between $250 and $300 a year; taxes $170, and food, clothing, telephone and car expenses.

With these expenses, Jim has been able to reduce his teaching job to four nights a week. Miria gave up her teaching job a year ago to have their first child, a daughter, Alisa.

Miria's hobby is pottery so this year the Gordaneers bought a railway caboose in London, Ont., for $250 and for $300 had it shipped to the schoolhouse to be used as a potting shed.

THE BLISSFUL COVE in NORTH SAANICH

Only a few minutes from the SWARTZ BAY FERRY, yet facing due south with an uninterrupted view from the sundeck of the ocean dotted about with ships, small craft and islands. No reminders of the harsh world of commerce here, the property is nearly an acre of seclusion and beauty. The southerly boundary 174 feet, and the beach has a gentle slope of sandy shingle that DOES warm up for swimming, yet collects logs and driftwood for the fireplace. If you make your home here the vegetable garden with its own well and electric pump — is already in top class shape. Dinghy platform and the boat anchorage are there. If you want to enlarge the 1,100 sq. ft. 2 or 3-bedroom home with its polished log interior and ECONOMICAL electric heating, you can — but you don't NEED TO. You could insulate the extra cottage on the point and put a bathroom there, or you could alter the LARGE GARAGE for extra visitors. The only snag with this beautiful property is that all your friends are bound to ask to stay. Main water, hydro and arbutus on site.
THE PRICE $45,000 — Probably worth half as much again in a few yeas. PERFECT RETIREMENT, SEMI-RETIREMENT, PEACEFUL RETREAT or JUST BLISS, 35 minutes from Victoria.

Grid Hornets Lighter But Mobility Increased

Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League wars will be launched again Sunday and Saanich Chew Excavating Hornets will start on their home field in their quest for a second successive provincial crown.

Hornets clash with Nanaimo in their season opener at 2 p.m., while Oak Bay Farmer Construction tangles with Cowichan Timbermen at Duncan the same afternoon.

James Bay Atheltic Association Mustangs have a first week bye.

Ten players from last year are back with the Hornets, reports returning head coach Frank Hindle, and four of them are key men.

Forming a hard-core nucleus for defensive players will be interior linebacker Terry Kustaski, a hard-charging, mobile stalwart, and defensive end Don Owsianski.

Heading up the offensive alignment will be fullback Steve Parker, a blasting runner who went to the B.C. Lions development camp. On the attacking unit is tight end Pete Rushton, who blocks hard and runs well.

Pat Griffin, who sat out much of last season with a shoulder separation, is back in action, Hindle says, and is looking good at the quarterback spot.

He will start Sunday as signal-caller, backed up by defensive safety Ron Taylor, a rookie from Centennial High School in Vancouver.

UTILITY EXPERT

"But one of our most important men is one who very seldom received mention," Hindley said. "Dennis Begley is the team's top utility man; he's the one who takes over at weak spots in an emergency."

The Hornets lost the only exhibition game of the season, a 24-19 squeaker to North Vancouver Wildcats, who had played two league games.

"We were unhappy to lose, but they just beat us with polish," Hindle said. "We have the talent, it just needs to be whipped into shape."

MORE MOBILITY

He predicted the team will be much lighter than last season but more mobile.

"We're strong in both offensive and defensive backfields," said Hindle, "but are weak on both lines."

One place Hornets are hurting is in the kicking department. Placement specialist Dave Granlin is out of action indefinitely with a cartilage injury to his knee he picked up skiing last winter.

Staff of the Hornets includes offensive coaches Ken Moulson and Ray Negrich, defensive coach Ray Villinger, and trainers John McLeod and Ron Pauwels.

Lindy's Pride Takes Second Trotting Gem

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP) — Lindy's Pride, trotting with a vulcanized front hoof, won the $124,910 Hambletonian—harness racing's most honored stakes—in straight heats Wednesday with blazing mile times of 1:57 3-5 and 1:58 2-5.

The color-bearer of Lindy Farms, Lindenhurst, N.Y., thus captured the second jewel of trotting's Triple Crown, having won the $100,000 Yonkeds Futurity on July 13. The third leg is the Kentucky Futurity in Lexington on Oct. 3.

Howard Beissenger, 46, driver-trainer of the son of Star's Pride, became the first to win the big classic in his initial try since 1948 when Harrison Hoyte made his debut with a straight heat victory with Demon Hanover.

Cup Contest For Bowlers

Crucial Problems Issue At Student Union Meet

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP) — The tone of this year's convention of the Canadian Union of Students will be a measured, analytical approach to the most crucial problems facing students, says CUS president Martin Loney.

In an address Wednesday night officially opening the week-long conference, Mr. Loney told about 250 delegates and observers they should concern themselves primarily with issues confronting university student councils now.

CUS conventions in the past have sometimes disintegrated in angry debates over international affairs. Last year, the union endorsed the activities of the Vietnamese National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong, causing a national controversy.

This year, in an attempt both to stop a serious membership drain and to respond to students' wishes, the CUS executive will try to stick to common domestic problems.

Among the issues mentioned by Mr. Loney for consideration were:

—The student housing shortage. ". . . Housing must be available at rates atudents can afford;"

—Summer employment for students.

—The lack of a sufficient demand for graduate students in Canada.

—The neglect of Indians in Canada. About 97 per cent of all Canadian Indians never finished Grade 11 and the reasons must be investigated.

"We can't shy away from problems just because they are radical problems or because the only solutions may be radical ones," said Mr. Loney, a 25-year-old graduate student from Simon Fraser University.

SEEKS CONTROLS

He called for "community control boards for police and those people who are mainly the targets of police violence, and that is the young people, . . . particularly young people who drop out of school and who can't get jobs and are forced to be transients."

If such boards were not feasible, ombudsmen should be appointed to act as mediators between police and young people.

Police earlier Wednesday raided a CUS-sponsored swimming party at a nearby lake where most of the 25 participants swam in the nude. One student was arrested and charged with disturbing the peace by swearing.

Peter Warrian, a graduate student at the University of Waterloo and out-going CUS president, told the convention earlier Wednesday night the union should clarify its aims.

Most CUS officials said privately there has been bad feeling between the old and new administrations, generated by Mr. Loney's desire to tone down what many consider have been radical left-wing statements by CUS and Mr. Warrian's more uncompromising adherence to a leftist philosophy.

Although only two universities, Lakehead here and Dalhousie in Halifax, had given an early indication Wednesday of their intention to renew memberships for another year, officials said most others would likely sign before the deadline tonight.

All memberships are for one year, with 19 of the 33 universities present able to recommit their schools at this convention.

The remaining 14 must hold referendums at their universities later in the year to decide whether they will stay in CUS or leave.

Injured Flown

VANCOUVER (CP) — A chartered plane flew to California from Vancouver Wednesday to pick up a West Vancouver woman and her son for transfer to hospital in Vancouver. The flight will return Mrs. Frank Saunders and 11-year-old Patrick Saunders following a car mishap July 24 in California which killed Frank Saunders, head of the Big Brother movement in British Columbia.

SONIC BOOM CLAIMS SET

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence department expects to pay out about $150,000 in damages to residents of Kelowna, B.C., resulting from a sonic boom when a U.S. Navy jet went through the sound barrier Aug. 12.

A defence department spokesman said Wednesday that 300 claims have been received to date.

New Atomic Energy Roles Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atomic energy may play such diverse roles in the future as power for planetary grand tours and artificial hearts, Congress has been told.

The idea of implanting a tiny nuclear engine in the body to power an artificial heart is hypothetical, but worth investigating since heart disease kills some 750,000 Americans a year, says the director of the Atomic Energy Commission's isotopes development section.

E. Eugene Fowler estimates such heart research would take about four years and $5,500,000.

The commission's director of space nuclear systems, Milton Klein, in arguing for funding of the nuclear research on project Nerva, said atomic engines will be a must for deep space flight.

The testimony of both men before House of Representatives appropriations subcommittees in May was released Tuesday.

Price Boost For 1970 Model Cars

DETROIT (UPI) — The price of the 1970 model cars is going up. Exactly how much won't be known until dealers stick the price tags on when the new cars go on sale in their showrooms in September.

But Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. already are billing dealers for tentative price hikes ranging as high as $275 on Ford's Continental Mark III.

A Ford spokesman said the nation's second largest auto producer is sending advance billings to dealers calling for increases averaging $68, or about 2 per cent over the price of the 1969 models. Chrysler said the prices of its 1970 models will be higher, but wouldn't give an average increase.

Several Detroit-area Chrysler-Plymouth dealers indicated that the wholesale price increase was tentatively set at $183 on the Plymouth Fury, while some top-of-the-line Chrysler cars may go up as much as $200.

GM SILENT

The dealers said they had received "lump sum" price increases on cars already shipped to them. The "lump sum" increases are for the overall price of the cars as delivered to the dealer by the factory, including all optional equipment.

The actual prices to the car buyer will be announced next month—Ford shortly before its new cars go on sale Sept. 19 and Chrysler shortly before its new cars go on the market Sept. 23.

But, it will be General Motors Corp., the giant of the auto industry, which may again determine the actual price hikes. GM refuses to comment so far on its 1970 car prices, but when it does any increase is sure to influence the rest of the industry since GM annually accounts for more than half of the auto sales.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Light Trading Witnessed

Under light trading today the Toronto and New York stock markets posted moderate gains.

Industrial components were higher at Toronto, while beverage, construction, merchandising, pipeline and real estate issues were slightly lower.

AT TORONTO—In industrials, Home A was up 2⅝ to 74, Investors Overseas 2 to 46, Dupont 1⅝ to 31, Home B 1 to 66½ and Kaps 1 to 21.

Rothmans dropped 1 to 17, Inco ¼ to 36⅞, Moore ¼ to 32⅝ and Flock Bros. ⅛ to 6½.

Denison gained 1½ to 49, Preston ⅞ to 12⅞ and Rio Algom ⅜ to 19. Roman was down ⅜ to 14⅞.

Banff gained 1 to 14½, Ulster Pete 55 cents to $4.65. Petrol 25 cents to $2.05 and Triad 25 cents to $5.15.

AT NEW YORK big board prices near the close included: Leasco Data Processing, off 1⅛ at 25½; Cities Service, unchanged at 55⅛; Fairchild Camera and Instrument, off ¾ at 63; McGraw-Hill, off ¾ at 28¼, and Loew's Theatres, up ⅝ at 31½.

AT MONTREAL all sectors firmed as the market climbed slowly on light trading today. Banks led.

In banks, Toronto-Dominion gained ⅜ to 19 and Montreal ⅛ to 14¾.

Among industrials, Canadian Refractories was up 1 point to 13¾ as ½-point gains lifted Crush to 11, Massey-Ferguson to 17¾, Du Pont to 30, Southam Press to 59½ and Weston to 22½. Rothmans lost 1 point to 17 and Credit Foncier 1 point to 53½.

Fraser, among papers, gained ⅜ to 24⅜.

In senior mines and oils, Denison advanced 3 to 49½, Rio Algom ¾ to 19¼, Noranda ⅝ to 33⅝, Aquitaine ½ to 23 and Shell ½ to 25½ while Hudson Bay Mining slipped ½ to 79.

On the Canadian Stock Exchange, Belgium hopped 2 to 23.

Among speculative mines and oils, Sullivan was up 35 cents to 7.85 while Cadillac Explorations dropped 15 cents to 5.25.

AT LONDON the stock market had a slightly firmer appearance today but volume remained low. Leading industrials, after a firm start, tended to slip.

Bowaters, at 100s 3d, was 10½d higher.

Canadians presented a mixed appearance in quiet trading.

In oils, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas lost three points to 91, and Gulf eased 1½ points to 45. Pacific Pete and Canadian Husky were ½ points firmer.

In other sections, Noranda was 1¼ points lower at 78½. Fractional falls were recorded in Canadian Pacific, Massey-Ferguson, Alcan and Algoma. Elsewhere, Hiram Walker, Power Corp., and Central Del Rio showed modest gains.

Banks were easier and golds were quietly firm.

AT VANCOUVER volume was slightly higher on the exchange today in the aftermath of the provincial election, but prices were generally mixed on a pre-noon volume of 1,750,000 shares traded.

Among the mines, Gibraltar gained .35 to $2.95 and western mines advanced .15 to $3.15. Brenda lost .25 to $13.50.

Industrials were off with Driver down .20 to $2.85 and Great Pacific down .25 to $8. A single sale of 10,000 Southam Press shares traded at $59.

Oils were mixed.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Modest strength in rapeseed continued at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Trade was mainly inter-month spreading with some exporter buying on elevator company offers.

Trade in other commodities was dull.

Flax was fractionally easier in light commission house and crusher trade.

Oats and barley continued light domestic shipper trade with prices generally steady.

Exporters were small scale down buyers in rye, while some inter-month spreading continued. Rye prices were marginally easier.

Lakehead prices for class two and IGA wheat all were up ⅛ cent.

CHICAGO (AP) — Active trading, based largely on some trade thinking that export business in farm products might soon reopen between the U.S. and communist countries, today sent commodity futures prices higher from around 1 to 1½ cents a bushel on the Board of Trade.

Trade was mixed with all facets on both sides after a fairly light and irregular opening.

Shortly thereafter, however, news filtered to the floor that the government had approved a licence to do about $250,000 worth of corn business with East Germany.

Corn futures advanced 1½ cents.

Many traders viewed the new business in corn as possibly expanding into the soybean complex and wheat.
